13 in Missions Hacked to Death

SALISBURY (AP) — Thirteen whites—missionaries and their families—were hacked to death by black nationalist guerrillas at a mission near Rhodesia's border with Mozambique, a military spokesman said today.

He said the dead included a month-old baby and several young girls.

The spokesman said there were no casualties among the blacks at the mission, but that it appeared that black children attending the mission school were rounded up by the guerrillas and marched across the Mozambique border.

The Rev. John Smith of the Elim Church in Cheltenham, England, said all the victims were British, including three couples and four young children, and that only one white survived, an unmarried woman. No identities were immediately available.

The Anglican dean of Salisbury, John da Costa, identified the mission attacked as belonging to the U.S.-based Elim Fellowship, a Pentecostal church.

(Reuters news agency said the mission belonged to the Pentecostal Mission Church, which has its headquarters in Cheltenham, England. Reuter quoted a church sources as saying the mission was called Elim and until nine months ago was run by the Anglican Church.)

It was the most serious attack yet on missions, which have become a prime target for raids by black nationalists stepping up their war in Rhodesia. It came as Mozambique reported invading Rhodesian troops killed 19 persons in southwest Mozambique.

Meanwhile, leaders of black guerrillas fighting in Rhodesia asked the Organization of African Unity (OAU) on Friday for $3 million to buy arms so they might launch attacks on Rhodesian towns and cities.

"We couldn't give them three million bucks, but we'll give them all that we can." Laban Oyaka, spokesman for the OAU's liberation committee, said. He spoke with reporters after the committee ended a five-day meeting attended by delegations from OAU member states.

Oyaka said a resolution instructed the committee secretariat to "grant all possible emergency and other requests put forward by the Patriotic Front for the intensification of the armed struggle" in Rhodesia.

The liberation committe also condemned Western military intervention in Africa and said the continent should be allowed to solve its own problems.

BIRDS SAFE FROM SPILL IN STRAIT

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Federal pollution control officials were investigating an oil spill which threatened a provincial bird sanctuary at the north end of Georgia Strait near here Friday.

An Environmental Protection Service spokesman said the slick of heavy-grade oil was reported travelling between Cape Mudge, on the south tip of Quadra Island, and the Mitlenatch Island provincial park and bird sanctuary, about 12 kilometres east of Cape Mudge, on Friday morning.

Heavy tides and wind broke the 7.2 kilometres long slick by evening. The spokesman said the spill was expected to have no effect on fish or wildlife in the area.

Origin of the spill was not known but it was believed to have come from a passing barge or freighter.

RCMP Set Appeal

Crown counsel Richard Law said Friday the RCMP will appeal a case in which the validity of RCMP blood-alcohol tests was questioned.

Law said there will be no change in the sampling procedure meanwhile.

Provincial Court Judge William Ostler ruled Wednesday that sampling techniques used by the RCMP in Vancouver were unreliable and acquitted James Beck, 20, of impaired driving.

St. John's Air Crash Kills 10

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The chairman and three other members of the Canadian Historical Sites and Monuments Board were among the 10 persons killed Friday in an airplane crash about eight kilometres west of the St. John's airport.

Among the dead was board chairman Marc LaTerreur of Laval University, regarded as one of Canada's leading historians.

Other board members killed were the Ontario member, Napier Simpson of Thornhill; the Manitoba member, Robert Painchaud of St. Boniface; and the New Brunswick member, Jules Leger of Moncton and his wife Jacqueline.

Also killed were William Manning of nearby Torbay, superintendent of the Signal Hill National Historic Site here; Brenda Babbits of Ottawa, the board's assistant secretary, and her husband Alex Babbits; pilot Gerald Eichel and co-pilot Michael Fitzpatrick, both of Gander, Nfld.

FAMILY HOMELESS

A family of 10 is homeless today after fire gutted a residence at 8750 West Saanich Road Friday.

The fire broke out around 1 p.m. The owner, Herman Henry was a work, his wife, Dorothy was in Victoria, and most of their eight children were at a school sports day nearby.

The family lost all of their belongings.

PM Backroomed Petro-Can's Bid, Angry PCs Claim

OTTAWA (CP)-The Progressive Conservatives pressed the government Friday for a full explanation of its involvement in Petro-Canada's takeover bid for Husky Oil Ltd. of Canada.

Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon-Biggar) said the questions are raised in light of new information that the man hired as Petro-Canada's agent in the transaction was a Husky director.

He also said officials of Prime Minister Trudeau's office were involved in the transaction. Trudeau denied this.

Hnatyshyn was referring to the fact that Ward C. Pitfield, head of the investment house Pitfield, McKay Ross of Toronto, which handled the Crown oil corporation's acquisition bid, resigned last Tuesday as a director of Husky Oil.

"This looks like a classic case of conflict of interest to me," Hnatyshyn told reporters.

Meanwhile, Premier Alan Blakeney of Saskatchewan Friday came down on Petro-Canada's side in the bidding war with Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles to take over Husky.

The province prefers Petro-Canada because it has the money and the inclination to move more quickly to fully develop heavy oil deposits in Saskatchewan, Blakeney said.

Husky, a major shareholder in the heavy oil region of the Lloydminster area, has been cautious in developing the reserves.

In the Commons, Hnatyshyn called on Trudeau and Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie to tell how Pitfield had been selected as Petro-Canada's agent.

He also said Trudeau owed the country an explanation of the involvement of his own officials in the takeover bid.

Trudeau denied any link existed between his office and Petro-Canada and both ministers said Petro-Canada's directors had simply chosen the man best qualified to do the job.

Hnatyshyn told reporters he is certain the prime minister's office has been in close contact with the negotiations.

Ward Pitfield's brother Michael Pitfield, clerk of the Privy Council, is considered to be the most powerful public servant in Canada.

The Toronto, Montreal and New York stock exchanges have begun investigations to determine whether there were irregularities in the takeover bid which might have allowed certain insiders to profit from the transaction. Hnatyshyn said these probes were insufficient in the Husky case because a government agency was involved in the bidding.

Happiness is an onion ring or a wet kiss. Mrs. Gordon Mitchell, top, still can't believe what she sees. Her husband placed expensive gold ring in shirt pocket two years ago while changing a tire and only later, noticed he'd lost it. Friday morning, Mrs. Mitchell was pulling onions from their vegetable garden and lo and behold, discovered missing ring with onion growing through it. Another missing object to turn up — this time after a seven-month absence — was Kemo, family pet of Dean McFarlen family, of 2177 Lafayette. Two-year-old animal was spotted riding in back of a pickup truck by the family. The truck's driver explained that he'd adopted Kemo after finding him wandering, in of all places, Duncan. Kemo's now back home and as picture shows, more than happy to see two-year-old buddy, Jes McFarlen, again.

Ottawa Tightens Terms for Parole

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian prisoners will become eligible for early release from penitentiary only through hard work and good behavior, beginning July 1.

Prisoners will no longer be automatically credited with one-quarter of their sentence, but will have to earn all remission, Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais announced Friday.

The new Prisons and Reformatories Act has been proclaimed and will become law July 1, Blais said in a news release. The act was adopted by Parliament last summer.

Under the new earned remission system, prisoners must earn all credits towards early release on parole. An identical system will be instituted in provincial reformatories.

Prisoners will earn 15 days for every month served "during which they apply themselves industriously," the news release said.

They can earn a maximum credit of one-third of their sentence, and will forfeit the credit irrevocably for misconduct.

NEW BREWERY OFFER

The Brewery Employers Labor Relations Association made a new offer to brewery workers in negotiations Thursday and further talks were postponed until today, a spokesman for the association said Friday.

Talks planned for Friday were postponed after union spokesman John Langley asked the association for a cooling-off period, the spokesman said.

He declined to disclose details of the new offer, the second made by the association.

Negotiators for both sides met for 15 hours until 4 a.m. Friday with major problems still unresolved.

The strike-lockout affects 1,200 production employees and about 200 distribution workers. In addition, at least a third of the 6,000 hotel and pub workers in the Vancouver area have been laid off or are working reduced hours because of the beer shortage.

MLAs GETTING CASE OF WIND-UP FEVER

With sunny skies bathing Victoria and the July 1 holiday weekend looming closer, wind-up fever has struck the legislature.

Both sides of the house co-operated last week to speed through 24 bills and pundits are now predicting Wednesday will be the last day of the session.

There are five bills still lacking third reading — forest, heroin, electoral boundaries, family relations and an omnibus bill tying up loose ends.

In addition, the highways ministry estimates still have to be approved by the legislature.

If the session does end Wednesday it will have lasted just under three months.

Last year, the session lasted a marathon seven months and saw nearly 90 bills introduced.

E&N 'Keeping Fare-Cuts Secret'

Users of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway service are victims of blatant price discrimination, an official of the United Transit Union (UTU) has charged.

John Cooper, head of the union's save-the-railway committee said a new rate structure featuring reduced fares and operational revisions should have gone into effect June 15.

The rate changes, engineered by the federal organization Via Rail, have already gone into effect in other parts of the country but are being kept secret here, Cooper said.

Cooper said the UTU, which made up of E&N employees, can back up its claim of the rate and organizational changes which CP has put into effect elsewhere.

Since a CP Rail application to end the E&N run was approved by the Canadian Transport Commission, two successful appeals have kept the line open — the latest being to extend the service to Dec. 13.

Cooper said the union discovered the new rate structure a couple of weeks ago when VIA Rail held a two-day briefing seminar for E&N operators.

CP Rail officials here have said they are unaware of the reduced rates and administrative changes for the E&N operation.

But Cooper says the complete list of rate changes are contained in a blue booklet issued by VIA Rail at the seminar.

Fare changes Cooper says are listed in the book include a Victoria to Duncan fare reduction from $4.15 to $3, a Victoria to Nanaimo drop from $7.60 to $4 and a decrease in the fare to Parksville from $10.50 to $6.

A complete one-way run from Victoria to Courtenay would be cut in price from from $14.45 to $8, according to the book, he said.

• Other specials include reduced fares for groups.

Cooper has called a public meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday in the Cowichan Valley Region board room to set up a Vancouver Island steering committee to work towards having the new reduced rates established on the E&N run.

COLORFUL FOLKFEST MONDAY

A large community festival full of color, music and the rhythms of dancing feet is poised to launch itself on the city Monday, as part of "Multi-Cultural Canada Week". It's the annual get-together entitled Folkfest and the Intercultural Village in which Centennial Square comes alive with the sounds and sights of the many lands that are now represented in this city.

Kiosks bearing displays of Victoria's ethnocultural communities will offer delicious international cuisine as well as entertainment in the square. Among them are Chinese, Dutch, East Indian, Esperanto, German, Hungarian, Norwegian, Polish, Scottish, Ukrainian, Filipino and Irish displays of handicrafts, costumes and foods.

Many of the Inter-Cultural Association's 35 ethnocultural group members will perform dances and songs and will purvey information daily throughout the period which lasts through July 3. In addition, local community performers such as the Victoria Concert Band and special guests, the Veselka Dancers from Burlington, Ont., will be performing.

Headline guests on Canada Day, July 1, will include Mary Lou Collins, cabaret and television artist whose credits include the Wayne and Shuster Show, two-hour long color specials written specifically for her and 24 appearances on the Merv Griffin Show. Also spotlighted will be French-Canadian singer Renee Claude, whose fine dusky voice and haunting personality have brought her international acclaim.

Each day of the Folkfest has a special designation, starting with "Opening Day" at which Premier Bill Bennett will perform the official ceremony. Tuesday will be "Children's Day"; Wednesday, "Senior and Handicapped Citizens' Day; Thursday, "Captain Cook Day"; Friday, "Black People's Day", and Sunday, July 2, "Canadian Unity Day".

Victorian Wins Top Dentist Award

Dr. John A. Thiessen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Thiessen of 1290 Pearce Crescent, received the Academy of Operative Dentistry Award upon graduation from the Faculty of Dentistry at the University of B.C.

The award is for outstanding achievement in operative dentistry during the clinical years of dental school.

Dr. Thiessen atended North Saanich Junior Secondary and graduated from Claremont Senior Secondary in 1970. He attended the University of Victoria, majoring in biology, before attending dental school. He will live in Victoria.

Indians' Fish Laws 'Chaos'

If B.C. Indians are allowed to ignore federal fishery regulations it will lead to chaos and the end of the salmon fishery, a member of the advisory committee to the International Salmon Commission said today.

"A valuable food resource will disappear from this continent," said Howard English.

"We will all be losers."

English was commenting on two motions passed by the executive of B.C. Indian Chiefs at a meeting held in Vancouver this week.

The first motion called on all band councils to begin preparing their own fishing regulations for their areas.

The second ask that bands start asssembling historical, and anthropological and legal evidence to support Indian rights to regulate fishing in B.C. rivers and creeks.

A statement issued by George Manuel, president of the Union, also urged Indians to ignore federal fishery regulations.

English said he is sympathetic to the claims of Indians but not to the extent that individual bands be allowed to draft their own fishing regulations.

"They (Indians) should have more say in the management of the resource and there needs should be looked after," he said.

"But the salmon fisheries cannot survive if it is not managed by a central authority and regulations strictly enforce.

"Man, through logging practices and pollution, has already destroyed half this food resource on the west coast of North America," he said.

English noted a recent survey found that coho and chinook salmon are declining.

"We are now considering steps to stop this decline but if Indians bands are allowed to ignore fishing regulations, there is no hope for the species," he said.

He pointed out there are other pressures on the fisheries resource, such as poaching and the use of illegal methods of fishing by some commercial and sport fishermen.

"The preservation of food resources deserve priorty over all other claims," he said.

The Vancouver meeting of Indian chiefs also pledged support to the Stuart-Trembleur band of north central B.C. which vowed to defy a federal regulation requiring Indian food fishermen to take out special new Indian food licences.

Fisheries officials have insisted on the new licence, claiming that large quantities of salmon caught to feed reserve residents have been sold on the black market for a big profit.

The union represents about 53,000 status Indians in B.C.

Riding Bill Rushed

The NDP was left wondering Friday if legislation to change electoral boundaries shouldn't go to Edmonton for the Commonwealth Games.

The Constitution Amendment Act set a record for speed, they said — a report on Tuesday, a bill on Wednesday and debate Friday.

Bill King whose Revelstoke-Slocan riding will be wiped out under the new legislation, launched a scathing attack against the government for the pressure he claims must have been put on Judge Larry Eckardt.

Eckardt is the author of the report which the new legislation has adopted to the letter.

It's nonsense for the NDP to be expected to not question the impartiality of Eckardt, a former Socred candidate in the 1960s, King said.

"I think the government is responsible for destroying that man's credibility in the province," the NDP house leader said.

By using Eckardt as an instrument to gerrymander the electoral boundaries, the government unfairly brought dishonor, suspicion and shame on his reputation.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said he was tired of the "squawking and bellyaching" from the opposition.

"If you've got something, go out and win the next election," he challenged the NDP.

Both Dave Stupich (Nanaimo) and Dennis Cocke (New Westminster) said there had to be politicking involved for the bill to remove Ladysmith from the Cowichan-Malahat riding and put it into the Nanaimo riding.

Cocke said the strong NDP area of Ladysmith was taken from Cowichan-Malahat in an effort to defeat the NDP member Barbara Wallace.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson and Tory leader Vic Stephen joined with the NDP in opposing the bill.

Second reading on the bill will continue Monday.

the weather

The upper circulation is moving a series of weak disturbances from the northern Gulf of Alaska to off the west coast of Vancouver Island and further southeastward. The first is expected on the north coast this afternoon and over the south coast overnight. The bulk of the associated cloud and precipitation will remain over the outer coasts. Some cloud spilling over into the B.C. Interior will result in variable cloudiness for the Interior regions. Temperatures will continue near normal.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON MEDICAL MANPOWER
TO THE MINISTER OF HEALTH
REQUEST FOR WRITTEN BRIEFS

The Advisory Committee on Medical Manpower (composed of members from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C., the B.C. Medical Association, the Ministry of Health, the Health Education Advisory Council, and two lay members) is currently examining physician distribution in order to ensure the availability of high quality care, and to study the most effective utilization of medical care services in British Columbia.

The Committee is reviewing the present and projected requirements for physicians, by region and by speciality; the means of meeting these requirements, and the various mechanisms which could be employed to improve the distribution of physicians.

The Committee, therefore, respectfully requests the submission of written briefs from all interested individuals, professional associations, and the public in general, on any matter pertinent to this study.

The time frame within which this Committee is working is comparatively short; therefore, it would be appreciated if all briefs were submitted by August 14, 1978 to:

Chairman,

Great White Shark Wins After 13-Hour Battle

MONTAUK, N.Y. (AP) — Not a swimmer was gobbled, nor a boat torn asunder, but "the great white shark of 1978" left a lot of astounded Long Islanders in its wake.

Jimmie Sweetman, 25, said he first plunged his harpoon into the shark near its dorsal fin at 7 a.m. Friday, and the crew of the fishing boat Ebb Tide estimated the weight of the fish at one ton.

At 8:43 p.m., when the shark broke the line and slipped away, the crew figured the creature weighed four tons and was 30 feet long—even though the fish was not sighted again after it was harpooned.

"The fish won fair and square," said John Sweetman, 46, captain of the Ebb Tide and father of Jimmie Sweetman. "That's part of the game. Sometimes I win; sometimes the fish wins."

Sweetman said the size of the fish was "unbelievable," a thought shared by many on shore.

"That's the problem, you're relying on a fisherman; that's what you're doing," said PO Gregg McClatchey, duty officer at the Shinnecock coast guard station.

"But," he said, "there appears no dispute they're involved with a very, very big fish."

Reports radioed from the crew of the Ebb Tide said the shark was first encountered 16 to 24 kilometres south-southeast of Montauk Point. The charter vessel was looking for sharks, and when the shark was on the line they cut the engine.

The boat's six passengers and two crew members were trying to tire the shark by letting it pull the 40-foot wooden boat—at speeds they said ranged up to five kilometres an hour.

John Sweetman said the shark turned the boat around three times, tossing the vessel around "like a piece of soap in a bathtub."

"We were nothing to the fish. He just played with us."

When news of the shark reached the outside world, the Ebb Tide's catch became a media event. Seven other boats, loaded with cameras and reporters, went to the scene, and helicopters and airplanes hovered overhead. But the shark never came to the surface.

The Ebb Tide was about 50 kilometres south of Montauk Point when the nylon line broke where it met the steel cable, allowing the shark to join Moby Dick and the sharks of Jaws and Jaws II as fugitives in the briny deep.

Herbicide Delay 'Likely To Scuttle Program'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Protestors opposed to a provincial government plan to use the herbicide 2,4-D in the Okanagan Lakes say they consider the extension of a temporary injunction against the application as a major victory in their campaign.

Meanwhile, environment ministry officials said they are disappointed with the British Columbia Supreme Court ruling and feel it could jeopardize the campaign against Eurasian milfoil.

Justice Harry McKay Friday extended until Tuesday a temporary injunction stopping the provincial government from using the herbicide in the lakes. The extension came just 30 minutes before a temporary injunction granted Thursday was due to expire.

Peter Chataway, a spokesman for Greenpeace which organized a protest of canoeists as the application started Thursday, said the decision was a major victory and could be the first in a series of decisions that will stop the program completely.

Government biologist Dr. Peter Newroth agreed that the decision could jeopardize the program. The application must begin immediately if it is to be effective against the rapidly-growing aquatic weed, he said.

Justice McKay said he was extending the injunction to allow members of the West Coast Environmental Association time to serve a notice of the petition on parties involved in the dispute and to prepare their case.

Lewis said about 20 acres have already been treated with the herbicide. Opponents to the program claim 2,4-D will pollute the area water supply and could produce genetic mutations and cancer.

RECALL RULES STUDIED

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government may tighten regulations to require Canadian auto manufacturers to make mandatory recall of defective cars and cost-free repairs, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Friday.

Lang was questioned about an American study of Ford Motor Co. fuel tanks to determine whether Fords built from 1960 through 1976 have the same fire danger that led to the recall of 1,5 million Pintos and Bobcats.

New Democrat Arnold Peters asked Lang why Canada did not adopt laws similar to those in the United States requiring mandatory recalls. He also sought assurances that unsafe defects would be repaired without cost to the consumer.

"We will be looking for appropriate changes in the legislation in order to give us the necessary power if the motor company refuses to carry out what seems to be its obvious responsibility," Lang told the House of Commons.

Ghost of Flying Phil

Though Phil Gaglardi may have left B.C. politics almost six years ago, he left the political scene a legacy it could well do without. That legacy is a positive paranoia about the use of government aircraft by cabinet ministers and MLAs.

Nearly a decade ago Gaglardi was forced out of politics when it was proven that he had greatly abused his privileges to fly for free on the government planes. Since then, no subject has been more liable to scandal-mongering than ministers using planes.

No party has any monopoly on the paranoia — when the NDP was government, the Socreds watched them like hawks for signs of abuse; now that the Socreds are back, the NDP are equally on the lookout. The press continues to feed the fires by printing annually the compilations of statistics showing which cabinet ministers have flown the most and to where.

In the past week, however, the paranoia seems to have reached the point of total absurdity with charges, countercharges and defences so heated that one would think the MLAs were dealing at least with a case of bribery and corruption, if not murder.

It began with accusations that some of Premier Bennett's ministers were abusing the government planes by using them to fly home to their constituencies at weekends, whether or not they were on government business.

Bennett could have provided a calm, reasonable answer, making public the current guidelines for ministers using planes (there must be some guidlines somewhere), discussing whether or not the various charges of abuse were valid. He might even have contributed a tiny bit to the political maturity of the province by pointing out the paranoia that surrounds the use of planes and looking for ways to get rid of that paranoia while still maintaining procedures to ensure that use of the air fleet is not overdone.

But the premier did not choose to do that. Instead, in an inordinately clumsy attempt at revenge, he attempted to "leak" to one Vancouver newspaper a story that suggested abuse former premier Dave Barrett had abused government aircraft by having his wife travel on them with him six times in 39 months.

Not improbably, the fact that the premier was the source of the story came out, and things got even worse. Bennett's own backbenchers were publicly deserting him

At the moment there isn't anyone who's looking good in the whole mess. But perhaps some good could come from it if all MLAs realize that nothing constructive can happen from a wave of charges about flying on planes.

Would it be too much to hope that an all-party legislative committee could be asked to examine the whole question of ministers' and MLAs' use of government aircraft and to draw up regulations or guidelines governing the use of planes?

And would it be too much to hope that when that task was finished, members of all parties would accept them and let rest in peace the ghost of Phil Gaglardi that now haunts the legislative corridors at the mention of the word airplane?

The Squeaky Wheel

The old maxim, "the squeaky wheel gets the grease," has seldom been better demonstrated than it was at Wednesday night's meeting of the Victoria-Saanich Mount Douglas park committee.

At issue was whether the committee should reverse an earlier decision and allow the Victoria Motorcycle Club to hold its annual hill climb in the park despite complaints of noise and environmental damage. In 1977 the club received the permit with a warning that it might not be issued again, and in April committee members decided to follow through on that by refusing the 1978 permit.

But since that time, the motorcycle club has become a very squeaky wheel indeed. Members wrote letters to the Victoria and Saanich aldermen who make up the committee, explaining the club's point of view. They wrote letters to the editor. They collected support from former members. And, in a final gesture, they gathered 2,500 names on a petition supporting the hill climb in the park, many of them from neighbors who might be expected to object to the noise and erosion.

As one alderman muttered in the corridor, in something of an understatement, "It's pretty difficult to oppose something when you're faced with a petition of 2,500 people supporting it."

So the aldermen, citing motherhood phrases about the responsibility of the club itself (which no one ever doubted) and the need to support healthy activities for our citizens, changed their minds and agreed to allow the climb, adding once more that this might — or might not — be the last year.

One cannot help but wonder what they will do if next year opponents of the climb learn their lesson and also acquire 2,500 signatures on a petition opposing the motorcycles.

JAMES RESTON

Peculiar Debate Going On

President Jimmy Carter, Fidel Castro: who's telling the truth on Zaire?

WASHINGTON — This city is now engaged in a most peculiar foreign policy debate, not about whether the nation's strategic arms policy, its African policy and its Middle Eastern and Chinese policies are right or wrong, but about whether President Carter or Fidel Castro is telling the truth on the invasion of Zaire and about whether Secretary of State Cyrus Vance or Zbigniew Brzezinski is up or down as the principal foreign policy advisor to President Carter.

"This tells us something about the level of our public discourse," Henry Kissinger remarked to The New York Times recently. "All the evidence is on the president's side, yet here we are engaged in a public argument questioning the honor of the president of the United States."

Washington has always had a tendency to personalize foreign policy blame its troubles, real or imagined, on conflicting advice by the president's principal advisers, and accuse the president of wobbling inconsistently between the hard-liners and the moderates. But seldom to such silly extremes as now.

Who to Blame?

The cartoonist's picture of Washington presented to the world recently is of a bewildered president shoved in one direction by Brzezinski (the tough guy in this scenario), and tugged in the other direction by Vance, with the politicians cheering and jeering on the side.

This vision fascinates not only journalists but foreign ambassadors in Washington, who have lately been writing endless dispatches about the so-called "power struggle" around the White House, but it's a caricature, exaggerating the obvious, part true but wildly distorted.

Of course there are differences between the president's advisers and always have been since the days of Madison and Jefferson. President Franklin Roosevelt thought the whole decision-making process depended on the clash of conflicting ideas, and he not only invited but provoked controversy within his own cabinet.

Vance and Brzezinski do differ on their approaches to the foreign problems of the nation, because they are different men, with different backgrounds, intellects and personalities. Vance is a careful and experienced lawyer, with a wide vision of the world, but a tendency to handle one case at a time.

Brzezinski is a historian and a teacher, who is not indifferent to diplomatic tactics, but tends to think in wider concepts, and wants to fit each day-to-day tactical decision into a wider strategy of where this will all lead in the years ahead.

There are other differences, some of them more geographical than philosophical. Brzezinski is usually here in his office in the sunny northwest corner of the White House next to the president, while Vance is usually aloft, somewhere between the continents.

By official count, an average of 360 pages of memoranda a day are addressed to the president by his departments and agencies on foreign, intelligence and security matters. These come to Brzezinski as the president's assistant for national security affairs, who cuts them down to about 80 pages that in his judgement have to go to the president. Obviously his cuts do not amuse the original authors.

The surprising thing is not that there is some conflict between Brzezinski, monitoring the flow of information from state, defence and the CIA to the president, but that there is so little. Brzezinski meets once a week with the secretaries of state and defence, whenever Vance is in town, to go over their common problems, and despite the gossip to the contrary, they have established a trusting relationship with one another and with the president that is obviously not complete but relatively remarkably good.

There have apparently been two major differences between Vance and Brzezinski, but differences of degree and timing rather than principle. Brzezinski was more eager than Vance and Andrew Young, Carter's friend and ambassador to the United Nations, to make a big issue out of the Soviet-Cuban military intrusion into Africa. And Vance originally opposed, though he later approved, Brzezinski's mission to Peking.

But in spite of this, if the information here is correct, there is no major "power struggle" or "personal antagonism" within this administration on the major lines of foreign policy.

Differences of tactics, emphasis and timing, yes — and these are important — but the differences between Vance and Brzezinski seem mild compared to the differences in the past between former secretary of state Dean Rusk and undersecretary of state George all over Vietnam, or the brawls between Henry Wallace and Jesse Jones under Roosevelt, or between Dean Acheson and other cabinet members under Truman.

Who Lied, Didn't?

These present disputes within the cabinet, and especially between the cabinet and the National Security Council, are not only inevitable but maybe healthy. If we had agreement within the cabinet and "consistency" of policy in a shifting and ambiguous world, the chances are that things might be even worse than they really are.

So there is disagreement about who lied on the Cubans in the Zaire, and who's ahead between Vance and Brzezinski, but on the main questions of arms control, Europe, the Soviet Union, the Middle East, China and Japan, there is a remarkable degree of unity here. The Carter administration may be confused about its priorities and its policies, but it is not confused about Castro, or divided by Vance and Brzezinski.

And there is no doubt about one final thing: as usual, members of the cabinet and the White House staff are trying to persuade the president to their ways of thinking, but nobody is in doubt here on the central point that President Carter, though he may veer from one side to another, is still clearly in charge.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

Downtown Development: Planners Give Other View

A few weeks ago in this space we discussed comments made by Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf about the need for future development in the downtown core. Bawlf talked quite passionately about his fears that downtown could die entirely, as it has in some other North American cities, if efforts are not made quickly to rejuvenate and upgrade it. He warned that this would have disastrous consequences on the entire economy of the Victoria area.

Since that time Bawlf and his task force on downtown Victoria development have taken their concerns directly to city council, and city manager Jim Bramley now is looking at the committee's request for the city to undertake a major market study of the retail potential of the downtown core.

Bawlf's eventual aim is the establishment of a third major department store downtown as well as general expansion of the retail opportunities through such measures as creation of the proposed new food market on the old Reid Centre site.

Virtually everyone agrees that preservation of the downtown core is a worthwhile goal, but it is not so apparent that his idea of massive retail redevelopment is needed or appropriate to meet that goal. Some interesting arguments against redevelopment come in a 1977 study by the planning department of the Capital Regional District entited Commerical Facilities in the Victoria Metropolitan Area.

When the study was made public almost a year ago, its conclusions about downtown development were largely ignored, since the idea of major retail expansion there had not yet been discussed. At the time the study became better known for its recommendation that Tillicum-Burnside was probably not a suitable site for a regional shopping centre, a recommendation later adopted by the regional board.

However, the study looks in some depth at the whole question of retail development in Victoria and provides many statistics on market patterns — the sort of data Bawlf has suggested is not available to merchants considering opening a new store downtown.

The major conclusion of the report was that: "An additional 110,000 to 350,000 square feet of department store type merchandise floor space is required by the Victoria metropolitan area by 1981, and that this space [should] be allocated primarily among regional centres in Saanich and the western community [Langford, Colwood, etc.]."

The square footage mentioned is not much different from that suggested by Bawlf, but the recommendation as to where it should be located is directly opposite to his ideas — putting most of it into the downtown core.

During preparation of the study, the city of Victoria apparently expressed concern that new suburban shopping areas, particularly the one then proposed for Tillicum, would compete adversely with the downtown core. In reply, the regional planners said that the central core now contains 41 per cent of all the retail floor space in the entire metropolitan area. The city of Victoria, though not necessarily the downtown core, also has 88 per cent of all the service-commerical floor space in the area and 83 per cent of all the tourist accommodation space.

"Thus, the City of Victoria possesses such diversity in terms of the range of services provided that an addition of approximately 350,000 square feet of department store type floor space throughout the Victoria metropolitan area, which includes the western community, will not adversely affect it in terms of competition since this diversity can never be duplciated in district or regional centres of the sizes visualized for metropolitan Victoria.

"The Capital Regional District planning department's recommendations are designed to distribute additional commercial space in the metropolitan area specifically in Saanich and the western community, in a manner commensurate with population growth and service requirements."

Translated out of planners' jargon, this means that new retail space should go to Saanich or Langford where the population is growing quickly and demanding services. Residents there should not have to go downtown every time they need to buy a tube of toothpaste. At the same time the planners say that many specialized stores and services will still require such a large market area that they will have to continue to be located in downtown Victoria, thus, in their view, ensuring the survival of the downtown retail core.

It is to be hoped that Bramley and city council will evaluate these regional theories as well as Bawlf's concerns before going ahead to spend taxpayers' money on a downtown market study that perhaps isn't necessary at all. — B.McL.

No Right to Yell

The NDP is causing an uproar because it is unhappy with the results of the royal commission on electoral reform. I attended and made a submission to the hearing in Nanaimo; the only other submission was one from the local government agent, who is also the registrar of voters. He was also the only other person present, apart from the staff of the royal commission. There was no one in the public gallery, no newspaper reporters, no radio news reporters, no sign of anyone from the NDP.

If they sit on their butts and do not make submissions to the royal commission, they cannot logically complain about the results. — Alf Flett, 6540 Dover Road, Nanaimo.

Carr Art Centre

We have been much too prone to just accept the benefits around us without considering the thought, time and labor given voluntarily to the development of our communities. We acknowledge with gratitude the praiseworthy deeds of many pioneer builders, but we do not always realize that the same illustrious acts are being committed by fellow citizens today, unheralded and unsung.

Such is the case in the operation of The Emily Carr Arts Centre, a valuable exponent in the fields of the visual arts in this province. For the past six years Mr. and Mrs. William Bowie and their worthy and untiring secretary, Mrs. Janet Gallant, have been devoting voluntarily their time and labor to the building of this active art centre, in memory of this province's famous artist and writer, Emily Carr, and centred in the house of Miss Carr's birth at 207 Government Street.

Art classes are held here every day of the week — children's classes three mornings and adults other days and evenings. Free exhibition space is offered artists from all parts of the province, to enable them to bring their works before the public. Visitors wishing to see this historic site are graciously guided through the various rooms, and told the interesting story of the Carr family and of Emily's career and her great contribution to the arts.

The aggressive thought — what am I going to get out of this deal? — is very prevalent in the world today, and can sometimes even seem to thwart the worthy thought: what can I contribute in the building of my country?

As individuals we can do much by upholding all that is merited in our own communities, so strengthening the peace of the world. — Miss Barbara E. Mather, 9-1069 Southgate Street.

Millstones

The way to crush the middle class is to grind them between the millstones of taxation and inflation.

Lenin

And how our improvident governments are grinding. Are Canadians so foolish, inept, or dishonest that half of their earnings must go to govern them? I think not, but wonder when people will react, and say we have had enough of government and governing? We cannot afford any more, yet are faced with property tax increases which exceed 25 per cent this year. And all from a provincial government that professes to retrench and restrain.

The Socred promise of bringing consistency and reason to the jungle of property assessment and taxes, results in the largest increase in taxes ever. (It is the same government that practised restraint by increasing sales tax from five per cent to seven per cent.) The province blames the municipalities, who blame the school boards, who blame the teachers — who know it is every level of government.

A tax revolt is needed — who will lead it? Have we the courage to follow or the foolishness to follow more inflation? — R. A. Sutherland, Victoria.

Gov't, Monster

The multi-headed governmental monster is about to get some more heads — very expensive heads as usual. Why have a Senate or House of Federation? Their powers are minimal. Government says cut down, cut down, cut down expenses every where, except in government. "Old Bill's not putting up next election — did a good job you know — think we should put him in the Senate." So it goes on.

Then closer to home, if Panama can be called closer to home, Sam Bawlf has given us dutiful B.C. taxpayers a present of a yacht on the rocks to commemorate Mrs. McCarthy's monumental "Captain Cook-up." Oh the glory of the elected member who represents us! Please, people out there, think with common sense, surely there is something we can do to save this beautiful land from such a bunch of nincompoops. — Peter Stuart, 308 - 803 Esquimalt Road.

Bluster Won't Work On the Russians

New York Times

"I think there will be less Red scare in the coming weeks."

That remark by an administration official is an appropriate epitaph for one of the strangest episodes in Jimmy Carter's presidency — the experiment with what could be called the New Toughness in foreign policy.

It developed while I was abroad for a month, so it struck me with particular force when I returned: The strident tone of the administration's voice in talking about the Soviet Union and the Communist threat. Now the stridency has abated. What remains is for Carter — and the rest of us — to learn something from the episode.

A first point is that it is unconvincing to react to Soviet behavior as if one were discovering sin for the first time. The U.S.S.R. has been a powerful adversary of ours in the world for a long time, and its standards of humanity have been nasty. To react to such realities as if they were new is to appear ignorant or silly.

The Russians "maintain a vitriolic worldwide propaganda campaign against the United States," Zbigniew Brzezinski said on NBC's Meet the Press. They are carrying out a massive buildup of conventional arms and are trying to "encircle and penetrate the Middle East." Yes. So what else is new.?

The most peculiar business has been the attempt to make a great East-West point out of the rebel invasion of Zaire's Shaba province. The Cubans in Angola may or may not have tried to stop the invasion, but everyone knows that tribal rivalries in the area are the fundamental issue. Is it our view that the Cubans have a duty to suppress them? If so, what of our own record?

In the Kissinger era, the U.S. tried to keep the Portuguese in Angola and then covertly sent arms to the losing side in the struggle for local power. That inept move brought the Cubans in. Since then we have kept Zaire afloat while it supported a continuing guerrilla war against Angola. We have foolishly refused to come to terms with an Angolan government that works easily enough with the Gulf Oil Corp. Who is destabilizing whom?

BRZEZINSKI . . . a man of extremes

Of course, the U.S. has to worry about any sudden jump in communist ambitions in Africa, as in the Middle East. Carter's policy has wisely been directed at trying to deal with the underlying African problems, notably white supremacy in Southern Africa. Why suddenly encourage the American people to think it is all a Communist plot?

An even more puzzling question is why the administration should have tried to link Zaire, even by implication, with the strategic arms limitation talks. No serious issue in the world can possibly depend on developments in that post-colonial disaster area. And nothing could be more serious than SALT.

The Soviets are not likely to be impressed by bluster. More important, such rhetoric as "the code of detente" blurs what have to be discriminating choices for the U.S. We are right to be worried about Soviet intentions. But we have to understand that some accommodations may help us — notably, SALT. In such a situation, presidents and their aides must be scrupulous in their rhetoric. They must avoid legitimizing hysteria.

Brzezinski has had the fame and the blame for this episode. Soviet diplomats are saying that it confirms their view of him as "anti-Soviet." I think his fault is a different one. He is a man of enthusiasms, of extremes. He has many good ideas, but seems, sometimes, to lack a centre of gravity.

The moral for Carter and his administration is that, in foreign policy, steadiness is all. But there is a warning here for the Russians, too. They may complain of U.S. attempts to "link" such disparate issues as Africa and SALT. But some linkage is a fact of U.S. opinion. If the Soviets proceed to try to imprison Anatoly Shcharansky, for example, I think no president could save a SALT treaty.

Denver Tries Free Buses To Reduce Air Pollution

THE ECONOMIST

Denver has just beaten Los Angeles to the unenviable position of being the most polluted city in the United States. A year's monitoring of air standards by Colorado's department of health ended last week without a single "good" day being recorded; on more than one day in three the air violated federal safety standards. For a city that has boomed on the boast of being a fine place to live, nestled at the foot of the unspoilt Rockies, close to ski resorts and the open spaces of the west, the vile pall of smog that hangs over Denver is becoming a real threat to its economy.

Denver is now the fourth most rapidly growing city in the country and the undoubted centre of the Rocky Mountain west; its pollution is the product both of its growth and of the very climate that has attracted people to it. During the winter the cold air spills off the Rockies, clamping an atmospheric lid over the Denver basin and trapping carbon monoxide in a concentrated bubble some 300 feet over the city; in the summer the bright sunlight activates the gases from car exhaust to produce an intolerable level of ozone that stings the eyes and damages the lungs.

Some 90 per cent of the air pollution is caused by cars, of which there are over 1 million in this city of 1.5 million people. Thus the city has had to mount a campaign against the privately-owned car. This is a particular irony in a town that now rivals Houston as a centre for the oil industry; more than 1,000 oil companies rent about half of all the available office space in downtown Denver.

In order to coax people from their cars Denver is developing an imaginative and aggressive system of bus transport that has been attracting national attention. Travel on all buses in the metropolitan area is free, apart from two hours of peak travel in the morning and afternoon. Since the scheme started in February the buses, which are modern, comfortable, painted white with tinted windows, have attracted 67 per cent more riders, almost all of whom would have previously taken a car to work. This year some 40 million passengers will hop on Denver's buses, well over double the level five years ago. The scheme has been so successful that businesses, schools, and government agencies (one in five people in Denver work for the government) are starting to stagger their work hours to allow their staff to take advantage of it.

This week, Mountain Bell, the telephone company that employs 6,000 people in Denver, started a program to encourage people to take the bus: discounts on the peak fare of 50 cents, which will be paid for out of higher garage charges for those who drive to work. The federal department of transport, intrigued by an experiment that it feels is setting a national precedent, has agreed to provide half of the $6.8 million that the scheme will cost in each full year.

Offering free fares in fact costs the bus authority relatively little money. Since the total cost of carrying a passenger is about $1.50 a ride, the 25 cents that was recouped by the old standard fare made only a minimal contribution anyway. The Denver bus authority raises most of its money in a novel way that may also be copied elsewhere in the nation: a ½ per cent sales tax in the six counties which it serves was voted to the authority by the public in 1973. This generates about $37 million a year, and gives the bus company the freedom to be independent and imaginative.

But the free fare system has, predictably, run into a number of problems. The warmth of the buses and the comfort of the seats has attracted drunks and vagrants who just ride them all day. Vandalism on the 600 buses has almost doubled since free fares were started: in April there were 140 instances (including a number of attacks on the drivers) costing some $10,000; in May an entire busload of passengers was driven not to their destination but straight to the police station for arrest. Not surprisingly the bus drivers complain that the new system means extra work and strain.

The federal government, impressed by the need to help Denver fight its pollution and anxious to have a "laboratory" to study the problems of mass transport that are afflicting all America's newer cities (Houston, for example, has virtually no public transport system at all), has already given the bus authority $200 million in capital grants. Some of this money will be spent building 15 huge car parks 15 miles from downtown Denver to which commuters may drive their cars from home to pick up a shuttle bus into the city. This month the department of transport, which a few years ago refused Denver the funds to build an underground railway system, is expected to make a further $5 million grant for another experimental project: Denver's major downtown street — 16th Street — will be paved over for 1½ miles and converted into a tree-lined pedestrain mall. Two lanes will be left open for small battery-powered buses that will be free, will stop at each block and will run every 70 seconds, shuttling between two large bus terminals from which passengers can be taken to the suburbs.

With 10 new high-rise office blocks now under construction in the city of Denver, and with more than 20,000 housing starts made in the city last year, it is not a scheme that can afford to fail. Otherwise, Denver will choke itself to death.

Remember the Bad Old Days?

By RICHARD COHEN
The Washington Post

There is very little I can remember about her. She was short, I know that, and she wore gray suits, I think I remember that, and she had a high, sing-song voice and she was also old, near retirement, actually. She was a teacher and there was something else I remember about her. She was the one who taught me not to go into the water during my period.

Time to explain. The college I attended had once been for women only. It began admitting men back around the Second World War and, by the time I went there, the policy was hardly new anymore, but this old teacher, this old hygiene teacher, had never changed her curriculum. She taught as if the class was all women although her eyes could tell her differently and so my notebook was full of hints on what to do and not to do if and when I got my period. I will never forget the expression on my mother's face when she read my notes one day.

This teacher was hopeless. She was senile or close to it, an insult to us all. But the worst insult was the position of the administration that backed her up and supported her and allowed her to go on teaching. She had tenure, we were told when we complained, and nothing could be done. We complained a lot in those days. We complained when a daffy French teacher separated us by sexes, leaving an empty row between the men and women, and we really hollered when she administered a midterm exam that no one passed.

She was near retirement, we were told. She had tenure, we were told. We were told, in essence, to buzz off.

I bring this all up now because there is a wave of nostalgia sweeping the nation, everyone hankering to go back to the good old days — the three R's and all that. We want to go back to the days when kids could read and write and add some numbers — the days before relevance and grade inflation and majoring in subjects that would give Nicholas Murray Butler heartburn. I bring this up now because I thought the old days were terrible and because some people have apparently forgotten the reasons for the reforms and the reasons some kids on some campuses rioted or sat-in or acted in a beastly way. The reason was that they were being treated in a beastly way.

I bring this up now because my recollection of things doesn't jibe at all with the rose-colored remembrances of others.

I really do remember irrelevant courses, truly irrelevant courses. I have already submitted the hygiene course as exhibit A, but there were others, one of them being a horror called Speech in which you had to stand before the class and make a perfect fool of yourself. It was wonderful for the kids who stuttered.

I remember other things as well. I remember college administrators and faculties that truly did not give a damn about the students. I remember people being told they could not register for courses required for graduation because all the seats were filled and I remember others being told they had to take afternoon courses even though they worked in the afternoon and there were morning courses available.

I remember on one occasion a student punched a teacher after being barred from a class for administrative reasons. I remember all that. I'm sure the teacher does, too.

I remember an art appreciation class taught by a teacher whose voice could not carry to the back of the room and I remember teachers and administrators telling you of inviolate rules and regulations that you would find later were broken willy-nilly for athletes. I remember teachers who couldn't teach and courses that had no reason to be in the curriculum and I remember, especially, being asked as one of the school's scholarship students to help conduct freshman orientation the next year. The invitation came from the dean's office. I had to decline. The same dean's office had just flunked me out.

This is not to suggest we have not gone too far, that there is not something worthwhile in requiring the core curriculum and strict standards and an understanding of what it means to be educated. This is not to say, either, that in the name of relevance a lot of silly courses have not sneaked into the curriculum and that in the name of student democracy or something things have not generally gone to hell. I mean, we have become too lax across the board — from kindergarten to college — and that is all there is to it.

But there was a reason for these reforms. There was a reason, too, for the sit-ins and the riots and the things that happened on the nation's campuses during the 1960s. I remember thinking at the time that we who had come a bit early were fools to have accepted blindly what we were given — not to have balked, rebelled even. The old days, after all, were something of a mixed bag. I learned my Aristotle, I'll have to say that. But I also learned some other things as well.

I learned, for instance, not to wear a girdle during my period.

One Out of Three Worth Your While

In the seemingly endless flow of books on birds these days, three more found their way to my desk recently. Unlike the three I discussed a few weeks ago — which were about birds in British Columbia — the latest batch has a continental backdrop.

The first to show, Owls by Day and Night, by Hamilton Tyler and Don Phillips, is a product of Naturegraph Publishers of California and sells for $6.95 paper and $10.95 cloth. The second, Donald S. Heintselman's North American Ducks, Geese and Swans, was published by Musson and retails at $19.50.

I'd like to be able to say these two books are a welcome addition to the already extensive array of books on owls and waterfowl. Unfortunately, I can't. They add little new to their subjects and don't handle them as well as several others have.

Tyler and Phillips, in Owls by Day and Night, do the predictable by discussing their subject in all its now-familiar facets — identification, the place of owls in the order of things, what makes owls what they are, and the usual individual discussion of the natural history of each species. Tyler did the writing; Phillips, the illustrations. Each species is portrayed in color and many line drawings are also included.

If Owls by Day and Night offers anything new it may be found among the personal experiences of the authors with the birds they are writing about. Unfortunately, only occasionally are these refreshingly different, or presented in an exciting and stimulating fashion. In fact, I got the impression that "I read it all before, somewhere."

As for Heintselman's Ducks, Geese and Swans, even the title has a familiar ring to it. Worse still, less than a third of the book actually deals with the subject of the title. The rest is about the waterfowl refuges of the United States. Four appendices add information on accidental visitors to this continent, wildlife refuges in Canada, conservation organizations; and building nest boxes for Wood Ducks.

In the 72 pages devoted to the waterfowl themselves, their indentification, study, plumages and migration are also discussed. With close to 50 species to describe, it is obvious that all these subjects get rather short shrift in the space allotted.

But there is a turn for the better when Heintselman leaves waterfowl behind and starts on waterfowl refuges. Here, it seems, he has the chance to produce a useful and needed book on a neglected aspect of North America's love affair with birds.

Unfortunately, again, we receive only intriguing peeks into the subject of refuges, with only brief descriptions of each and a few maps to whet our appetites for more. If Don Heintselman had opted for refuges and ignored the waterfowl — which are, again, much more fully covered in many other fine books on the subject — both he and his readers would have been better served.

My third book, Colin Harrison's Nests, Eggs, and Nestlings of North American Birds, has one distinct advantage over the other two — its subject. Few books are written these days that cover this essential, but often ignored, side of the lives of birds.

Nests, Eggs, and Nestlings is published by Collins and retails for $12.95, hard cover. It is a sequel to a similar work by Harrison on the birds of Europe and continues a fine tradition of excellent field guides put out by Collins.

Each species has its preferred habitat, its nest and breeding season, its eggs, incubation period (where known) and nestlings described. Dozens of line drawings of typical nesting situations enliven the book, as do the paintings of 147 nestings by Philip Burton. These last, alone, are the most appealing aspect of the book. Another section provides colored photographs of the eggs of the species discussed.

One criticism of Nests, Eggs, and Nestlings might be the lack of information on breeding range. This omission requires that readers either know their subjects well enough not to require the information, or that they have access to one of the many other field guides that provide it.

In this day of preservation and protection, many will question the propriety of a book which seems to encourage activities that might add more disturbance to the already harassed lives of birds. It is a fair question and both the author and publisher find its answer, at the very outset of the book, in a set of sound rules relating to any kind of study that could disrupt breeding activities.

Which probably makes Nests, Eggs, and Nestlings a specialist's book, but it is one specialist's book that I think many birders will want to have.

"upstairs, downstairs all around the house," it's . . .

DILLINGHAM GETS IRANIAN PROJECT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dillingham Corp. Canada Ltd. has announced that its subsidiary company, Dillingham Canada International Ltd., has been awarded a preliminary contract to supply project management personnel for the construction of a large pulp and paper mill in north-east Iran.

The estimated cost of the pulp and paper and woods facility, owned by Mazandran Wood and Paper Industries Ltd., is between $300 million and $400 million, Dillingham said in a statement. It is scheduled for completion in about 3½ years.

The company said that as well as management, it will also supply supervisory construction workers and others with special skills.

Payroll Cheque Forgery Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five Vancouver-area men have been charged with conspiracy in an alleged province-wide payroll cheque-cashing scheme involving more than $250,000, police said Friday.

The charges follow a raid on a city home in May, during which police seized payroll cheques and a mechanical cheque writing machine.

Police said Joseph Dean Maday, 21, James Joseph Dupont, 39, both of Vancouver, Roderick Phillips, 27, of Burnaby, and Randolph McKenize, 27, of Port Coquitlam, were charged with conspiracy Friday. Police were still looking for Hedore Duguay, 33.

Maday and Dupont were earlier charged with possessing forgery equipment, police said.

Park Walks Open

Provincial parks summer programs started today in Goldstream Park and continue daily through to the end of August.

The programs include displays of natural history in the Freeman King Nature House as well as a naturalists' program at the Meeting Place in the park campgrounds involving guided walks, talks and slide shows.

The Nature House, situated near the park entrance off the Island Highway, will be open to the public 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays to Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Walks will leave the Meeting Place behind camp 75 every day at 10 a.m. Parks employees will give talks on the natural features and history of the area at 7:30 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

On Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays, slides will be shown at dusk.

The public is invited to take part in any of the programs free of charge.

Region Split over Sooke

The Capital Regional District's board will consider applying for supplementary letters patent that would allow Sooke to have an economic development commission — but there's a good chance that move will be defeated.

A motion by director John Mika to table the action was narrowly defeated by a 3-3 vote at Friday's meeting of the regional planning and economic development committee.

A Saanich alderman, Mika pointed out that Sooke is eligible for provincial funding for such a commission, the rest of the regional district is not.

He noted that unlike Saanich, Sooke would be able to plan its future without having to get regional district approval.

"I don't believe in making fish of one and fowl of another," he said, adding that Saanich had received shabby treatment from the regional district.

He was referring to the regional district's insistence that Saanich come up with good reasons why, at the municipality's request, the 120 acres at Royal Oak earmarked for industrial park in the regional plan should be downzoned to single-family homes.

North Saanich mayor George Westwood said: "First-class service to unorganized areas continues to discourage them to control their own destinies. If we're going to do something it should be regional."

Sooke director Charles Perkins pointed out that the recent referendum resulted in Sooke residents turning down incorporation by a 5-1 vote.

"On behalf of the community of Sooke I would urge the committee to consider this very seriously," he said. "The community needs this sort of incentive. It would be wrong to delay action, resulting in the inability of the board to get on with its obligations."

The committee decided to have two briefs presented at the next board meeting, one covering the entire regional district, the other restricting itself to Sooke.

Later in the meeting it was decided to write to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips and request that the regional district, not just Sooke, be eligible for funding.

Regional planner Peter Hammer noted that the picture had changed since the original guidelines had been drawn up. He said difficulty in getting industrial land, threat of transportation problems and high taxes created a climate of uncertainty, discouraging investors.

Chairman Murray Glazier said he could not see why Nanaimo should be eligible and not Victoria.

"The provincial government's efforts to regionalize and decentralize services — that change alone is, perhaps, sufficient reason for reconsidering their original thinking," Mika said.

RIP-RAP FOR SPIT

Sooke regional director Charles Perkins said Friday the provincial government has agreed to rip-rap Whiffin Spit but has not said when the work of spreading rocks along the tide-line to prevent erosion will begin. He said the government is also considering handing over the land to the Capital Regional District for use as a community park. Various Sooke community organizations have asked for something to be done to stop the erosion of Whiffin Spit.

Centre Funding Queried

The chairman of the Capital Regional District's regional planning and economic development committee will meet Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf to discuss funding for a proposed convention centre-performing arts auditorium.

Murray Glazier made the decision Friday after director John Mika said he is concerned by approaches made to Vancouver by Bawlf and Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy, offering finacial assistance for a convention centre there.

"That would surely knock our chances of a convention centre down to zilch," Mika said.

Glazier told the committee Victoria cannot be compared to Vancouver, which has enough hotel rooms to justify a large convention centre.

VISITOR CENTRE ATTACKED

The Capital Regional District will tell Highways Minister Alex Fraser a tourist information centre he plans for Portage Inlet is contrary to settlement plans for View Royal.

The minister will be told application will have to be made to have the plan amended.

Fraser will also be asked to stop work on the site immediately.

Al Beasley, regional director for View Royal, told the committee that a tourist information centre would be better located at Gold Stream, where visitors from up-Island could see it before they reached the city and bypassed tourist facilities in View Royal, Colwood and Langford.

What makes this 504 driver so enviably in control?

There's no mystery to it...

He has complete confidence
As he drives, he is confident that he and his passengers can rely on maximum safety. He knows his 504 will respond effortlessly to whatever demands his skill makes on it. Its traction is impeccable, even at high speeds.

He is totally relaxed
Wrapped in beautifully designed comfort, how could he be anything else? There are no irritating noises to distract him. His concentration is complete; his enjoyment total.

He feels 'at home'
His 504 welcomes him. He and his 504 were made for one another. And parking is no problem. His 504 is a masterpiece of perfectly utilized space. On longer trips, the trunk can easily accommodate those unnecessary, but essential 'extras' that make all the difference.

He's perceptive
The quality of informed perception is the common denominator of all 504 owners. His choice of a 504 shows a judgement capacity of the utmost discernment. He is aware that a car enjoying such a magnificent reputation cannot afford the luxury of a blemish.

The 504. A quality car for people who respect quality.

RETRIAL ORDERED

PARIS (AP) — The Appeals Court ordered a retrial for the only person under sentence of death in France. He is Jean Portais, 68, sentenced to the guillotine in Bordeaux in December for the murders of a jeweller and a police officer.

The Appeals Court ordered retrials earlier this year for two other people sentenced to die.

Freeze Protested

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Thousands of public employees in several cities in the Netherlands went on a 24-hour strike to protest against government plans to hold down their wages for three years.

U.K. AUTHORS VOTE TO FORM TRADE UNION

LONDON (CP) — The London-based Society of Authors has applied to become a trade union.

The action was taken after 65 per cent of the society's 3,000 members voted more than two-thirds in favor of registration as a trade union lat February.

"The political climate is changing and writers could be in difficulty in the future if they are not members of a union," said the society's secretary, Victor Bonham-Carter in an interview.

He said legislation passed by the Labor government, such as the Trade Union and Labor Relations Act of 1974, encouraged the formation of unions as collective bargaining bodies.

"There is a growing tendency of big publishing houses and corporations like the BBC to negotiate only with unions," he said, adding that two printing unions had recently refused to print the work of illustrators who were not union members.

"We were worried that this is a sign of things to come," he said.

But the society's decision to become a trade union has brought criticism from a number of writers, notably Anthony Burgess, author of A Clockwork Orange, whose protest recently appeared in The Daily Mail.

He said writers should remain outside the union movement because "it's always been the job of writers to oppose the establishment."

MIDDLE-AGED GET OWN MEDICAL JOURNAL

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — There are thousands of journals and magazines covering children and young people; there are a few devoted to the elderly. Now a new medical journal is available devoted to the problems of middle age.

The journal, Maturitas, published by Elsevier North Holland Biomedical Press, aims: V

"To provide a critical medium for the exchange of information and ideas concerning the important changes in many physiological, psychological and sociological functions occurring in the 'middle years'—generally taken in both man and woman as between 40 and 60."

Its editor, P. A. Van Keep of the International Health Foundation Brussels, notes that in literature and folklore this age is always depicted in two extreme ways.

He pledges that his journal will reflect a more balanced outlook, viewing this time as one when "Man has come, both physically and mentally, to maturity."

Colonial treasures are in abundance

By PHILIP SOUSA

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — When it comes to priceless colonial riches, no city in the Americas can match this one.

These are some of the treasures — most of them dating back to the birth of the New World — you find within walking distance in the heart of town:

- Santa Maria La Menor: oldest cathedral in the Americas, whose construction started in 1514.
- Calle Las Damas: oldest street in the New World.
- Atarazana: a cluster of eight exquisite early 16th century structures which made up the first trading centre on our side of the Atlantic; buildings, lovingly restored and maintained, now house galleries, restaurants and gift shops.
- Casa del Cordon: first stone construction in the New World, for a time the home of Diego Columbus, the discoverer's son who was one of this island's viceroys.
- The Alcazar: an impressive 467-year-old structure that was Diego's official residence as well as the first Spanish court palace in the Americas.

These are complete buildings, not pieces; and they're in perfect state of repair and open to the public.

There is more, though, in the very lively colonial hub of this capital which Bartholomew Columbus founded in 1496, four years after brother Christopher discovered Hispaniola, the island now occupied two-thirds by the Dominican Republic on the east and Haiti on the west.

Just off Columbus Square, colonial Santo Domingo's focal point and the location of its superb cathedral, you'll find the old city hall, the first such in the Americas.

Incidentally, although the cathedral's Spanish Renaissance architecture and the religious treasures within the short but otherwise massive building warrant a look, the highlight for most visitors is the elaborate marble and bronze mausoleum under which lie the remains of Christopher Columbus.

Santo Domingo also was the location of the first hospital in the Americas, but in this case only ruins remain; the first public library, still in use today; the first university; and the first archbishopric see.

Plaza de la Cultura in Santo Domingo in the cultural centre for all the West Indies. As well as the National Library shown here, it includes the Museum of the Dominican Man, National Theatre, Science Museum and Gallery of Modern Art.

An outstanding example of the Dominicans' ability to live comfortably with their centuries-old riches is the former home of Nicholas de Ovando, commander of the Island in the early 1500s. Today, following a major restoration project during which the place was practically rebuilt according to the original plans, this is a 60-room "hostal" whose lavish appointments are matched only by the gracious colonial ambience that permeates throughout the building and by the excellent fare of the hotel's Extremadura restaurant.

Across the street is another sight-seeing gem not to be missed, the Museum of the Royal Houses.

In excellent condition and beautiful displayed here are tapestries, furniture, weapons, coins, garments, household and other utensils, as well as paintings and other art from the colonial period.

Santo Domingo, however, is more than a living repository of Columbian history and art.

A few blocks west of colonial downtown you encounter popular and pretty Independence Square — and you enter New Santo Domingo.

The narrow, noisy and twisting arteries of the old section give way to broad, tree-lined streets and avenues. Elaborate colonial homes become sprawling Mediterranean mansions, concrete-and-glass condominiums.

Small patios turn into large gardens.

Enter the "new" Santo Domingo and even the living quarters of Dominicans of modest means change dramatically.

As a rule, in the town's old quarter people live in tiny one- or two-story wooden houses which are, more often than not, painted in a riot of vivid colors.

In the newer neighborhoods, government-built blocks of flats predominate; these are, for the most part, airy and spacious two-bedroom units with kitchen, bathroom and dining area for which tenants pay about $15 a month—a sum officials here say is well within the reach of most working Dominicans—including all utilities except telephone.

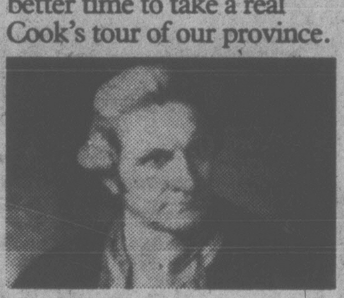
There's no place like home. Especially when home is British Columbia.

What's more, 1978's our Captain Cook Bicentennial year, so you couldn't pick a better time to take a real Cook's tour of our province.



You'll discover Tall Ships, naval ships, and all kinds of championships.

Rodeos, regattas, and rip-roaring races.

Not to mention umpteen parades, pageants, and perfectly super places.

So this year, discover British Columbia.

Captain Cook did.

South Seas survive change

ON THE GO With Jerry Hulse

UTUROA, Raiatea — Ah, cherie, the old South Seas survives, particularly here in French Polynesia.

The dream lingers (on Raiatea little changes.)

Uturoa, the island's only sizable town, comes alive on market day. This is midweek when the inter-island steamer wheezes up from Papeete. Islanders line the dock, selling breadfruit and limes, fresh fish and vegetables. Meanwhile, seamen bare to the waist unload provisions for the island stores and carry aboard fat gunnysacks filled with copra.

ONCE SEVERAL years ago I nearly sank the old steamer. I had borrowed a VW from the hotel where I was staying. Only the owner failed to tell me the brakes were no good.

The steamer was tied up parallel with the dock. I came at it from the street. I hit the brakes. Nothing. I spun the wheel. The car went crazy, stopping only inches from the hull.

It was a near miss.

I've always wondered what the rest of the world would have thought had it been reported that a copra boat was sunk by a Volkswagen bug in French Polynesia?

OTHER vacationers come to Raiatea to rest and to inhale the island's beauty. They are delivered through the lagoon in canoes and up the Faaroa River which flows sweet and pure from mountains ringed by clouds. In this verdant valley the Maoris, now settled in New Zealand, once lived.

Grass huts hang over riverbanks and wild pigs root through the jungle, and buro trees spread their shade. In places the branches hang so low one must lie flat in the boat to avoid them.

MOUNTAINS rise like monuments, incredibly green, with forests of coconut palms cascading down the slopes.

On Raiatea there is no reason to hurry. Where would one go? To town on market day, of course. Or to Tahaa, which is the island four miles away (it shares the same lagoon.)

The trouble is, there is little to see or do on Tahaa. You can go stone fishing with the islanders. Or shop in the single village. But there are only a couple of stores. And just one hotel, the Chez Peti. It is a bargain, though, for anyone who wishes to drop off the world for a spell. The rate for a room with three meals, a bed, a chair and a kerosene lamp comes to $25 a day.

BACK ON Raiatea, life is as peaceful as the day the volcanoes stopped huffing and puffing. Each day blends with another until it makes little difference whether it is Monday or Saturday. And after a while not even the month or year matters very much.

Although Raiatea is the largest of French Polynesia's Leeward Islands, it has but one post office and one hospital, a few cars and many motorbikes.

ON RAIATEA island boys still climb to the top of Mt. Emahanie, gathering the delicate flower which grows there. It is to prove to the vahines that they care. Besides being the birthplace of all Tahitian gods, Emahanie is also a tiring, three-hour hike.

A kane would have to be deeply in love to make such a climb.,

On Raiatea waterfalls spill golden in the sunlight — and silver when day is done. Palm trees grow profusely, turning day into darkness, and chickens run free along the island's country lanes.

YESTERDAY was market day and I went down to the dock and stood with the islanders, watching the old steamer being unloaded.

Later I revisited the Hinano Hotel, which is named after the beer and appears to be nearly as old as the island itself.

Locals were playing billiards in the lobby, just as they were when I was here seven years ago.

Others stood by drinking beer. Not much had changed. Only the prices of the rooms. Instead of $5 they are $8 a night, and you share the bath. The W.C. is down the hall.

WHEN I WAS here before, the proprietor was a Chinese named Lo Kim. He is gone. The Moo-Fat family runs the hotel now. This is a pity. You see, Lo Kim was one helluva cook. He was especially good at turning out fou you ha, which is to say cabbage with ham.

I am sure, too, that Lo Kim would have repaired the broken TV set in the lobby. It just hangs there on the wall now with a blank stare.

Next door the Ala Moana nightclub continues to vibrate on Saturday night. Before when I was here the jukebox played Etrangers dans la Nuit and La Vie Parisienne. Now a French franc will get you C'est la Vie and a selection of vintage American melodies.

IT WAS 3 o'clock on a hot afternoon when I stopped to chat with the owner, Ahtchoung (pronounced Ah chew!) Chong. He sat in the doorway.

"Come in," he urged. "Have a beer."

At the bar he uncorked a bottle of Hinano. It cost 50 francs, or about 65 cents.

Fishnet hung from the ceiling. From behind the bar a nude looked down from the wall. A pinball machine was squeezed into one corner next to the jukebox, which was a descendant of the Glenn Miller era.

CHONG SLID a wet cloth across the bar. "Very slow day," he said.

"Where are all the customers?" I asked.

He shrugged, "Home sleeping."

"In the middle of the day?"

"Sure. This is Raiatea . . .no one works very hard."

Saturday nights at the Ala Moana are something else. A live band replaces the jukebox — three guitars, a drummer and an old Tahitian who makes music with a couple of sticks.

ON SATURDAY night Chong sells nearly enough Hinano to fill the lagoon. His wife works. His sons work.

"Whole family is busy," he said waving his arms.

Chong is one of Uturoa's leading entrepreneurs. Besides the Ala Moana, he operates a deep-sea fishing boat. Day-and-night service. Whatever the customer wants.

The other day he took two couples over to Bora Bora. He charged them $200. Not a bad day's change for an island boy who's never been away from French Polynesia.

Jazz, dancing: Summer fun in Germany

By NEIL MORGAN

Venetian gondoliers and dancing in the streets, jazz open-air concerts and Shakespeare "auf deutsch" are just a few of the festivities city fathers have planned in Berlin and Hamburg this summer.

Jazz concerts will be held in the National Gallery Sculpture Court in West Berlin. Classical fare, highlighted by the Berlin Bach Days July 12-16, will be offered at the wonderfully baroque Charlottenburg Palace.

The annual Alster Lake festival in Hamburg July 13-16, will offer real gondoliers from Venice and music wherever there's room to blow a horn.

The 27th Mozart Festival will wrap up the season in Hamburg Sept. 8-17.

Interested in Senegal? Send for a new free, colorful brochure just issued by the Senegal Government Tourist Office, 200 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017, and find out all about the hotels, restaurants, nightclubs and casinos there.

A budget-priced season ticket, valid between May and Sept. 30, is available for unlimited rail travel to and from any railroad station, not only in Belgium but in the Netherlands and the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg as well for as low as $5.70 second class and $8.50 first.

The 10-day railroad season ticket, the "Benelux Tourrail," which allows the traveller to take any train as often and wherever he desires can be purchased at most Belgian railroad stations.

Major guest appearances at the 1978 Vienna Festival have been scheduled by the Zurich Opera, the Stuttgart State Theatre, El Teatro Campesino and other international conductors, singers, instrumentalists, opera and ballet companies.

The Austrian National Tourist Office has detailed programs of the 1978 Vienna Festival which tell where to write for each type of ticket; generally, Oesterreichiches Verkehrsbuero, Friedrichstrasse 7,-A-1043, Vienna, Austria, can obtain all kinds of tickets for a small fee.

Brussels presents a Sound and Light production each summer for the delight of visitors and residents alike, on the Grand Place. The programs run about an hour, and will be presented at 10:30 nightly until Aug. 1, and thereafter at both 9:30 and 10:30 until Sept. 17.

Peaceful Eire: Gentleness is a natural resource

By PHILIP SOUSA

There is a sad, and embarrassing, North American tendency to confuse the trouble-free, independent country that is the Republic of Ireland—the Eire I visited—and Northern Ireland, or Ulster, the strife-torn British province.

Granted, the word "Ireland" is part of the name of each and both happen to be located on the same island. But the fact is, they are two separate geopolitical entities.

Confusing the Republic, of which Dublin is the capital, with the province, whose government center is Belfast, is sad. Staying away from the former for fear of violence is tragic indeed.

Bypassing Eire because of the troubles in Ulster is akin to skipping Israel because of guerrilla activity in Lebanon or avoiding Morocco because of civil war in Ethiopia.

Having travelled the length and breadth of the republic, having spent time in cities, towns and hamlets, and having talked with countless talkative and gregarious Irish men and women, I can say Ireland is as peaceful and safe as the unfortunate British province to the north is not.

Let me share with you some of the impressions gathered along the usually narrow (by our standards) but always delightful Irish roads.

"People," a friend told me before I left home. "They represent Ireland's greatest natural resource."

And so it is.

Visit to a pub, such as this one on Eire's Dingle Peninsula, is a way to meet the Irish, whose warmth, congeniality and gentleness match tranquil beauty of their land.

He or she might be a cosmopolitan Dubliner, up with fashions and trends; a shy sheepherder in the rugged and lonely western hills of County Donegal; a quietly spoken fisherman of the Aran Islands; a chatty and funny farmer met at one of the 52 pubs in tiny (population 1,403) Dingle in County Kerry; the singing waitresses who put on the delightful Medieval banquets at Bunratty Castle in County Claire; the experienced and gracious hostesses of Aer Lingus, the Irish national airlines; the men and women who work at Shannon Airport's excellent tax-free shop, etc.

The accents vary from one county to the next, so does the look of the land, the homes. What's constant throughout is the warmth, congeniality and gentleness of the Irish.

A natural resource, to be sure.

Driving on what we call the "wrong" side of the road in a car with steering wheel, ashtray, etc., in the "wrong" side of the vehicle took a couple of days to master. But it was a breeze after that.

Dublin's abundance of Georgian architecture, superb theater and opportunities for great shopping impressed me as much as the beautiful city's limited nightlife disappointed me.

County Donegal in the country's unspoiled and scenic northwest corner, the one we North Americans know least of all, is a fascinating gathering of deep glens, countless lakes, tall mountains, serrated stretches of uninhabited coastline and stunning beaches.

Galway, a youthful city at the western end of the country's belly, is both an attractive tourist destination of its own as well as the gateway to two must-see areas: the antiquities-filled but otherwise barren Aran islands and Connemara, the county's spectacular mountainous western region.

Not much can I add here about Killarney and County Kerry, other than say that my swing around the county made me realize why North Americans consider this to be one of the loveliest spots in Ireland.

Cozy thatched-roof cottages and modern hotels. Warm and witty people.

Scenery to feast one's eyes at every turn of mostly quiet roads: Good food and even better beer. Plenty of opportunities and facilities for excellent fishing, golf, hiking and other pursuits. Great shopping.

Another one is castles and baronial estates where you can add a touch of regal splendor to your life, at least for the length of your stay at such grand hosteleries as Fitzpatrick Castle in County Dublin, Dromoland Castle in County Clare and Ashford Castle in County Mayo.

But is it safe? You may still wonder.

No harm will come your way, unless you find, as I did, that exposure to this great land with time and people willing to share it with you triggers a hunger for more of both.

Then, watch out!

This is a hunger only repeated visits can help you cope with.

Past meets present in colorful Instanbul

Travel Tips

By STAN DELAPLANE

"We're spinning off from a tour group to see Istanbul for only two or three days . . ."

The Istanbul airport may be enough to make you want to turn around and go out on the next flight. Chaos. Shouts, embracings, tears, family reunions. Not a porter in sight. String-tied luggage breaking apart and spilling out on the floor. Bedlam.

Carry with you enough Turkish lira to get you out of the airport and into a taxi. Turkish taxis look as if they had been through three destruction derbies. Drivers act as if each trip was going to be their last and they want to get it over with as quickly as possible.

Have a solid agreement before on how much any taxi journey is going to cost. Or have an argument later.

Asia and Europe meet in Istanbul. So do past and present. Mustapha Kemel Ataturk brought Turkey into the modern world 50 years ago but left at least one foot behind. Narrow streets are crowded with men in today's urban business suits or country shalovars, those baggy trousers from centuries gone by, a few women in shalovars, but most in beautiful, full, brightly-colored, intricately designed dresses.

Through the cross-currents of Turks afoot plow Mercedes from late 20th century — and donkeys from before history. Very noisy and jostling. But peace and quiet are as near as the nearest mosque, of which there are hundreds.

Leave shoes outside. Nobody steals them I was told; nobody stole mine. Rugs carpet the halls and rooms inside. When the thousands of shoeless feet start wearing through a rug, another is placed over it. So you may be walking inches over rugs put down hundreds of years ago.

Like clothes and transportation, food is East and West, too. My favorite menu listed Roast German Buttocks (I never found out what that was) and Donerkebab, described as "young lamb roasted on a Turkish national spit."

If you want to find out what it was like to live the life of Ahmet, go to the Seraglio, the magnificent palace of Turkey's sultans, resplendent in tile and marble, with a museum of china, costumes, armor, jewelry from the glory days of the Ottoman Empire.

Turkish gold and brasswork, famous Turkish turquoise (that's where the name came from,) Turkish rugs at the bazaar. Warning to women: If you go, go before you go, for if you have to go there, you will find the facilities beyond anything you have ever experienced.

Several boat trips on the Bosphorus. Better than the $5 water tour from the Hilton is the $.30 Galata Bridge, Pier 4 ferry ride which makes 26 ports of call from Asian Turkey to European Turkey and back.

"Three of us are celebrating the end of our junior year by taking our bikes to Europe for the summer . . ."

Make sure you know what you're doing. You may be better off to leave your faithful bikes at home and buy new ones over there. Save transportation costs. Then, when you get ready to come home, sell them. Any major bike store should be able to give you good advice on this.

All the world loves a lover. Europe loves cyclists. You don't have to peddle every kilometre. Boats and trains are usually happy to take cyclists with cycles from here to there, so you can rest between tours.

THE LONE PINE INTERNATIONAL

Former World, and present USSR, Champion Tigran Petrosian won the $8000 first prize at the Sixth Annual Louis D. Statham Tournament in Lone Pine, California, with a score of four wins and three draws, for 5½ points.

There were 11 Grandmasters among the 56 participants, three from Argentina (Najdorf, Panno and Quinteros), one from Israel (Shamkovich), two from the USSR (Smyslov and Petrosian), one from England (Miles), one from Hungary (Forintos) and three from the U.S. (Walter Browne, Pal Benko and Arthur Bisguier).

The Lone Pine tournament was started by Statham, a wealthy Los Angeles businessman and chess fan. Statham decided to initiate an unusual chess tradition, an annual tournament to be played in the crystal air of Lone Pine, a tiny community 210 miles north of Los Angeles at the foot of Mt. Whitney.

The most impressive building in town is the town hall — which Statham had built especially for his tournament.

Swiss rules are used so none of the 56 players, who are all at the master level or higher, is knocked out of the tourney following a loss.

Nine players tied for second-through-tenth place with five points and took home $1512 each.

THE STRANGLER STRIKES

Here is a splendid win by Petrosian in the sixth round.

History Made: Premier

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Premier Rene Levesque greeted passage of a referendum law laying the ground rules for a vote on Quebec's independence as a "historic occasion for Quebecers to make up their minds about their future."

Levesque, who celebrated the end of the session by joining in a card-game in a room off the Assembly chamber, termed the referendum bill the "most important" of a raft of bills also enacted, ranging from one granting pensions to priests and nuns to a law guaranteeing essential services during strikes in such sectors as hospitals and schools.

Levesque dismissed Liberal efforts to modify the referendum legislation as being based on "status quo hang-ups and some establishment hang-ups that the Liberals always have.

"It's the first historic occasion for Quebecers to make up their minds about their future," Levesque said.

The referendum law, Bill 92, lays out the general rules for the holding of any ;ghut it is not required to except the outcome of the voting as binding.

Ships Boycotted

ROME (Reuter) — Italian dockworkers announced an indefinite boycott of ships flying the Chilean flag as a protest against what they called the fascist regime in Santiago.

B.C. HOUSE: FACELIFT TAKES FOREST TO LONDON

LONDON (CP) — British Columbia House, the stately, stone-faced building rising five floors above London's fashionable Regent Street, close by Piccadilly Circus, is being modernized.

Under the Monuments Act, the massive exterior may not be changed because it harmonizes with other majestic buildings erected during Queen Victoria's reign.

But under the guidance of British Columbia's Agent-General in Europe, Lawrence (Lawrie) J. Wallace, the interior is being entirely refitted.

Above the clatter and roar of drill and hammer, the extensive ground-floor offices are being repanelled with the woods for which B.C. is famous — hemlock, pine, white spruce, western red cedar and Douglas fir.

The reference desk on which B.C. newspapers will be displayed has been fashioned from driftwood collected from the beaches of Victoria and Vancouver.

And when the reconstruction is complete, the whole of the ground floor will be covered with a deep, rich forest-green carpet.

"We are trying to create the image of British Columbia right in the centre of London," Wallace said, "so that would-be visitors, would-be emigrants and all interested persons can appreciate what our province has to offer.

"In doing this, we are carrying on the traditions created by so many devoted men and women who have served British Columbia House. And we remember, too, the inspiration that came from many agents-general, notably Sir Richard McBride and W. A. McAdam."

Sir Richard was appointed agent-general after his term as Conservative premier of British Columbia. McAdam was acting agent-general throughout the 1930s and agent-general until his retirement at the age of 70. At 65, his term of office was extended five years by the B.C. Social Credit government.

Veteran staff members at B.C. House recall McAdam's devotion to the job and the hospitality he extended to servicemen during the 1939-45 war.

"He would do almost anything for servicemen and women in general and for B.C. servicemen and women in particular," one of the staff said. "I can remember one evening after a blitz on London when he spent hours trying to get hold of a baby's feeding bottle for a Canadian couple. And, as usual, he found what he wanted."

NOTICE!

Reservations are now required for "The Canadian".

Starting June 23, reservations will be required for coach seats on CP Rail's "The Canadian". With VIA's new Fare For All Plan, the lower prices on CP Rail's transcontinental service give you great value and savings.

But, great savings means great demand. In order to accommodate the increased demand for seats, the new reservation system will assure you of smooth travel plans. So, book ahead and avoid disappointment. Make your travel plans with "The Canadian". Call CP Rail offices for information on the new reservation service, and the new lower fares for you.

Be good to yourself, take the train.

Perspectives and Prejudices

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

A cartoon in a magazine shows a doctor looking solemnly at a patient and saying to him, "This is a very serious case; I'm afraid that you are allergic to yourself."

Saint Paul suffered from that rather common affliction. In the seventh chapter of his Letter to the Romans he wrote this: "My own behavior baffles me. For I find myself not doing what I want to do but doing what I really loathe. . . I don't accomplish the good I set out to do, and the evil I don't really want to do I find I am always doing." (That is the way it is given in J. B. Phillips translation-paraphrase of the New Testament.)

We are all at times baffled by our own behavior. I can tell you that I am. Most of us talk a better life than we actually live. We all fall lamentably short of our avowed ideals. Our espousal of the rights and needs of others does not always prevent us from trampling on others with the hob-nailed boots of our self-concern.

Belief in kindness and decency does not always keep us from trying to bully others so we may have our own way. We may avow honesty and honor, but that does not always stop us from cutting ethical corners when it is to our advantage to do so.

As we mature most of us are able to work out compromises for ourselves. Experience helps us to stumble through life without suffering from too many moral hangups. But, as someone has said, "Experience is getting a comb after you've gone bald."

I like the story about little Tommy who was taken by his mother to see one of the frequent re-runs of Walt Disney's classic cartoon-film, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. They enter the theatre shortly before the scene in which the wicked witch gives Snow White the poisoned apple. When the film comes to that part again Tommy and his mother begin to leave.

As they walk up the aisle Tommy looks back over his shoulder and sees that the wicked witch is about to offer Snow White the apple. He looks pensively at his mother and says, "If Snow White eats that apple again, she's crazy!"

Tommy has at least the beginnings of wisdom with respect to learning from experience. But will his wisdom develop in proportion to his experience? Will it help him manage his inner conflicts, particularly those having moral dimensions? Or will he in later life, like Paul and like you and me, be driven at times to cry, "My own behavior baffles me?"

Faith can help you when your own behavior baffles you. The commitments and practices of faith will not, of course, eliminate all your personal bafflement. But they can change your perspectives on yourself and on your circumstances — and in changing your perspectives can help you to where normal inner conflict will not destroy your peace and where your ordinary tensions will be more creative than destructive. The only proof of this, however, is in the living of faith.

Rosicrucians give books

The Rosicrucian Order has donated several books to the Greater Victoria Public Library.

Titles are Unto Thee I Grant, Rosicrucian Questions and Answers by H.S. Lewis, PhD., and Rosicrucian Principles for Home and Business by Lewis.

This donation to the library is the result of requests by local readers that A.M.O.R.C. books be made available to the public. The Rosicrucian Order makes a yearly appropriation to provide the educational, philosophical, non-sectarian work of the order to public institutions such as libraries and hospitals.

Local Mormons to ordain black

A religious first for Victoria will occur Sunday with the ordaining of a black resident into the priesthood of the Mormon Church.

Tony Parkes of Victoria will receive the Aaronic priesthood and be ordained a priest by Victoria third ward Bishop Albert Isfeld in a ceremony at 5 p.m. Sunday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, 2990 Quadra.

Parkes, 35, who originally came from Barbados, joined the church in Montreal in September 1970, and moved to Victoria that same month.

For eight years he has served in various callings with the church here, most recently as Sunday school president.

All adult males become priests in the Mormon faith, however until June 9, 1978 blacks were excluded from the priesthood, although they could belong to the church as members.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Mario Honore, accomplished vocalist and pianist, will present a sacred concert at Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, 1095 Tolmie, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Honore, a founder of the Vancouver Opera Association and musical director of West Vancouver United Church, sings in German, Italian, French and English, and sings the great songs of the masters and opera.

His repetoire includes individual arrangements of spirituals and deeply moving gospel songs.

Again this year Douglas Street Baptist Church will hold a family camp at Sylvan Acres Baptist Camp on Land's End Road near Sidney.

The camp is set in the beautiful outdoors and activities are planned for all members of the family. There is boating, swimming in a new above-ground pool, nature hikes, sports, crafts and Bible study.

Campers may come for a day or for the entire week of July 24-30. Cost is: for adults 18 and above, $8.50 per day, youths 13-17 per day, $7, boys and girls, $5 per day, children three and under free. If you come as a family the maximum daily cost is $22.50.

Anyone wishing to register please contact Mrs. Evelyn Elliott at 386-7112 or 479-0022.

A special film with wide appeal to young people, Two A Penny, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Douglas Street Baptist Church, 3277 Douglas. Admission is free and all are welcome.

A 15-minute choir cantata with orchestral accompaniment, Jesu, Joy and Treasure by Buxtehude, will be part of the 11 a.m. service Sunday at First United Church, Quadra at Balmoral.

Summer services begin at 10 a.m. July 2 through Sept. 3 inclusive.

Third in the series of 12 summer season Christian gospel services sponsored by Park Services Interdenominational will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Cameron bandshell, Beacon Hill Park.

First Christian Reformed Church of Victoria will be in charge with its pastor, Rev. Peter W. De Bruyne, delivering a challenging gospel message.

Testimonies will be given by several people and the special musical program will include numbers by a quartet of singers, a vocal solo by Rick Quatsch and instrumental items.

A preservice orchestral concert will be given by a group of young men from the church starting at 6:45 p.m.

Rev. David Fuller has been appointed minister of the Anglican-United Fellowship in Port McNeill as of July 1.

Fuller with his wife and three children will move to Port McNeill at the end of June and will formally take up the ministry Aug. 1.

This is the first time an Anglican has served in this joint ministry. Port McNeill opted to have an alternating ministry with an Anglican minister to succeed a United Church minister and vice versa.

Milestone for Victoria Christian High

Two girls graduate

A graduating class of two Grade 12 students, Dee Howard and Heather Arnott, are testimony to the accumulated achievement of five years growth and ministry which is Victoria Christian High School.

Beginning with Grades 8 and 9 in September, 1973, this independent Christian day school now offers a complete junior-senior secondary program. Dee and Heather, as its first two graduates, have been students through Grades 8 to 12 since the school's inception.

Using facilities in Central Baptist Church, and under the direction of principal Dave Arnott, Victoria Christian High School is offered as an alternative for Christian families in the community.

A five-member board of directors has sole authority and responsibility for the operation of the school. Members include local pastors Eugene Benner and Ken Anderson, Victoria missionary Miss Sylvia Smith, social worker Gerry Webb and housewife Ingrid Arnott.

Convinced of the Word of God as the underlying foundation and basis for such a school, the board considers it part of the great commission of Matthew 28. They believe this challenge begins at home, "in Jerusalem" with young people.

The board views the school as a training ground to reveal the real world, God's world, from God's viewpoint to students. They see a need to teach discernment between the regenerate, Christ-centred Kingdom of God and the unregenerate, secular realm of man. This can be done, in their opinion, only by Christian perspective in all subjects to provide a unified view of God, man, and the universe.

Consistent with these truths, the board sees the need for separation of church and state. They are, therefore, not seeking any financial aid from the provincial government. They see Christian education as a sacrifice to be borne by Christian parents rather than making demands upon the public purse.

As one of the graduates awaits the Lord's leading concerning His will for the future, the other has already entered on a probationary appointment for field training in mission work with the Shantymen's Christian Association.

As this first graduating class departs, planning for the next class is in progress. Victoria Christian High School will continue to provide for those families who see this as the suitable provision for their needs.

Religion, politics Afrikaners' life

By CHARLES VILLA-VICENCIO
The Canadian Churchman

All people, especially all besieged people, need high priests to justify, rationalize and explain their national character and behavior. In South Africa, this task takes place within the framework of the Afrikaner's traditional religious self-understanding.

Much of the drama of South African politics lies in the interplay of religion and politics and the resulting synthesis of white nationalism and neo-Calvinist theology. For those engaged in the drama it is a matter of life and death.

The Afrikaner's religious motivation must be understood in the context of the loneliness of frontier life and the long battle for survival. Self-discipline, a powerful will to survive and the Calvinist heritage of the Afrikaners, enabled them to withstand attacks by Zulu impis, British imperialism, military defeat in the Boer War and the pervasive temptations of Western liberalism.

In 1948 the Afrikaners came to political power and were in a position to determine their own future, and in 1960 declared themselves a republic outside the British Commonwealth.

Significantly, Afrikaners interpret their history in theological terms. Said Hendrik F. Verwoerd, legal architect of apartheid: "...we have been planted here at the southern point within this crisis area so that from this resistance might emanate the victory whereby all that has been built up since the days of Christ may be maintained for the good of all mankind."

The determining factor among South African whites is still the sense of divine call, meaning ideological South Africans are certain apartheid is God's will.

"Our only guide is the Bible," says Dr. J.D. Vorster, brother of the prime minister. "Our policy and outlook on life are based on the Bible. We firmly believe the way we interpret it is right. We will not budge one inch to satisfy anyone in South Africa or abroad."

A.P. Treurnicht, former Dutch Reformed minister and a leading Nationalist member of Parliament, says "I know of no other policy as moral, as responsible to Scripture as the policy of separate development."

The official teaching on the scriptural basis for "autogenous development," formally adopted by the 1974 Dutch Reformed Church synod, asserts both the equality and diversity of races, however the basis for religious support of apartheid is not scriptural but theological.

The essential strand of apartheid thought derives from Calvinism as mediated by 19th Century Dutch thought. The innate law of the family has been developed to justify apartheid by extending it to mean that each people, or volk, has its own identity, a God-given endowment, and it is the obligation of the state to protect this identity from any contamination by other volke within the land.

Liberal values are seen as threatening because of their stress on equality and on the worth of the individual that leads inevitably to one-person-one voting, seen in South Africa as the dictatorship of the masses.

In South Africa, the volk is a unity of people with an inherent self-understanding, fused together by history and religion. Their cohesion is understood in terms of common heritage, family bonds, language, culture, shared values and norms, a common life and world view.

In the light of such thinking, it is not difficult to understand how the apartheid system has come into being.

The Bantustan policy, through which each race is to have its own homeland, is, to South African whites, the ultimate logical step toward fulfilment of their group identity concept.

Thus Afrikaners regard their policy of apartheid as supremely moral.

The obvious consequence of the Afrikaners' preoccupation with racial and national purity has been a tremendous amount of human suffering imposed on all the other South African volke in terms of bad housing, inferior education, separation of families, scarce jobs at low wages, resettlement camps and inequality before the police.

Thus, for many, apartheid has meant deprivation of political, social and personal rights—dehumanization—and it is seen as God's will.

Charles Villa-Vicencio, a Methodist minister, is a senior lecturer in theological ethics at the University of South Africa, Pretoria. This article is excerpted from Canadian Churchman*, official organ of the Anglican Church in Canada.*

A tip for fighting summer dog days

During summer when the school bell has stopped ringing and the children's best friends have gone away on vacation, mom's creative endeavors to find enjoyable and educative activities for the family can run dry.

Emmanuel Baptist Church might solve mom's dilemma with its summer day camp.

Children who arrive at 9 a.m. Tuesday through Friday each week are welcomed by competent voluntary helpers under the direction of summer staff pastors Neil Parker and Gary Lawrence.

Tuesday and Wednesday of each week find the children engaged in singing, arts and crafts, group games, Bible stories, and films.

Thursday and Friday are days of mystery, exploration and discovery. The children meet at the church at 9 and travel to beaches, hiking spots, or investigate a museum, a factory, or explore a historical site.

Camps begin July 4 and run each week except the week of July 25. Cost is $11 per child, the second child in the same family is $8, and total cost for any family per week is $25.

Information and registration can be secured by phoning Emmanuel Baptist Church at 592-2418 or dropping in to the church office at 2121 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Adventist pair given farewell

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Benson, long-time area residents, are moving from their Malahat home of 67 years to Winfield, B.C., to be closer to their family.

A farewell supper and fellowship evening was given in their honor by the social committee of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, 938 Pandora. The Bensons have been with the local church since June 11, 1938.

A large bible and a guest book signed by members of the congregation was presented to the Bensons by Stanley Jewkes, longest member in attendance at the church. Jewkes came to Victoria in 1926 when the church was on Graham St.

The occasion was also an opportunity to welcome the complete family of Pastor and Mrs. Lynn Baerg. Their two children, Michael and Debra, are home for the summer months from school in Illinois.

Swimming goal hit with 'God's help'

"One is never too old to set a goal, but to reach it is a triumph."

Mrs. Eva Benson, a Seventh-day Adventist, believes in personal goals and has been publicly rewarded for achieving one of them.

At age 67, on Dec. 23, 1976, she began keeping track of every mile she swam and became the first person in the Victoria senior citizens group to swim 25 miles.

By April 6, 1978 she had completed 125 miles. For each 25 miles swum she received a medallion to attach to her swimsuit, and now has a bronze medal and certificate. She says "All to the glory of God, of my own self, I can do nothing." She adds "not all the lifeguards have accomplished this record."

Mrs. Benson swims weekly at the Juan de Fuca recreational centre.

She is a vegetarian, an outdoor person and an eager gardener and has been an active worker in the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Anglicans name new canons

Two priests were named honorary canons during the 1978 synod of the Anglican Diocese of B.C.

Bishop F.R. Gartrell announced that he wanted to recognize the contributions of Rev. Horace McClelland, principal of Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, and Rev. Hugh Mortimer, hospital chaplain.

Gartrell said McClelland has made a major contribution to the independent school system in B.C. over the past 11 years. During that time he has served as chaplain, vice-principal and principal. At the end of term, he will relinquish the principalship, but will remain as chaplain and vice-principal.

Montreal-born Mortimer has been accepted by both the clergy and the medical profession as part of the treatment team in Victoria's general hospitals and the Eric Martin Institute. Mortimer, with the Canadian Navy for 21 years before he retired in 1962, has been recognized by the Presbytery of the United Church.

Canada Week

June 25th - July 1st

CITY OF VICTORIA — BRITISH COLUMBIA

Proclamation

"CANADA - MULTICULTURAL - WEEK"

WHEREAS to honour Canada, our nation created by the fusion of founding cultures, enriched by the contribution of other cultures and home of over 22,000,000 Canadians, proud of their heritage and the freedom they enjoy; and

WHEREAS to honour this country which is ours, and to encourage our citizens in striving to know all of Canada better and as an expression of National Unity; and

WHEREAS to recognize and support "Folkfest '78", sponsored by the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria which holds its main activities in Centennial Square from June 26 to July 3, 1978, in conjunction with our celebration of Canada's National Birthday:

NOW, THEREFORE, I do hereby proclaim the period of June 26th to July 3rd, 1978, as "CANADA - MULTICULTURAL - WEEK" in VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, and I urge all our Citizens to participate in the celebration of our National Birthday and Heritage together with our "Folkfest '78" activities and events, recognizing the essence of our Canadian heritage to be the contributions made by the many and various ethnic cultures which make up our Canadian population.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I hereunto set my hand this 22nd day of June, Nineteen Hundred and Seventy-eight.

Michael Young
MAYOR
CITY OF VICTORIA
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Enjoy the Opening Ceremonies
Sunday, June 25th, 3:00 p.m. to 3:45 p.m.
Legislative Buildings Lawn (approx.)

Be at the Legislative Buildings Lawn Sunday afternoon, June 25 for the pomp and ceremony of a heart warming salute to Canada's national birthday. Bring your camera — recorder — and join other citizens and friends in celebration of this historic day.

Leading up to the Official Ceremonies, Mr. Herman Bergink, Provincial Carillonneur, will play selections from 2:00 to 2:50 p.m. followed by the rousing music of the Salvation Army Band.

At 3:00 p.m. you will enjoy the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets Band as they play our national anthem: a stirring moment no Canadian will want to miss.

During the official ceremonies, there will be representatives from the Provincial Government, as well as local mayors; and the Proclamation of Canada Multicultural week will be read by Mayor Young of Victoria.

Singing by the members of City Church Choirs will be featured, with a message of Unity delivered by Roman Catholic Bishop Remi de Roo.

The official ceremonies will be closed by the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet band.

Show your support of Canada by taking less than an hour out of Sunday, June 25 for this special presentation. Let's give Canada Week a resounding send-off in Victoria!

Bid Under Estimate

TORONTO (CP) — The vice-president of a Toronto dredging firm testified Friday that he was involved in 1973 in fixing the price of a dredging contract for work in Toronto Harbor at $7.1 million, although the Toronto Board of Harbor Commissioners expected the job to cost about $10 million.

Albin Louis Quinlan, who worked for McNamara Corp. Ltd. from 1963 to 1974, told an Ontario Supreme Court jury that his firm tendered a bid of $7.1 million. According to a prearranged agreement with competing firms, McNamara was to be the successful bidder for the contract.

Quinlan said he told competing companies to bid higher than the McNamara tender bid, at about $7.5 m.

Value Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — It is unlikely the government's new monitoring agency will be able to investigate pricing activities of specific companies, Sylvia Ostry, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, says in a letter made public Friday.

Mrs. Ostry, whose council is responsible for the new Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity, says in a letter to Herb Gray (L—Windsor West) that officials of the agency are limited to analysing information publicly available or voluntarily submitted.

NO CANADIAN BARS TO PIPE

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen said Friday there are no Canadian obstacles to beginning construction of the $10-billion Alaska natural gas pipeline on time.

Denying reports that the company building the pipeline, Foothills Yukon Ltd., has run into financial difficulties, MacEachen told the Commons the only delay is coming from the U.S. Congress.

He disputed statements by Frank Oberle (PC—Prince George-Peace River) that a rumored one-year delay in construction is being caused by financial and technical problems.

Construction on the 5,900-kilometre pipeline is scheduled to begin on Jan. 1, 1981, but it is not certain when U.S. energy legislation that is crucial to the northern pipeline will be passed and implemented.

Ottawa's Funds Welcomed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers for the estates of 43 persons killed in the Feb. 11 crash of a Pacific Western Airlines jet at Cranbrook welcomed federal government involvement Friday in an insurance pool for the estates of victims.

Transport Minister Otto Lang announced Thursday that the government will participate in an arrangement that would establish a multimillion dollar insurance pool to provide quick out-of-court settlements for the families.

Mickey Moran, of Castlegar, counsel for seven estates, said Lang should have taken the action sooner.

"It's too bad the same decision had not been reached months ago for the sake of the families," he said. "It seems such an obvious solution.

Lang said the arrangement, still to be completed by the parties concerned — the government, PWA, the Boeing Company of Seattle, Wash. and the city of Cranbrook — would permit compensation before the courts have assessed blame.

Eric Lane, of Toronto, the PWA counsel who will handle negotiations for the insurers, said in an interview Friday he expects most of the claims to be settled quickly and "on a mutually satisfactory basis."

Don Waurynchuk of Cranbrook, a lawyer handling seven estate cases, said a meeting of the estate lawyers will be held in Cranbrook on Monday to arrange claims procedure.

He said many of the estates will still have to proceed through the courts against PWA in order to obtain damages for the children of the victims.

It's a technicality, he said, that requires actions to be posted so that court trustees can distribute the negotiated settlements to the children. PWA has agreed to act as the defendant in the estimated 15 cases involving children.

MINOR PRESS BLAZE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A minor fire in the Pacific Press building resulted in a brief evacuation of about 200 employees of the evening Sun and morning Province from the top two floors of the four-storey building.

A small fire broke out around 1:20 p.m. in a metal exhaust flue in the composing room, said Al Restall, assistant production manager.

The fire, caused by soot igniting in the chimney, was quickly extinguished by the Vancouver fire department, but not before it had sent smoke through the building's ventilation system, he said.

Production of the two daily newspapers was not affected.

Plagiarism Up, Says SFU Head

BURNABY (CP) — Theft and plagiarism of students' and professors' work at Simon Fraser University is increasing, university vice-president Dan Birch said Friday.

Administrators at the University of Victoria and University of British Columbia said a few students are suspended or asked to withdraw from courses each year after being caught plagiarizing, but they did not think it is on the increase.

Birch said that up to 10 per cent of students are plagiarizing other people's work at SFU, and one student was recently suspended for two years for copying word for word 19 pages from a library book he had stolen.

"In a number of cases students have been very brazen about it," he said. "They don't seem to think it's wrong.

"Back in the '50s there was a great deal of shame and embarrassment to being caught, not so any more."

Birch said in the past, the university has not had any formal direction in the area, and many students may have felt the university didn't care about plagiarism.

"We do care," he said. "Plagiarism is unethical. It is immoral."

Bruce Armstrong, SFU student union spokesman, said Birch's claim that up to 10 per cent of students cheat is "hogwash."

Success Almost Spoils Domestic Charter Plan

max low

All's well with its domestic charter service, says Air Canada, even though at least one Victoria woman is unhappy.

Henrietta Draaijer, who works in the accounts department at the University of Victoria, wants to go to Toronto to attend her son's wedding and has been trying to get one of the much-advertised low-cost charter seats.

The difference in price is considerable. A one-way ticket to Toronto costs $201. So to go there and back normally costs $402 plus tax. But a there-and-back charter ticket is the one-way fare of $201 plus $31 to return and $8 tax — a total of $240.

But there are a few catches. You must book your seat at least 30 days in advance of your departure, stay wherever you're going a minimum of seven days and a maximum of 30 days, and you must be sure of your dates as there's a $20 cancellation fee.

But, as far as Henrietta Draaijer is concerned, there is another catch: you can't get a charter seat when you want one, anyway!

"I phoned the Air Canada booking office and a clerk told me they were booked solid," she says. "The clerk told me they had been so flooded with people wanting charter flights that they'd been instructed not to take any names or phone numbers as they couldn't handle any more.

"Again I phoned and I got the same response. When I called a third time, the girl took my name and number because I became upset and told her I'd phoned twice already and was thinking of contacting the media.

"That night, a man from Air Canada phoned and told me I had a seat. And so I will be there in time for the wedding, but that doesn't solve the problem for everybody. If they want people to travel in Canada, they should make the flights available."

With a travel deficit like we have, they want people to travel in Canada all right, Henrietta.

And Glen Steeves, district manager for Air Canada, says charter seats are being made available. It's just that for some you may have to wait a little longer.

Part of the problem is that they are not charter flights but simply an allocation of a certain number of charter-cost seats on regular flights between all points in Canada.

"It's supposed to be a surplus seat concept," Steeves explains and he admits Air Canada did have problems and a fair bit of adverse publicity when the domestic charter service was instituted in February, 1977.

"But since then we have increased the number of charter seats allocated on each flight and it's simply not fair to say space isn't available. There are going to be peak periods, of course, like Christmas time and holiday weekends when you'll just have to book further ahead of your departure date.

"The charter-rate tickets are a great buy, though," Steeves adds. "And we have been able to drop the advanced booking time required from 45 to 30 days."

That's only an advantage, however, if you're able to get a seat 30 days before you intend to go somewhere.

Following in Henrietta's footsteps, I decided to try a hop to Toronto.

"We are booked solid, Sir," an Air Canada clerk confirmed, quite politely. "Until Aug. 23."

Silence. Then her voice came back over the wire.

"Oh no, there's nothing then either, I'm afraid."

The first available date they could get me a charter-cost seat to Toronto for even a single booking was Aug. 25. That's exactly 62 days to takeoff!

But take heart. When there are delays they are because of the positive response. And the response has certainly been positive.

Glen Steeves is enthusiastic.

"We've had a very positive response to the charter service," he says. "It has generated a lot of new travel — and we're getting people who wouldn't have travelled otherwise."

DECISION DELAYED ON MOBILE HOMES

A decision on a proposed 240-lot mobile home park for Sidney has been put off until a second public hearing can be held.

Sidney council voted to postpone its decision — it was to have come Monday — on the 33-acre development because some people didn't get a chance to air their views at a public hearing held last week at Sidney firehall.

Municipal clerk Geoff Logan said the date for the second hearing has not yet been decided.

Council will not consider a bylaw authorizing a land use contract between Sidney and Leisure Villa Estates Ltd of Vancouver until after the second public hearing.

The proposed mobile home park would be located on property bounded by Frost Avenue, Canora Road and the municipal boundary, with the Pat Bay Highway to the east.

A petition opposing the park has already gathered more than 200 signatures.

Schooner Men On Way Home

Members of the crew of the ill-fated schooner Freelance are on their way back to Victoria.

Walter Donald, executive assistant to Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said today the fate of the vessel should be known this weekend.

He said the crew will be able to give an up-to-date picture of attempts tp salvage what's left of the 100-foot schooner, which up until Friday, remained grounded on a coral reef in the San Blas Islands east of the Panama Canal.

The vessel has been described as a virtual shell after local residents stripped it of its fittings, including its masts.

Donald said salvage work involving two U.S. army landing craft was apparently continuing and a last-ditch effort was to have been made Friday to get the Freelance off the reef.

He said it has been learned that underwater demolition experts had been at the scene in a bid to clear a channel off the reef so the Freelance could be re-floated.

But so far there has been no word that the work has been successful, he said.

The Freelance was purchased by the provincial government and was to have been operated by the Victoria-based Quest Star Society, which planned to use the vessel in an outward-bound type of program with young people.

Up until the vessel grounded, a total of about $78,000 had been spent on it.

Earlier, Victoria marine surveyor Dick Meadows said there was less than a 50-50 chance the schooner could be saved.

And even if the Freelance is taken off the reef, Meadows said the cost of restoring her would be enormous.

Tool Plant Fate In Saanich Lap

The decision lies with Saanich council as to whether Greater Victoria gets a tool manufacturing plant that its backers claim would eventually provide more than 500 jobs.

If council makes the wrong decision — Monday night — the plant will be built either in Alberta or Texas, Victoria investor Nick Liberto warned today.

"Time is important and council must act now," said Liberto, who is in partnership with Dennis Dorosz in a joint venture to manufacture an innovative rockbit that could revolutionize the drilling industry.

Liberto said the manufacturing company, Dorosz Tool Co., is ready to go and all it needs is the land to build the plant.

The problem is both the company and Saanich municipality have their eyes on the same property — 85 acres of Crown land next to Camosun College on Interurban Road.

Liberto said the provincial cabinet agreed Thursday to support the company in its quest for the property.

In a letter to the company's lawyer, Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said if Dorosz Tool can put together a package for establishing the industry here, the government would consider entering a lease agreement.

Phillips wrote he asked Greater Victoria economic development commissioner Barry Mayhew some time ago to acquire as quickly as possible the 85 acres for the B.C. Development Corporation.

"My ministry is most interested in having this light industry established in the Greater Victoria area," Phillips said.

He said in his letter the government will co-operate with the company's efforts to get a federal department of regional economic expansion grant, already made available if the company establishes itself in Prince Rupert, transfered to Victoria.

Liberto said, however, Saanich is considering the property for an industrial park site and has an option to purchase the land at $6,000 an acre.

He said Saanich wants to include Dorosz Tool in the plan but is only prepared to offer seven acres at a cost of $700,000.

But the company has rejected the offer, Liberto said because the company needs a minimum of 30 acres to allow for expansion that would eventually see five major plants on the site giving employment to more than 500 persons.

He said the company already has orders for $2.5 million worth of bits and must be in production by Jan. 1.

"We must turn the sod within two weeks or go somewhere else," he said.

Mayor Mel Couvelier declined today to discuss council plans for the industrial site.

Collision Sends Pair To Hospital

Two men ended up in hospital after their pickup trucks collided head-on at Pat Bay Highway and Claremont Friday afternoon.

James Leslie Bystedt, 23, of 412-118 Menzies, was admitted to Royal Jubilee with facial injuries and is in good condition.

Thomas Flynn, 56, of 8540 Moxon, in Sidney, was treated for minor shoulder and leg injuries and later released.

Labor Lawyer Picked

The Saanich police board has selected a Vancouver lawyer to represent the board at an arbitration hearing into a new two-year contract with the police union.

Chairman of the board Mayor Mel Couvelier said today the board has retained Jack Giles, one of B.C.'s top labor lawyers.

Couvelier described the hearing as a landmark case requiring the best counsel available.

The union has yet to respond to the board's choice for arbitrator — retired Supreme Court Justice Angelo Branca.

Union president Cpl. Phil Jamieson said today the reason for the delay is the union hasn't had a chance to speak with the its lawyer, Dermod Owen-Flood, about the choice.

Owen-Flood is currently working on a court case in Port Alberni.

The labor dispute is over the interpretation of a cost-of-living increases should be the contract approved by both sides May 12.

The board is arguing cost-of-living increase should be considered separately from salary base rates, while the union argues the increase should be incorporated into the base rates.

The outcome of the hearing is expected to have far-reaching implications on just how cost-of-living adjustments should be treated in future.

Killer Whales Deadly? Not So, Says Foster

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The killer whale has been misnamed, says B.C.'s director of ecological reserves.

"A big bull could have dined on me for suppper," said Bristol Foster, who had a recent encounter with a killer whale while diving in the open Pacific..

"They're no killers, no more dangerous than an insect-eating sparrow and they deserve a better name," Foster said.

The incident took place in Checleset Bay, about 20 miles west of Kyuquot on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where Foster and biologist Trudy Carson were studying sea otters.

The sea otters were transplanted from Alaska in 1969 and 1972 in a bid to re-establish the mammal in B.C. waters.

The otters were all but exterminated in local waters during the 19th centuary by fur traders.

Foster and Carson, using snorkels camouflaged with kelp, managed to approach until they got to within 30 feet of the otters.

"They are loveable creatures and wonderful to watch," Foster said.

"Some clung to each other like lovers and watched us and the pups sat on the bellies of their mothers who lay or swam on their backs. Sometimes a mother with a pup clinging to her would swim under us to give us a look over."

Foster said they had been watching the otters for about an hour when they suddenly disappeared.

He decided to scramble on an islet to see if he could spot them but saw nothing.

"I decided to take one last dive to see if I could see any and Carson decided to swim ashore."

Foster said when he came up for air he saw Carson waving to him frantically.

He looked back and coming straight for him was a big killer whale.

"I knew it was useless to try to swim to shore," he said.

"He was less than 30 feet away and there was no escape. I donned my mask and faced him. He approached and passed me at a distance of about 10 feet but not before sizing me up."

Foster said he and Carson managed to count 69 sea otters in the area in a helicopter survey.

"I'm sure there are more because as many as 89 have been counted by other parties."

Earlier this year, Foster and Ian MacAskie, a biologist with the federal biological station at Nanaimo, suggested that Checleset Bay be established as an ecological reserve for sea otters.

"We have already received a petition from citizens requesting the the government to designate the area an ecological reserve," he said.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have established sea otter colonies.

The otters weigh between 50 and 80 pounds and frequent kelp beds.

NEW KINGS TO BE CROWNED SUNDAY

Soccer in a Cauldron

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The new kings of soccer will be crowned Sunday when Argentina and Holland meet in a World Cup final that promises to provide a feast of attacking football.

The River Plate Stadium will be a boiling cauldron of pent-up emotion as the two teams hurl themselves into the match which represents the climax of two years of qualifying matches involving almost every country on earth.

The Argentines, swaggering, aggressive and full of running power, are favored, but the dashing Dutchmen and their "total football" have already shown an amazing ability to conjure goals out of nothing.

Apart from the 80,000 fans seething with excitement in the stadium, the match will be watched by a worldwide television audience in excess of 1.5 billion.

Neither country has previously won soccer's greatest prize and the team that triumphs will be only the sixth world champion since the competition began in 1930.

History is on the side of the Argentines. No European team has ever won the cup in South America. Brazil, the only country to win three World Cups, is also the only team to have won the trophy outside its own continent, the 1958 triumph in Sweden standing in splendid isolation.

Additionally, Argentina can draw strength from the fact that host nations have won four of the previous 10 World Cups. The backing of fans and familiarity with playing conditions and climate are all powerful arguments for an Argentine victory.

But will the crucifying pressure be more than the Argentines can bear? The fanaticism of their supporters has been seen after every Argentine match as hundreds of thousands embark on wild celebrations, honoring a past victory and demanding another one.

Holland, whose handful of supporters will be a tiny voice unheard over the roar of the Argentines appears unruffled by the size and noise of the crowd. For the Dutch and their Austrian manager Ernst Happel, victory would be sweet but defeat would not be the national disaster it would be for Argentina.

Both countries have reached the final once before: Holland was beaten by West Germany in the 1974 final while Argentina lost to Uruguay in the inaugural event in 1930.

Fittingly, the two finalists were the top scoring sides in the six-match qualifying program held over the last two weeks. Holland has scored 14 goals and conceded six in winning three matches, drawing two and losing one. Argentina has a 12-3 record from four wins, one draw and one defeat.

Eckert Powers Budgets

The claim from Aurora, Ill., is that Darryl Day is one of the premier swatters in softball.

For the moment, Victoria Budgets are happy to have Dennis Eckert.

Into softball for only four years, the 24-year-old rookie outfielder came through in magnificent fashion Friday to spark Budgets to a sweep of their exhibition doubleheader with Aurora Home Saving, the United States national finalists for the past four years.

Eckert belted home runs in each game as Victoria defeated Aurora 3-1 and 8-4 at Royal Athletic Park in a continuation of Budgets' 1978 "Super Series."

It was Eckert's homer in the bottom of the eighth, following a double by second baseman Carl Walker, that broke a 1-1 tie and provided Victoria with the extra-inning decision over Aurora ace Dick Brubaker.

Eckert also scored Budgets' first run with the help of an error, a sacrifice by playing manager Harvey Stevenson and Bob Burrows' smashing single.

Eckert continued his hitting heroics in the second game with a three-run homer in the third.

The two homers boosted Eckert's total for the season to seven to tie Burrows for the team lead in that department.

Alden Govenlock, another rookie, also connected for a home run in the fourth but Budgets needed a four-run burst in the sixth to pull off Friday's sweep before about 900 fans.

A two-run homer by Bob Quinn in the top of the fourth and his double in the sixth, producing another pair of runs, enabled Aurora to tie the game 4-4 and set the stage for Victoria's telling outburst.

Eckert overshadowed Brubaker, Day and the return of pitcher Stan Kern but Andy Konopacki managed to share some of Friday's glory with the outfielder.

The Packer held Aurora to four hits in recording the first-game victory, then came back in relief to grab credit for the win in the nightcap.

Kern, recovering from a back problem, made his first start in over a month inthe second game. The Colonel retired nine of the first 10 batters before giving way to Dave Wilson.

Wilson mowed down the first five he faced before running into problems in the sixth. With two out, one run in and the bases loaded, Konopacki came in to put out the fire.

Budgets tagged Brubaker and second-game starter Ron Sterkel for nine hits in each game. Walker, Burrows and Govenlock each collected a pair in the opener while Reg Underwood and Eckert matched it in the nightcap.

Aurora's major contributors in a doubleheader that provided some of the most exciting action of the season were Terry Muck and Quinn, each with two hits in the second game.

Teams conclude their four-game series with another doubleheader tonight, starting at 7.

Aurora 000 010 00--1 4 1
Budgets 000 100 02--3 9 2
Dick Brubaker 12-1 and Dick Zuccato, Bob Quinn (5); Andy Konopacki 11-1 and Alden Govenlock. Home run: Budgets—Dennis Eckert (6th).

Aurora 000 202 0--4 5 2
Budgets 003 104 x--8 9 1
Ron Sterkel 8-1 and Zuccato, Quinn (5); Stan Kern, Dave Wilson (4), Konopacki 12-1 (6) and Bob Burrows. Home runs: Aurora—Quinn; Budgets—Eckert (7th), Govenlock (1st).

Bellingham Youths Show No Respect

BELLINGHAM — Bellingham Mariners' manager Bob Didier thinks Victoria Mussels' "old men" are giving his kiddie corps some good competition in the early stages of the Northwest Baseball League season.

The average age of the Victoria team works out to 22. Bellingham's roster, stocked by the parent Seattle Mariners of the American League, averages about 19 years.

Bellingham's youngest player is pitcher Elias Salva, a heat-throwing 16-year-old from Puerto Rico. Mariners oldest players are 22-year-old are Tracy Harris and Mike White.

But the elders get no respect from Bellingham's youngsters.

The Mariners won their third game in four meetings with Victoria by defeating the Mussels 4-0 behind the combined four-hit pitching of 19-year-old Jack Hobbs, Anthony Malasso and Ron Pietroburgo.

Hobbs, who struck out 12 in the seven innings he toiled, took credit for the victory.

A two-run homer by old man White capped a four-run outburst by Bellingham in the first inning. The Mariners jumped on Victoria starter Bob Watkins for all their runs.

Watkins was replaced by Dale Mahorcic and the Victoria reliever turned in a solid performance to blank Mariners the rest of the way.

Still not hitting with the authority manager Jim Chapman expects, Victoria got two hits from designated hitter Mike Carey and one each from Vito Lucarelli and Bob Potts.

Mussels' outfielder Kevin Newby was struck in the chest by a line drive during the pre-game batting pratice. Although he played, Newby complained of some pain and was to undergo a medical checkup today.

The teams meet here again tonight and return to Victoria's Royal Athletic Park for their sixth meeting Sunday afternoon, starting at 2. Don Rogelstad will draw the starting assignment for Victoria tonight.

Bellingham 400 000 000—4 9 2
Bob Watkins 0-1, Dale Mahorcic (1) and Vito Lucarelli; Jack Hobbs, Anthony Malasso (8), Ron Pietrobergo (9) and Dave Valle. Home run: Bellingham—Mike White.

Pat Is Learning To Live by Goals

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — If Pat McGowan had any doubts about his psychocybernetics studies at Brigham Young University, he's fast becoming a believer.

The 23-year-old from Colusa, Calif., is setting "worthwhile, pre-determined goals" his first year on the PGA tour and learning to live by them.

McGowan turned in a 68—three under par—Friday to move into a tie for the lead with fellow Californian and tour neophyte Jeff Hewes at 140, two under par after 36 holes of the $250,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

Hewes, a stringbean U.S. army veteran who twice had his playing card pulled because he wasn't able to pull in enough money on the tour, faltered to a 73 after a sensational wind-blown 67 Thursday over Glen Abbey's 7,050-yard layout.

They were one shot clear of Jim Colbert and John Schroeder, Colbert after a round of 70 and Schroeder a 67. Bob Shearer, another tour regular, carded his second straight 71 and was alone at even-par 142.

Grouped at 143 were Monday qualifier Bill Pelham (69), George Burns (70) Mike McCullough (70) and Bruce Lietzke (67). The rounds of 67 tied the competitive course records set in last year's Open by defending champion Lee Trevino and equalled Thursday by Hewes.

Conditions Friday, unlike the strong winds that plagued the golfers Thursday, made for much improved scores in general. Whereas only seven golfers were able to match par or better Thursday, 27 were at 71 or better for Friday's round.

Ben Crenshaw, who led the field briefly at three under par in the afternoon before staggering through 18 (his ninth of the day) with a nine, recovered to finish with a 74 and was grouped at 144 with Wayne Levi (71), Ed Sneed (69) Bob Shaw (71) and Mark Lye (73).

Jack Nicklaus, who said he designed Glen Abbey to benefit the complete player, was still in contention for the $50,000 winner's purse at 145 after a round of 72.

He was joined at that figure by South African Gary Player (71), Trevino (71), Tom Purtzer (69) and Lee Elder (72).

No Canadians survived the halfway cut of 151. The nine-over-par cutoff was tied for the highest cutoff on the tour this year, joining the Tournament Players Division tourney in Florida.

"We studied psychocybernetics at Brigham Young in '77," McGowan was saying in his post-round resume.

He said he now "always" sets goals, so far as his golf career goes, from the beginning:

"I first wanted to play with my idols, like Nicklaus, (Arnold) Palmer and Trevino. Then I wanted to make the cut on the PGA tour. Next I wanted to finish in the top 10." Having realized all those goals, McGowan said, "Now it's to win."

The solemn-appearing McGowan's philosophy belies his looks. He sees life as "getting a raise of emotions."

He's collected more than $13,000 on the tour this year after finally getting over the emotional peak of making the cut. It took him five tour events to make the half-way cut, and he's only missed once since while competing in 20 tourneys.

Another of his goals was reached at the Inverarry Classic in Florida, where he tied for 10th.

But if any of his goals gives him the most troubles, it's playing with what for him have become the legends of the pro tour.

"I was tied for second in the New Orleans Openuafter shooting 68-66 the first two days. Then they teed me up with Gary Player and I shot 75-75. I still get awestruck by the big ones."

ENDURANCE COULD BE FOSTER FACTOR

Endurance of men and machines might play a major role in deciding the eventual winner of the Billy Foster Memorial Trophy for stock car drivers during the feature race tonight at Western Speedway.

Stock car drivers, more familar with 25-lap main events, will be racing for 60 laps in the annual competition at the Langford oval.

Gordie Stone, the points leader and track record holder, appears the driver to beat in his 1966 Mustang.

But don't count out runner-up Al Miller, who unlike Stone, has completed every single main event in his 1968 Cougar. Stone failed to finish one because of a blown radiator.

Dividend-Producing Bonds Good Purchase

By The Canadian Press

Now that Bobby Bonds is signed and sealed, he's starting to deliver for Texas Rangers.

Bonds, who was traded to Texas by Chicago White Sox on May 16 and only recently signed a $2 million five-year contract, hit a pair of three-run homers in the first game and a two-run double in the nightcap to lead the Rangers to a 7-0, 8-4 doubleheader sweep over California Angels Friday night.

The eight RBIs in the tied Toby Harrah's club record and helped the Rangers move into second place in the American League West, one-half game ahead of California and a half game behind Kansas City Royals, who split a 5-3, 4-5 doubleheader with Oakland A's.

In other AL action, Boston Red Sox downed Baltimore Orioles and Jim Palmer 5-2, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 12-3, Seattle Mariners beat Milwaukee Brewers 3-0, Minnesota Twins defeated Chicago White Sox 2-1 and Cleveland Indians beat Toronto Blue Jays 8-3.

While Bonds was providing the bulk of the Texas offence, Ferguson Jenkins handcuffed the Angels on five hits in the opener for his 41st career shutout and passed Hall of Famer Christy Mathewson for 12th place on the all-time strikeout list. The veteran right-hander from Chatham, Ont., fanned six for a total of 2,509.

Bonds hit his three-run homers in the fourth and fifth innings off Chris Knapp.

"Since I've signed my contract, I have a relaxed mind and I can perform," Bonds said.

In the National League, Burt Hooton pitched a three-hitter and Steve Garvey hit his ninth homer to give Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 win over Cincinnati Reds.

The victory kept the third-place Dodgers 5½ games behind San Francisco Giants in the National League West while the Reds, losing for the only the second time in nine outings, fell two games behind the Giants.

Elsewhere, St. Louis Cardinals beat Montreal Expos 5-4, Philadelphia Phillies moved into first place in the East with a sweep over Chicago Cubs by identical 6-1 scores, the Giants routed Atlanta Braves 9-0, San Diego Padres blanked Houston Astros 3-0 and New York Mets beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in 11 innings.

Nancy Trails by Six Shots

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Jane Blalock fired a five-under-par 67 Friday to break a woman's course record at the Hershey Country Club and grab a two-stroke lead after the opening round of the $50,000 Lady Keystone Open.

Six strokes back was rookie sensation Nancy Lopez, who was stumbling in her bid to extend her all-time women's professional golf record to six straight victories and close in on the men's record of 11 in a row set by Byron Nelson in 1945.

Her 37-36—73 left her six strokes back in the pack with 36 holes to play on the demanding 6,398-yard course. The winner takes home $7,500.

"I just didn't have the concentration today," Lopez said. "I was tired. I was thinking about interviews instead of my golf game."

Blalock, who lost to Lopez in a stretch duel last weekend at Rochester, N.Y., has won 19 tournaments in her 10 years on the tour. She made a late charge Friday, picking up five birdies on the back side for a 35-32—67.

Two strokes back was Peggy Conley, with a three-under-par 69, followed by Pat Bradley, Eva Chang, Jane Renner, all with 70s.

Blalock, who has won $46,000 this year for a career total of $521,000, captured rookie of the year honors in 1969.

In 1977, Blalock became the fourth woman ever to earn more than $100,000 in a single season.

The last time Lopez recorded an over-par round was May 26 at New Rochelle, N.Y., where she shot a 73. Sixteen of her last 18 rounds have been par or better, and of the 20 LPGA tournaments she's played in, she's finished lower than 16th only three times.

Outsiders Reduce Play

Horse racing operators look to the mutuel play rather than a nose count as their measure of success at the track.

For that reason, they like to see the favorites come in.

"Favorites reflect in the mutuel handle," Sandown Raceway general manager Jim Keeling, Jr., explains. "When your betting choices are coming in, it means a greater play at the windows. The money keeps circulating.

"Longshot payoffs have an opposite effect."

Timing of the favorites can also have an effect.

Friday, for example, longer shots dominated the first half of the harness racing card at Sandown Park but the favorites took over in the second half. The probable result of the early success of outsiders was a decrease in betting for only the second time in 12 days.

Friday's handle was $73,204, a drop of less than $2,000 from the corresponding day the previous week.

Favorites scored in only two of the first six races but swept the final four races. Keeling figures if the trend had been reversed, the betting decrease might have been avoided.

Mr. Ming, in the first, and Step Dance, in the fourth, were the only pacers to contribute to "good circulation" early. Woodys Kat, Zigger, Trevor John and Butternut Jet were the popular winners of the final four races.

Dave Jungquist drove Butternut Jet to to record his second victory of the day and maintain his position as the leading driver. The two wins boosted Jungquist's 12-day total to 13, four ahead of Joe Hudon, Joe Mohorich and Willie Urquhart. Greg Tonkin scored with overlooked Linda Quill in the sixth to chalk up his eighth triumph.

Linda Quill's return of $19.70 was the day's biggest return for a win ticket.

The day's biggest payoff, however, was a $166.90 exactor when Zigger and Honor M Ann finished one-two in the eighth. Well-regarded Arrow Panaro finished third.

Movers Protest Defeat

Webb and Trace defeated Taylor House Movers 7-4 on the field but the team will have to wait for a verdict from the protest committe before Friday's Heywood Men's Softball League game becomes official.

Taylor officials protested the game on the grounds winning-pitcher Greg Gagne used an illegal "rocker" motion while on the mound.

Gagne yielded seven hits and struck out seven batters. He had problems only with Bob Palmer, who clouted a pair of two-run homers to account for all of the Movers' runs.

Catcher Al Pearce and first baseman Dave Falconer each drove in two runs for the winners.

Rockies Sign Former Tiger

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Rockies have signed centre Merlin Malinowski, their second-round pick in the recent National Hockey League amateur draft.

Ray Miron, Rockies vice president and general manager, announced the signing Wednesday, less than 24 hours after announcing the signing of the team's first-round pick, left winger Mike Gillis.

Malinowski, 19, played the last two years with Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

SIZZLING RUN BY FOSTER

LONDON (Reuter) — Brendon Foster of Britain set a European record Friday at the British Amateur Athletics Association championships in equalling the second fastest 10,000 metres ever run. Foster's time of 27 minutes 30.5 seconds matched the official world record of Kenya's Samson Kimombwa, but was eight seconds outside the time of Kenyan Henry Rono that is awaiting ratification.

Affirmed Out Until August

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Triple Crown winner Affirmed will not race again until August, passing up the $200,000 Swaps Stakes on July 2 at Hollywood Park, trainer Laz Barrera has confirmed.

Barrera had previously indicated that Affirmed, who last ran in the Belmont Stakes on June 10, was a definite possibility for the Swaps Stakes. That is the race in which 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew suffered his only loss, to J.O. Tobin.

Alouettes' Roster Down to Limit

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran Canadian defensive back Rod Woodward was among six players released by Montreal Alouettes as the Canadian Football League team reduced its roster to the allowable 45 players.

GEORGE BEST FLITS TO FORT LAUDERDALE STRIKERS

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Fort Lauderdale Strikers announced Friday they had obtained free-spirited George Best from Los Angeles Aztecs in a North American Soccer League trade. Best, a two-time English footballer of the year, has scored only one goal in 12 games with the Aztecs this season.

ANNUAL STATEMENT OF THE VICTORIA FOUNDATION DECEMBER 31, 1977

AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Members of the Advisory Board of
The Victoria Foundation:

We have examined the balance sheet of The Victoria Foundation as at December 31, 1977, and the statements of contributed principal funds and receipts and disbursements for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests and other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Foundation as at December 31, 1977, resulting from cash transactions and its receipts and disbursements for the year then ended, and are presented on a basis consistent with that of the preceeding year.

Sign Striker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Striker Bobby Campbell has signed a 1978 contract with Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League.

Campbell, six-foot-one and 190 pounds, scored 11 goals in 32 league games last season, the Whitecaps said, and is "a strong player in the air."

Thompson, Anderson Lead Seniors' Tourney

Former Pacific Northwest champion Bill Thompson of Victoria Golf Club captured low-gross honors and Jack Anderson of Gorge Vale topped the handicap competition Friday in a Vancouver Island Seniors Golf Association's annual tournament at the Gorge Vale course.

Also a former provincial seniors' champ, Thompson paced the big field with a five-over-par 77.

Anderson, a 17-handicapper, fired a gross 81 and won the handicap trophy with a net 64.

Ralph Baker of Royal Colwood finished second in the gross section, one stroke behind Thompson, and several golfers were tied at 79.

MOHAWKS' COACH

CALGARY (CP) — Mike Lambros, a former linebacker with Edmonton Eskimos, has been named head coach of Calgary Mohawks of the Prairie Junior Football League.

Brentwood College Crews Head for Henley

MILL BAY — Two coaches and 20 oarsmen from Brentwood College are bound for the Royal Henley rowing regatta starting next week in England. Two eights crews and one fours will enter the regatta. The heavyweight eight, competing strictly against other schools and not college-age crews, probably has the best chance for a medal.

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA
announces
DEGREE COMPLETION
PROGRAMMES

FACULTY OF ARTS AND SCIENCE
FACULTY OF FINE ARTS

Beginning in the Winter Session of 1978-79, students able to study on a part-time evening basis only will be able to complete degrees in the following disciplines: Arts and Science Biology, Creative Writing, English, Geography, History, Political Science, Psychology; Fine Arts History in Art.

Participating departments will provide a sufficient range of evening courses over a five-year period to ensure that evening students can complete requirements for a major. While evening courses will not be as extensive as day offerings, the range of offerings will be sufficient to permit some choice within each discipline.

Evening Degree Completion Programmes will operate primarily at the third and fourth year level. Students lacking the necessary prerequisites may be able to qualify by selecting from other evening offerings of the University or Camosun College.

Students registering for 6 units of evening courses each year can complete two full years of study over a five-year period. Progress can be accelerated by registering for inter or Summer Session courses.

Students who wish to complete first and second year courses on a part-time evening basis prior to registering for Evening Degree Programmes at the University, may wish to consult the offerings of Camosun College (telephone 592-1281).

In addition to courses offered in the Degree Completion Programmes, the University offers additional credit courses in the Faculty of Arts and Science in the evening and downtown at noon, and in the Faculty of Education in the evening and late afternoon.

The Long-term Care Program.

"What makes it a new way to care about people ?"

I've heard a lot about this Long-Term Care Program—what I'd like to know is exactly how this Program differs from what we've had in the past. What, specifically, is 'new' about it?

In the past, those who required special care due to health problems often had to leave their homes to receive the necessary care. Services were scattered, difficult to locate and too expensive for many people.
The purpose of the new Program is to co-ordinate care services and make them available to everyone who needs them—in the comfort of their own homes, wherever possible—at an affordable cost.
We believe British Columbia residents should be able to receive the care they need, without financial hardship, while maintaining as much dignity and independence as possible.

Oh, so the emphasis is on home care?

Yes. While the Program does provide for residential care wherever needed, home care, homemaker services and home maintenance and repair are of prime importance.

They say the Program is not just for the elderly—is that true?

Very definitely. The Long-Term Care Program is for any British Columbia resident—young or old—who requires long-term care for health-related reasons.

You know, I think I know of someone who could benefit from the Program. Where should she go to apply?

You can get complete information and discuss your particular needs at the Long-Term Care Office in the local health unit. It's as simple as that.

So far, so good. It sounds like a straightforward, logical approach. But now comes the big question—how much will this cost the person receiving the care?

As far as care in the home is concerned, there is often no cost involved at all. For example, there is no charge for Home Care Services where they are provided with referral from your doctor, and no charge for Homemaker Services where family unit incomes fall below certain guidelines—ranging from $296 for a single person to $745 for five persons. In a residential facility, the basic cost is $6.50 per day. No extra or hidden charges can be made. However, a Room Differential may be charged where the accommodation exceeds the standards set by the Licensing Board—for example, private or semi-private rooms. These Room Differentials may run to a maximum of $9.00 per day. The Long-Term Care Administrator at the your local health unit can provide complete details regarding your particular circumstance.

Perfect Display by Bo Mearns

CALGARY (CP) — Victoria's Bo Mearns, riding the Flying Nun, came up with a perfect performance Friday at Spruce Meadows to win the ATCO Canadian open jumper class during second-day competition in the race for the national championship.

The veteran riding combination defeated another British Columbia resident, Langley's Alan Brand, riding Sibilation, in a jump-off after they were the only two to, complete a clear ride in the preliminary round.

Victory for Mearns, coupled with her seventh place showing in Thursday's first round of action, vaults her and the Flying Nun into a first- place tie for the Canadian open jumper championships with today's opponent the Brand-Sibilation team that finished third Thursday.

Both teams have 143 points, five more Edmonton's Mark Laskin, on Damuraz.

It was the same old story in the open hunter division as Californian Lu Thomas, riding K-Doc, continued to strike gold during her Canadian tour. The win Friday was the 17th class in a row that Thomas has captured, making her an overwhelming favorite to win the Canadian title when the four-day national winds up Sunday.

But first place wasn't good enough for Lu whose husband Graeme, aboard Aramis, won the open jumper section 1 event for the second day in a row. She also rode Wait For Me to a second-place finish and if thet wasn't enough, she placed fifth astride Fantastico.

Mearns used a new bridle for better control of the strong 13-year-old mare and longer studs to conduct the slick terrain after heavy rains dampened the course.

"Having a veteran horse was definitly an advantage," explained Mearns. "I think the younger horses had a rough time travelling through the heavy turf."

Although only two made it to the jump-off, it was considered a hotly-contested event with nine of the 14 competitors registered four faults or less during the initial go-round.

Brown Expense OK

Comptroller-General Keith Lightbody said Friday that the $36,000-a-year communications adviser to Premier Bill Bennett did not improperly receive daily allowance payments in 1976 as alleged by the NDP.

Lightbody said in a letter to Lorne Nicolson (NDP—Nelson-Creston), who led the NDP attack against Dave Brown during a session of the legislature's public accounts committee Tuesday, that it appears photocopy duplicates of some of Brown's expense statements led to a misunderstanding.

Nicolson said Brown claimed a $25-a-day expense fee for 84 days when he actually only worked 63 days in the fall of 1976.

"My staff has reviewed and checked the vouchers in question and I can assure you that there are no duplicate payments of per diem living allowances," Lightbody said.

Meanwhile, Brown sent a letter to Nicolson criticizing the NDP MLA for being too quick to criticize and not responsible enough to do proper research.

B.C. CAUTION ON MALARIA

British Columbians planning to travel to countries where malaria is a risk have been urged by Health Minister Bob McClelland to take along a supply of preventive medication.

"Areas where malaria is known to exist include Africa, parts of Mexico, Central America, Haiti, South American, parts of Greece, Turkey and the Middle East, the Indian subcontinent, Southern Asia, Indonesia, the Philippines, Korea and Oceania," McClelland said.

In B.C. last year 267 persons who had visited malarious countries were found upon their return here to have the disease.

'Top Bid' Cheapest: Wolfe

A new computer services contract with IBM Canada Ltd. will save the provincial government $766,000 in the next three years, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said Friday.

Wolfe, in an interview, was clarifying the contract which was questioned Thursday by Norm Levi (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard).

Levi said that when the awarding of the contract was announced on Wednesday, D. A. Alexander, president of the Crown-owned B.C. Systems Corporation, said IBM's bid was for about $3 million.

However, Wolfe said in the legislature that IBM bid $3.8 million to provide the new computer, while Amdahl Ltd. of Toronto bid $2.95 million and Itel Canada Ltd. of Toronto bid $2.5 million.

The minister said Friday the anomaly was due to two different sets of figures being referred to.

He that when the companies submitted bids they were asked to outline figures for a three-year lease with option—to—purchase plan, a three-year lease plan, and an outright purchase plan.

The contract was awarded on the basis of a three-year lease with option—to—purchase proposal, Wolfe said, and was for $3 million. The $3.8 million figure was for the straight purchase plan.

He said that nevertheless IBM was the lowest evaluated bidder on all three plans.

Pensions Ruled No Issue

Union workers employed by four Crown organizations would no longer be able to negotiate their pensions under the provisions of a bill introduced Friday in the legislature.

The attorney-general's Miscellaneous Statutes Amendment Act contains sections which prohibit such bargaining at B.C. Hydro, the Insurance Corp. of B.C., the B.C. Railway and the Workers' Compensation Board.

Because of its omnibus nature, the bill received quick approval in principle and now awaits detailed committee consideration.

Labor Minister Allan Williams defended the move, saying it would bring Crown firms into line with the Public Service Commission which is prohibited from negotiating pensions with the B.C. Government Employees Union.

He said that if pensions are continually renegotiated to provide increased payments, the funds could run dry. This, he said, would lead to the breakdown of the whole concept of pensions.

In Vancouver, Dave MacIntyre, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the act is a complete and total violation of the fundemental right of collective bargaining.

MacIntyre said in a news release that it is apparent from the amendments that the government is determined to make public sector workers second class citizens.

"Workers in the private sector have long had the right to bargain pensions, but this Social Credit government has chosen not to respect that right for a large section of British Columbians," he said.

MacIntyre said the government is using its added power as both employer and government to violate rights that they would otherwise have to negotiate.

"The whole manoeuvre stinks, and as far as I am concerned this government ought to be ashamed of itself," he said.

B.C. APPEALS NEB RULING ON TAX FUND

The provincial government has applied for leave to appeal a National Energy Board of Canada ruling that would allow Westcoast Transmission Ltd. an increase in rates to build up a fund for paying future taxes.

Premier Bill Bennett said in a news release Friday that the board decision would pose an average annual increase of $30 to $60 for residential gas heating customers in B.C.

"It would also result in substantial revenue losses for the Crown-owned B.C. Petroleum Corporation," Bennett said.

He said that, in general, he feels the decision will result in a substantial hardship to British Columbians with no offsetting benefits.

Schools Act Changes

An amendment to the Public Schools Act introduced in the legislature Friday will make it easier for teachers to serve as administrators and then return to the classroom.

Education Minister Pat McGeer said in a news release he believes teaching is a higher calling than that of administration, so he wants to make it easier for teachers to do what they do best even after spending years in executive positions.

Among other changes introduced are:

—An amendment to the Public Schools Act allowing a school board the alternative of appointing a school principal or similar administrator for a limited term.

—Several amendments to the act to enable zonal arbitration.

—Amendments to the Colleges and Provincial Institutes Act clarifying the right of the academic, occupational training and management advisory councils to manage their own financial affairs.

—An amendment giving the newly-established Open Learning Institute the opportunity to grant baccalaureate degrees in arts and sciences under its own name.

—Amendments to the Independent Schools Support Act, allowing for definition of qualifying pupils, and for extension of the act's provisions to six schools which meet the intent of the B.C. Societies Act but are organized as non-profit corporations under federal legislation.

The amendments were given a speedy approval in principle and now await detailed committee consideration.

In Vancouver, Pat Brady, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, said the bill's provision for fixed-term appointments of school administrators opens the door for subsequent legislation to enable school boards to put all teachers on term appointments.

He said the bill's provision, allowing for the naming of a single arbitrator to settle a number of disputes, represents an unfortunate movement away from local autonomy, a concept to which we are committed.

Secondary processing is a big part of B.C. mining.

Many people believe that mining in B.C. consists mainly of extracting ores from the ground and producing mineral concentrate for export to foreign markets. But there's also a good deal of secondary processing within our province—in fact, many thousands of people are now employed in this "other side" of B.C.'s mining industry.

A major centre for secondary mineral processing is located in the City of Trail. Here, at the giant Cominco operation, mineral concentrate from many sources is converted into lead, zinc and other finished metals... while a by-product of metal production is used to produce chemical fertilizers. An important source of concentrate for Trail is the Sullivan Mine at Kimberley... but concentrate is also received from over 20 other B.C. mines, from Pine Point in the Northwest Territories and from other world sources. This Canadian-owned operation provides direct employment for nearly 4,000 people, and indirectly supports many thousands of others.

B.C. is also an important producer of aluminum. The Alcan smelter at Kitimat has a capacity of 300,000 tons of finished aluminum yearly, for sale both within Canada and abroad. More than 2,500 people are employed at this operation... and, as with the Trail plant, thousands more depend on activity at Alcan for their livelihood.

The plants of Cominco at Trail and Alcan at Kitimat are major centres for secondary mineral processing—but there are also other such operations within British Columbia. At Afton near Kamloops, for example, B.C.'s first modern copper smelter began operating during 1977.

The export of mineral concentrate to foreign nations will continue to be an important part of B.C.'s mining activity. But secondary processing will play an increasingly prominent role in years to come. It's all part of the process of development which makes mining a vital economic force in British Columbia.

Indians Lose Fight For Tax Exemption

OTTAWA (CP) — An Indian who lives on a reserve must pay federal income taxes on monies earned outside the reserve, the Federal Court has ruled.

The decision is a blow to Caughnawaga, Que., ironworker Russell Snow and the National Indian Brotherhood, which is locked in a major income tax fight with the federal government. It likely will be used as a precedent affecting all status Indians who live on reserves and hold jobs on the outside.

Snow is one of those Caughnawaga men well-known for their talents in skyscraper building. During 1969, he earned $9,591 on jobs in Canada and the United States but did not claim it on his income tax return.

The personal property of an Indian on a reserve is not taxable. Snow, and others, argue that on Indian's wages, no matter where they are earned, are his personal property and are not taxable.

Mr. Justice Frank Collier, in a decision made public Friday, said he cannot accept arguments that Snow's off-reserve income was personal property situated on the reserve.

"The property was, at the time it was received, in my view, situated in various places in the United States and Canada," he wrote.

"None of them were on the reserve."

There are many such Indian-owned development projects operating from reserves across the country and all will be affected by any decisions in the Gull Bay case.

When a so-called
"right" is a WRONG

Recently a full page advertisement attacking the trade union movement with a number of false and misleading statements was published in several B.C. newspapers. The ad was placed by the Independent Contractors and Businessmen's Association (ICBA), a group of anti-union employers whose primary purpose is to campaign for so-called "right to work" legislation. But "right to work" legislation is wrong and the campaign for it misleading.

What is "right to work"?

- So-called "right to work" laws prohibit workers from negotiating with their employers a "union security" agreement that all employees in a bargaining unit should be members of the union. Workers want this agreement because it protects them from a situation in which a small group of anti-union employees could be hired and used by the employer to disrupt the union and undermine wages and conditions.
- In spite of the attractive sounding phrase, "right to work" laws do not create new jobs, safeguard existing jobs or guarantee workers a job.
- "Right to work" is an American concept that has not been adopted anywhere in Canada. In the U.S. this so-called "right" has helped keep the minority of states that have it, such as Arkansas, Mississippi and the Carolinas, the poorest in that country. It is significant that after some initial inroads, only one state, Louisiana, has adopted "right to work" in the past 19 years, while a number of states have defeated the proposal.

Who wants "right to work"?

- Employers. The ICBA, an employers' group, paid for those "right to work" ads. There are no workers groups or unions that support the idea.
- Employers in the ICBA want "right to work" because they hope to weaken the trade union movement and drive down wages and conditions so they can reap more profit. Although they claim not to be anti-union, none of these employers will sign a collective agreement with their employees.
- Employers in the ICBA have launched a totally misleading campaign for "right to work". For example, their ad states that the B.C. Federation of Labour has a $700,000 fund contributed by the B.C. & Yukon Building Trades Council to fight "right to work". No such fund exists. In fact that would be more than the total annual budget of the Federation. What's more, the ad irresponsibly attacks union leaders who have been elected by the members, but the attack is a smokescreen designed to obscure the real purpose of so-called "right to work".

Why is "right to work" wrong?

- It is undemocratic. By prohibiting workers from having union security agreements such laws would allow the employer to use a minority to disrupt and obstruct the majority.
- By attempting to undermine the trade union movement, employers who support the so-called "right to work" hope to drive down wages and working conditions. If they succeed, incomes in B.C. will start falling behind the rest of Canada and everyone's standard of living will be hurt.
- With lower incomes, there is less of a tax base from which to provide funds for schools, health care, pensions and other social services.
- "Right to work" will create chaos in industrial relations at a time when just the opposite is needed.

The employers who want so-called "right to work" laws claim they are not out to undermine workers' rights, but that they are opposed to compulsory unionism. Well, there is no such thing as compulsory unionism. In fact only 45% of the work force in B.C. belong to unions. All we ask is that the democratic process of majority rule upon which all free societies are based, not be tampered with. When the majority of workers vote to have a union or to have a union security clause in their collective agreement, we think it is only fair and democratic that the majority view should be upheld.

We don't believe the majority of British Columbians want to see their province ruined by "right to work". We want to see the province continue to grow and prosper so that our incomes and standards of living remain good and so that we can provide decent incomes and social services for all our citizens.

If you agree with us, you can help by joining the campaign against the so-called "right to work". Contact your local union or the B.C. Federation of Labour for more information.

Pulling Those Nails

hand around the house

By A. J. HAND

Just about everyone knows how to drive nails. Getting them out is another matter, and in many cases, quite a hassle.

You may break the head off the nail you are trying to pull, or break the handle off the hammer you are pulling with. You might split or dent the parts you are trying so carefully to disassemble. You might even split your knuckles.

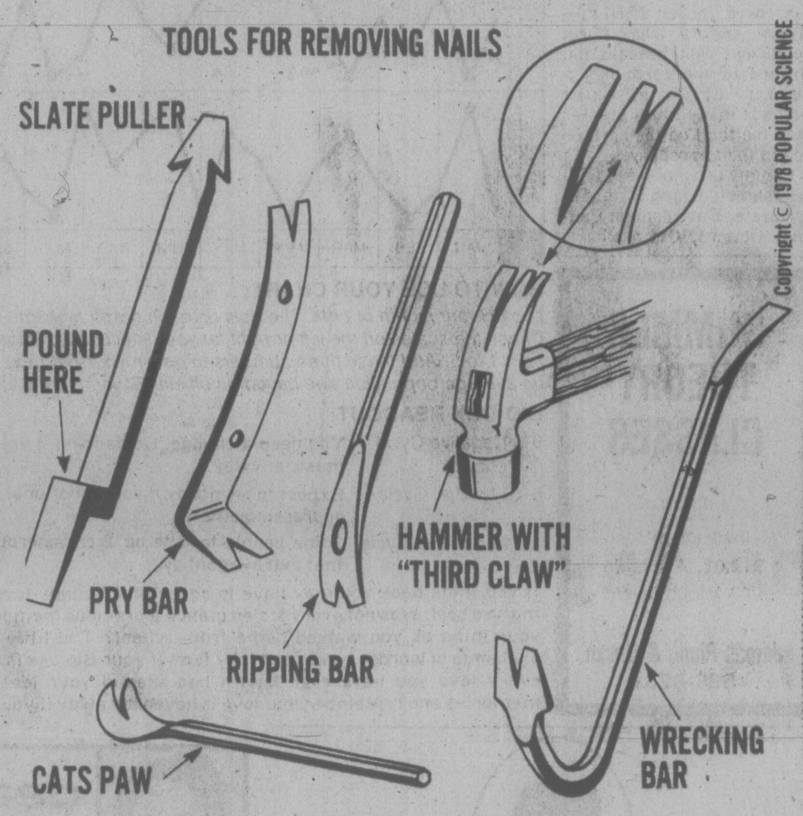
But you shouldn't experience these problems very often if you have the right tools and techniques. Here are some of the basic tools:

Tack puller — This tool looks like a screwdriver with a curved, forked tip. It's a lot less cumbersome than other tools when you want to remove tacks from upholstery, carpets, picture frames and the like. To use it you slip the tip under the head and pry. If you want to prevent marring of the tacked surface, slide a piece of cardboard or a tongue depressor under the tool before you pry.

Hammers — Most homeowners know how to use a hammer for pulling nails. Some hammers have a "third claw" as shown in the sketch. This is good for pulling small nails, and for working into tight spots, but it may break if used on large nails. Hammers are fine for pulling nails that are not fully driven. But once a nail has been driven in flush or below surface it becomes hard to grip with the hammer's claws. Other tools work much better.

Cat's paw — Here's a tool that works well on nails driven flush or even deeper. You can place its curved claw next to the nailhead, then hit the claw with a hammer to drive it down under and around the head. Pry and the nail will come up above surface. The cat's paw can pull relatively short nails all the way out, but it lacks a long enough draw stroke for big nails so you may have to finish the job with a hammer raised on a scrap of wood.

TOOLS FOR REMOVING NAILS



Pry bar — This thin tool is best for disassembling parts of your house without damage. You can slip its slim tip between pieces of siding — for example — to pry them apart. This will loosen the nail holding the siding in place. You can then pry the nails out using the hooked end of the tool. The wide surface of the bar minimizes marring as you pry. This is a good tool for removing moldings.

Ripping bar — Like the pry bar, this tool has a thin wide tip that prevents damage to parts being disassembled. The ripping bar is a huskier tool, however, and not quite as gentle. It's solid enough that you can use a hammer on its butt end to drive it between two boards you want to separate. The stroke this tool produces is short, so it won't pull long nails all the way out. Most ripping bars have a tapered slot behind the tip, however. You can slide this slot over the nailhead, then pry up on the tool to pull longer nails. If you do this, though, the tip of the tool will dig into your work unless you use a scrap of wood for padding.

Wrecking bar — This tool makes few concessions to neatness. It's main job is wrecking, getting things apart quickly even if those parts are destroyed. It has a tip for prying boards apart and for loosening nails. At the other end is a husky claw. In between is a long shaft that gives you all the leverage you need for pulling even the biggest spikes.

Slate puller — Though designed primarily for pulling nails on slate roofs, this tool comes in handy when repairing asphalt shingles, too. It's specialty is getting at nails that are hidden under overlaping shingles. To use it you slide it under the shingle you want to remove. Hook the tip around a nail, then pound on the handle as shown in the sketch.

A GOOD CHEWING-OUT

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR MR. MILLER: You've said chewing is good for dogs because it gives them something to do and something to relieve their frustrations. I tried this on Felix, my cat, but he won't chew anything unless it's food. What do frustrated cats do? — A.D.

DEAR A. D.: Frustrated cats do all sorts of things, most of them undesirable. You're right, though. Felines less frequently resort to chewing to cool down their frustrations. They usually will, with a little encouragement, unwind with games which bring out their hunting instincts. Batting about a feather-light cotton, wool or pingpong ball, tackling a crumpled up cellophane wad on a string, or simply batting about some similar object suspended in space will provide unwinding activities. Frequently the feline needs to be introduced to the appropriate play technique.

Once shown, and this usually involves chasing and/or batting at something, a cat can carry on by itself. Remember, whatever playthings you provide, avoid swallowable objects and strands of yarn, ribbon, or pieces of string which are all potentially dangerous.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My hound, George, grunts a lot. Any idea why he would do that?—H.W.

DEAR H.W.: It depends on how often and when. George's grunts could be merely a form of communication if they occur at times appropriate for this. If he grunts only on being picked up, it could be an expression of discomfort, resentment or resignation. Grunting accompanying labored breathing could signal a serious respiratory and/or circulatory condition. Some breeds are more likely to produce grunting sounds, particularly as a form of canine conversation, than others.

As if often the case, the significance of a particular habit or symptom depends upon the circumstances under which it occurs. If there's any doubt, a check-up is indicated. When there is no apparent discomfort or illness involved there is usualy no cause for concern. Common sense can often help you determine the difference.

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

When you have new carpeting and place a leftover piece near the front door, don't leave it there day in and day out. This is because the carpet underneath stays bright and isn't affected by dirt and chemicals in the air and when you try to match that area by shampooing all of the carpet, you just can't equal the hidden carpet's brightness. Also, the backing of the piece of carpet rubs against the carpet pile and causes the pile to wear faster than if you had walked on that section by the front door.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRAZER

Just one more chance . . .

Well, Standard Furniture are now in the final throes of their store-wide pre-inventory clearance sale . . . and if you haven't been down yet to see the terrific bargains on every one of Standard's eight exciting floors . . . you'd better do so quickly, or you'll be sorry! . . . Just one more week . . . one more chance . . . to pick up that extra piece of furniture that can add so much to the comfort and beauty of your home . . . With summer activities accelerating . . . maybe visitors expected . . . there's a good chance you need to add bits and pieces to your bedroom or dining room suites . . . that perfect "something" for a hard-to-fit corner . . . an extra chair or two . . . a sofa that doubles as a bed . . . an extra little table where guests can park their ashtrays and drinks . . . Or maybe just some brightly colored toss cushions to add a fillip to your decor! . . . But remember this . . . you've only got a week left to do you picking and choosing . . . less, in fact, because Saturday, July 1st the store will be closed . . . Pity the poor people at Standard! . . . while we're all off enjoying the holiday, they'll be slaving in the store counting their remaining merchandise for inventory . . . Let's help make it easier for them! . . . Standard Furniture Co., 737 Yates St., 382-5141.

Summertime charmers . . .

Some really delightful new summer dresses have just arrived in Eaton's Signature Shop! . . . Very feminine, very cool are the 100% printed cotton dresses . . . made in India and bearing the Treacy Lowe of London label . . . One is a two-piece style with scoop neckline, deepset sleeve . . . softly gathered skirt ending in a flounce . . . this in a pretty red and gold print . . . while a slightly different style is red, navy and white . . . Both are so light they look as if they might fly away! . . . Then there are several Del Costa dresses designed in Paris . . . Two tailored styles in 100% pure raw silk . . . Natural shade trimmed with brown . . . The one-piece dress has long sleeves, elasticized waist . . . and the 2-pce. brown and white dress with shirt top and full skirt, diagonally striped for an extra slimming effect . . . and a black and white jacket dress . . . the latter sleeveless, with pleated skirt . . . Prices of these Del Costas are particularly good! . . . New Randy dresses include a long polyester voile printed in small florals . . . a touch of smocking and small frill around the neck and waist . . . In either lilac or green tones . . . this would make a charming mother-of-the-bride gown . . . A short polyester crepe dress . . . sleeveless, with little shoulder shawl . . . is accordion pleated from neckline to hem . . . Pretty in either champagne or blue . . . Eaton's Signature Shop, 392-7141 loc. 242.

Here's your chance for Wetherall at a saving . . .

Clothes by Wetherall of London are just about the ultimate in quality classic sportclothes, we're convinced . . . We visited one of the Wetherall shops in London last month . . . Felt we were back home because our own Wetherall Shop here at the Bay has exactly the same styles . . . which even the Queen herself wears on occasion! . . . Well, starting next Thursday, June 29, Wetherall is holding its semi-annual clearance sale . . . which encompasses almost all the regular stock of capes, coats, suits, skirts and berets with reductions of up to 50%! . . . All the co-ordinated classics . . . reversible coats and skirts, will be reduced by 20% . . . as well as the top quality printed polyester crepe jacket dresses which are so timeless in style, yet so very up-to-the-minute in chic! . . . We do want to remind you that Wetherall wool garments are 100% wool . . . The tailoring is sheer perfection . . . and every Wetherall garment simply exudes quality! . . . In general . . . as far as dresses and knits are concerned . . . there will just be one of each style, so it's very unlikely you'll run into another like it on somebody else . . . Just to give you an inkling of one of the truly fantastic bargains we were shown this week . . . a gorgeous pure cashmere coat all hand-stitched, with whole or half, belt . . . double-breasted, in light or dark beige or black . . . And a wrap style in either black or camel . . . Just one of each . . . reduced from $375 to $281.25! . . . Don't miss visiting . . . Wetherall Shop, the Bay, 385-1311. loc. 295.

Handsome handbags by Jane Shilton . . .

Wilson's have just received a big new shipment of Jane Shilton handbags from England . . . every one of them genuine leather . . . (And if we'd ever had any doubts about the superiority of real leather they were dispelled during our recent trip in Europe when an overloaded plastic job literally fell apart!) . . . These new bags of Wilson's are extremely smart . . . Roomy without being bulky, and displaying the minimum of "hardware" and adornment . . . Leather that has been stamped to simulate black or brown alligator skin wasused for bags in four different styles . . . A small dressy bag with shoulder chain, which can also be used as a clutch . . . An envelope bag with several big compartments (would make a great travel bag which we'll bet would never fall apart!) . . . A bag with top opening, novelty catch at the side . . . and an elongated bag with removable shoulder strap . . . $55 to $115 for these . . . The other bags are all a fine quality calf . . . in mulberry, bone, navy, grey, black and brown . . . We especially admired the mulberry which we consider a very versatile "neutral" . . . going well with black, brown, navy, or practically any other color you're likely to wear . . . One style has open sides . . . Another is an envelope bag with tucked trip . . . A larger bag is almost like a tote with lots of room for everything . . . Prices for these handsome Jane Shilton handbags range from $40 to around $85, at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177 and 1210 Newport Ave., 592-2821.

Take your good clothes to "Twice Around" . . .

We'd been trying to get in to "Twice Around" Fashions ever since we returned home the end of May because this is such a fun place to visit . . . Full of surprises . . . in the shape of beautiful clothes at a fraction of their original purchase price! . . . Finally we made it last Tuesday . . . and did our usual oo-ing and ah-ing over the fine array of delectable wearables . . . many of them brand-new . . . others so slightly worn as to make no matter! . . . But before we go any further, we want to tell you this . . . and please note it carefully . . . "Twice Around" will be accepting SUMMER things for consignment only until July 31 . . . and receiving days are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. ONLY . . . Make sure your things are in excellent condition . . . freshly cleaned . . . and taken in on hangers . . . Right? . . . Now to get back to some of the beautiful bargains we saw this week . . . A lovely Ports dress in platinum polyester . . . Cost $125 . . . going for $46.69! . . . Albert Nipon denim blue and white wool dress with matching scarf . . . $135 when bought, but never worn . . . Around $43 here! . . . another brand new dress purchased in Tahiti has a long flounced skirt and halter top . . . and there's a pretty little cotton skirt and top from Barbados . . . Noticed several smart McMullens . . . A beautiful dinner gown with jacket . . . polyester satin with embroidered flowers . . . tagged at $39 . . . A pair of new grey Amalfi shoes, size 7½ . . . Don't miss out on this sale! . . .

They're referring to it as their month-end clearance sale . . . but actually the sale that's coming up at Miss Frith's next week is far more than that! . . . It's a sale which includes all their spring sportswear and dresses . . . with healthy markdowns of ¼, ⅓ and ½ off of what they've been selling for up to now! . . . there are some really good buys among these clothes . . . and if you're as clever as we think you are, you'll get down to Miss Frith's soon and stock up on things you're going to be able to wear in the months ahead . . . We're told there'll even be a few coats with their price tags cut in half! . . . But it isn't all spring merchandise by any means . . . There are lovely summer dresses . . . cool blouses and T-shirts . . . shorts, skirts, sundresses and pantsuits . . . real summer things that will keep you cool and crisp . . . or softly pretty . . . no matter how high the temperature soars . . . (It's mighty warm right now as we're glued to the typewriter . . . Sure wish we were garbed in one of Miss Frith's sundresses!) . . . Meanwhile, back at the store . . . fall things have started to arrive . . . If there's something special you'll be wanting, no harm in enquiring or putting in your bid now . . . Noticed a few velvet raincoats have arrived . . . these are dressy coats which will go far to rounding out your day or evening wardrobe next fall! . . . Miss Frith Fashions, 1619 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

Canada's Inland Water Directorate, a division of the Department of the Environment, has published a series of fascinating, illustrated folders.

The six-page folder Water — Nature's Most Versatile Substance mentions some of water's remarkable properties. It also states that the quantity of all the water in the world today, an estimated 1,360 million cubic kilometers, has remained unchanged during four or five billion years.

Another six-page folder Water Use in Canada says that about eight per cent of Canada is covered with fresh water. However, for the real measure of a country's water supply its the streamflow that counts.

A third folder Water — Where And In What Form points out that beneath the surface of the earth lies a huge reservoir of water which is many times greater than the total on the surface and in the atmosphere.

For any or all of these folders contact: Inland Water Directorate, Environment Canada, Ottawa, Ontario.

Bio-dex

June 25/78

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

© BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

|---|---|
| 0-5 Negative Cycle- | You need a change. Go dancing if you can, but try some lively music anyway. |
| 6-10 Neutral Cycle- | Expect to be moody if your emotional curve is low. Try to avoid depressing others. |
| 11-15 Positive Cycle- | Some people tend to be over-generous on a high cycle. Avoid that extravagant gift. |

If you think back you may have to agree that "puppy love" is much like the more mature sort. Was not every stolen glance a precious memory that you turned over in your mind as you walked home from school? The little notes . . . the stumbling exchange of words . . . weren't they fun? If your Bio-dex is low today remember that every love you have ever known has shaped your ideas and ideals. Enjoy the memories and remember that love is never far away if you keep looking.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I read that there is a growing problem of male impotence in North America, and no one seems to have the answer. I'm a male, and a fellow I work with may have put his finger on the reason. He says he is turned off by women in slacks, boots and mannish haircuts.

I agree with him. Nothing turns me on like a woman with long, soft, fragrant hair and a frilly feminine dress.

Clothes make the woman, too. If more men are becoming impotent, it just might be that the mannish look of some women is the cause. — LOVES LAVENDER AND LACE.

DEAR LOVES: If male impotence seems to be on the rise, it could be because (a) it has never before been as thoroughly recorded, or (b) male sexuality suffers from the revved up pace and intensified pressures of modern life.

Plenty of men are panting over women in long pants and short haircuts.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24, single and have been dating the same man for two years. Neither of us has dated anyone else since we met.

About a year ago, friends and relatives (especially aunts) began asking us (separately, of course), "When are you two going to get married?"

I must admit that when the questions first started I felt as if I had to come up with some kind of answer in order to satisfy people's curiosity. I think we'll eventually marry, but I want to live on my own awhile and not go directly from my parents' home to living with another person. My boyfriend feels the same way, and we're both happy with things as they are, but we can't seem to get this across to some people.

Some friends of mine recently broke up because of repeated questioning from her parents. He wasn't ready for marriage, and she started to pressure him to set a date.

I wish well-meaning friends would leave the decision and timing up to the people involved.. Thanks for letting me air my gripe. Is there anything I can say to stop these questions and still be polite? — NOT YET.

DEAR NOT: You can't stop insensitive and nosy people from asking questions that are none of their busines unless you put it just that way. An appropriate reply would be, "When we decide, we'll let you know."

DEAR ABBY: Our cat is about to have kittens. My wife and I disagree on whether our boy, five years old, should witness this event.

We consider the child to be above average in intelligence, and reasonably well-adjusted. He has already asked where babies come from. We would appreicate your opinion.

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: I see no reason why the boy should not witness this event. One picture is worth 10,000 words.

Great Strides in Stitchery Made

Samplers to record events and variations in stitches were first introduced in the late 1500s and printed embroidery books were known as early as 1631.

KNIT & CHAT
By MAY E. MAC LEAN

Amateur embroidery was greatly influenced in the early 19th Century by hand-painted charts imported from Germany. This style is often referred to as Berlin woolwork. The first charts appeared in 1804 and by 1840 no fewer than 14,000 different designs had been published.

In Scotland, Ayrshire white work, begun by an Italian embroiderer in 1782, was a special Scottish industry. There was at that time a great demand for lacey embroideries to replace lace from Europe which was so heavily taxed. By the middle of the 1800s it is estimated that half a million workers were employed.

In white work, satin stitch is used with contrasting openwork patterns. The designs were mainly floral so that the workers in some areas became known as "flowerers". Many beautiful examples of christening robes and bonnets of this period are still to be seen today.

The decline of this industry was attributed to the difficulty of obtaining raw cotton from abroad during the American Civil War, and to the change in women's fashion to the bustle, which required heavier material.

Exhibitions of design and embroideries abounded during Victoria's reign and several were patronized by royalty and nobility. A Miss Linwood who died in 1845 produced over one hundred wool-work pictures during her life of 90 years, and was held in high esteem by Queen Victoria.

Gradually as more and more books about embroidery and other craft subjects were published, plus the rural interest through Women's Institutes and other like organizations produced a revival of smocking, patchwork, embroidery and other home crafts.

During the Second World War austerity curtailed artistic creations. Many women though became versatile and improvised with odd threads and materials to overcome the lack of materials which the specialized industries had been compelled to drop or import.

Today we have such a variety of threads by which to embroider along with a variety of materials. Great strides have been made and more is yet to come in creative stitchery as is evident from the displays and exhibitions I have recently seen.

Light pleasant knitting with a downey soft mohair will help to pass the evenings on the patio or at the cottage and before you know it, you'll have a beautiful afghan for the cool fall evenings.

This lovely lacey afghan is knitted in just eight rows of pattern and can easily be memorized, and the panels are not too wide so they are quickly and easily handled.

To order Leaflet No. 0378, send 75 cents, PLUS a stamped self addressed return envelope, long one if possible. If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling, and print your name and address. Send to: May E. Mac Lean, "KNIT & CHAT", c/o 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, Que.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped return envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normal delivery. All back numbers in my series are available at 75 cents, catalogue, 25 cents. All orders must be accompanied with a stamped envelope or an extra 25 cents.

BOYS TO LEARN COOKING

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A committee of the London board of education voted Thursday to offer a co-educational course which combines industrial arts and family studies at selected elementary schools next fall.

The committee members agreed that both girls and boys should know how to prepare a meal as well as how to fix objects around the house.

CANCER TESTS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cancer researchers will begin testing a new form of Vitamin A next month to see if can prevent malignancies in humans, the Chicago Tribune has reported.

Dr. Michael Sporn, chief of the National Cancer Institute's lung cancer branch, was quoted as saying the new compound has been highly effective in stopping tumors in laboratory animals.

The doses given animals were so high that equivalent amounts would be poisonous in humans, the newspaper said in its Sunday editions. But the dangerous side effects have been reduced by researchers, the article said.

Vitamin A compounds, called retinoids, have been chemically changed by molecular manipulation, Sporn said.

"This is a brand new concept," he said. "We are taking a totally different approach in trying to prevent cancer rather than attempting to cure it once it has occurred."

The laboratory animals were given cancer-causing chemicals, then half were given a retinoid compound, Sporn said. Those given the compound developed far fewer cancers.

The compound has been given limited testing in humans with skin problems, the Tribune said, with researchers reporting encouraging results.

The more extensive human trials will involve patients who run a high risk of developing bladder cancer, Sporn said. Other groups expected to be tested later include people who have a high risk of developing lung and breast cancer.

The bladder cancer trials are scheduled to begin next month at Rush-Presbyterian St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago; Virginia Mason Clinic, Seattle; Medical College of Virginia, Richmond; Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, and the University of Iowa, Iowa City.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

|---|---|
| 0-5 Negative Cycle- | The person you pass on the street may be hungrier than you are. Fight self-pity. |
| 6-10 Neutral Cycle- | Get a text on book-keeping. Learn how to keep your finances in better order. |
| 11-15 Positive Cycle- | Your high cycle helps you deal with pain. The sun is peeping through the clouds. |

Convincing others is a key to success in many occupations. Timing is all-important and a chance word can often do the trick. Too many words and you can sound phoney and unconvincing. Try picking a high intellectual Bio-dex day to make your point, and watch for the reaction. If it's favorable, you won. Don't risk your business by any further words.

Immunology Tried

your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

It is fascinating to know that the science of immunology is now being applied to cancer. I have been trying to find some information about this, but cannot. What direction is this cancer research taking? I am a teacher in high school and would like to relay some of this information to my students. — Mrs. B.P.

Dear Mrs. P.:

The science of immunology is blossoming. Research centres all over the world are devoting their talents to the potential use of immunological tests for the better understanding of the causes of cancer.

So far, most of the positive, hopeful results lie in the potential for the diagnosing of human cancer. The science, too, is being applied to the localization of tumors in the body and to determine how effective certain types of treatment are.

Recurrences of cancer and extensions of them to far distant parts of the body (metastases) can be recognized earlier.

Antibodies are nature's reaction of infection. These are readily determined by complex testing. Now, it is believed that tumors of all kinds may also produce antibodies which can be detected.

In some instances, viruses have been associated with certain types of cancer. This close association is being studied in the hope that the virus-tumor process may call forth antibodies that can be recognized early. And since the earliest detection of cancer offers the greatest chance for recovery, these immunological studies may be tremendously important.

Without any obvious cause, I suddenly begin to scratch my skin because of uncontrolled itching. At the same time, large welts appear on the surface of the skin, especially on my chest and back. These giant hives last for a few days and then disappear. How does one go about tracking down the cause of such an annoying problem? — Mrs. C.C.

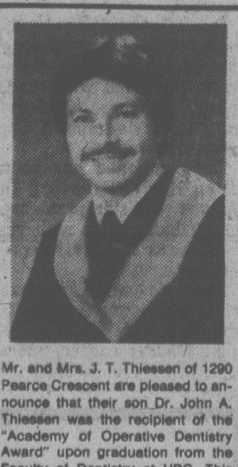
Dear Mrs. C.:

Finding the cause of urticaria (giant hives) is often an arduous task that necessitates much detective work by the patient and the doctor. Sensitivity to cold, injury, drugs and allergies to foods are the most common causes of urticaria. Fish, strawberries and shellfish are frequently implicated in the cause of hives.

Contact with pesticides, insect repellents and other chemicals may produce such skin reactions.

Occasionally, hereditary factors may become evident if the family history is carefully explored.

Of course, the ideal way to treat this condition is to find the offending substance by the process of elimination and to avoid it. In most cases, treatment is readily effective with the use of antihistamine drugs.



Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Thiessen of 1290 Pearce Crescent are pleased to announce that their son Dr. John A. Thiessen was the recipient of the "Academy of Operative Dentistry Award" upon graduation from the Faculty of Dentistry at UBC. This award is indicative of outstanding achievement in operative dentistry during the clinical years of dental school. Dr. Thiessen attended North Saanich Jr. Secondary and graduated from Claremont Sr. Secondary in 1970. In 1974 he received his B.Sc. from UVic majoring in biology. # All Those Creams Won't Wipe Out Wrinkles: Expert

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — All the creams, masks, face exercises, steam and hormones that women use in nightly rituals to preserve their skin are almost useless in preventing wrinkles, a skin expert says.

Dr. Bobby Lee Limmer said the time and money women have spent on the preservation of skin through the use of expensive cosmetics is for naught because a woman cannot change the quality of her skin.

Wrinkles have little respect for a $40 per ounce bottle of lotion bought for the tiny laugh lines around the eyes, said Limmer, clinical professor of dermatology at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

"On a practical standpoint, cosmetics hide blemishes and lines. Aesthetically, they accentuate beauty," he said. "But realistically, comestics can't do a thing when it comes to wrinkling and aging."

Limmer said water content is what makes a woman's skin soft and youthful and suggests applying a small amount of moisturizer on a damp face to seal in the moisture.

Cleansing with a mild soap and water twice a day and using a pure oil or moisturizer such as baby oil is enough for any type of skin, the dermatologist added.

"Heavy oils, creams and dirt clog up pores," he said. "Basically, acne in teenagers is caused from this clogging. A lot of oil-based makeups used by older women do the same thing."

Limmer said sun exposure was the single most damaging agent to the skin over which people have control, because overexposure causes premature wrinkling, aging and the possibility of cancer.

"Nowadays, women want a tanned look. What is really happening is that they are aging their skin by sitting for hours in the sun without precautions. A little sun exposure is good, but after an initial 15 minutes in bright sunlight, a sunscreen should be used," he said.

The advent of the birth control pill also has caused concern among younger women who developed acne after stopping the use of the contraceptive, he said.

"Many women over 18 who have been on the pill develop hormonal changes. Acne may develop and also a slight brown pigmentation. This pigmentation can be controlled with bleaching creams."

Limmer recommends simple cleansing as an essential to young, clear skin, and said simple products and a daily routine are important. He warns against buying too many over-the-counter acne preparations because they can be used incorrectly.

Make a Hand Hoe

For weeding and cultivating smaller garden plots (especially crops like onions), a hand hoe simply can't be beat. Take a piece of hardwood (7/8 inch by 1-3/4 inches is a comfortable size) any length that you find suitable (4-inches works well). Then attach an old bucksaw blade to the handle with bolts, as shown in the sketch.

7½ YEARS FOR THIEF

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Amerko Brandalise, 53, found guilty of a $2,365 robbery of the Royal Bank's community branch in Vancouver's downtown eastside, has been sentenced to 7½ years in jail. Brandalise was charged Feb. 17 after a man wearing a wig and carrying an air pistol walked into the bank and demanded that money be put in a paper bag.

Parole Officers Fear Their Own Safety

TORONTO (CP) — While many parole officers say they are afraid for their safety in Canada's parole system, those on parole say the system is useless and humiliating.

The budget has been increased four times in the last five years; staff has doubled during the same period; the bureaucracy of parole has grown four times as fast as the number of persons it supervises and there have been sweeping changes in law and administrative structure.

Those connected with the parole service say that while things now are different, in many ways they are worse.

Parole officers say that dangerous offenders, some extremely emotionally disturbed, are released directly from maximum-security prisons, occasionally directly from solitary confinement. The officers are afraid because they say they are incapable of dealing with them.

Critics say the service is showing signs of giving up on the notion of rehabilitating former prisoners.

They talk of a trend toward strict, calculated surveillance only, which is frustrating to parole officers who see themselves as a type of social worker and not policemen.

"They're exporting the pressures inside prison outside on to our streets," said one angry parole officer who asked not to be identified.

"We're talking about peo le who have killed already," he added.

"No one seems to be aware how dangerous it is in our (parole) office sometimes."

He cited the example of a man, known to be violently dangerous, who recently appeared in a Toronto parole office immediately after eight years in a maximum security prison in Quebec. The prisoner had spent much of his time in solitary confinement.

The only information the parole officers had about the man was written in French and it took days before they could find out his background.

Often, the parole officer said, the most dangerous men turn up at parole offices with no file at all—just a warning from a corrections centre that they are considered a serious risk. Later, a file is delivered.

"Some are bona-fide dangerous people," said Ray Belcourt, an assistant district director of parole for the Metropolitan Toronto area. "They are not loath to threaten us."

Trry Caul, a parole supervisor for the John Howard Society, said the situation is volatile because "anybody who has been kept in a closed box for a number of years is a disfigured person."

It is rare that such risky cases hit the streets because they have been granted parole, he said. Their sentences have been reduce' because they have not committed an offence while in jail.

They ar released on what is called mandatory supervision but they are supervised by the parole board and parole service.

Last year 1,502 of 4,613 prisoners were released directly from maximum-security prisons, almost all under mandatory supervision.

"We are caught in a bind," said William Outerbridge, head of the parole board.

"Under mandatory supervision, if he is seen to be of sufficient danger, he willdo all his time in a maximum-security prison. If a man is too dangerous to take out of maximum security, he is too dangerous to be on the street."

Parole officers say that since 1970, whn mandatory supervision came into being, they have become increasingly worried about their personal safety. Their ultimate weapon is to have the parolee sent back to prison but Belcourt said the parolees often are soon released.

Parole officers have lost individual discretion in some areas. If a person on parole breaks certain conditions, such as not drinking, the parole officer now has no alternative but to send him back to jail. If a parolee wants to go to another city, the parole officer must get permission from a superior.

Changes in law, most of which were passed last fall, now guarantee a prisoner the right to a personal hearing before the parole board; he must be told why he has been denied parole if that is the case; if parole is revoked, the time he served on the street is counted against his sentence time; a prisoner can refuse to be released on mandatory supervision and a prisoner or person on parole now is guaranteed access to the files kept on him by the government.

In 1978-79, $93.82 million will be spent on the parole services. Five years ago, it was $8.78 million. This year 1,097 persons work in parole services; five years ago there were 561.

In the last 10 years, numerous studies have shown that parole has little impact on the incidence of crime.

As a result Maine, California and other U.S. states have been experimenting with abandoning the system.

"I think we should abolish parole," Toronto lawyer David Cole said.

"Firstly, I think society should know that when a person gets a sentence of five years, it means five years. Secondly, the theory of de-escalating from maximum security down through minimum through parole, does not work because of the way it is handled.

"When people are released under mandatory supervision, there is so much resentment about the tight controls over them that they refuse to co-operate and end up being taken back into custody and then being put back out again and again."

WHY JOHNNY CAN'T WRITE
The only way youngsters can learn to write is by writing and by having their written work meticulously corrected and marked.
Unfortunately, even dedicated teachers sometimes fail to set written assignments and with good reason: they have too little time for marking.
Work it out. If a teacher has thirty pupils in a class, and spends only ten minutes marking each paper, it will take five hours to mark one set of essays. It will take even longer if there are many errors, of grammar, spelling or punctuation, to be corrected.
Little wonder that Johnny may graduate from high school, and even university, without learning how to write plain English.
Terrence Davies, B.A. (Wales), L. Th. (Oxon), Head of the English Department at St. Michaels University School, comments: "Learning to write has many advantages. Not least, it demands mental discipline. As Francis Bacon wrote, 'Reading maketh a full man; conference a ready man and writing an exact man.'"
At St. Michaels University School, learning to write, like learning to read, spell and calculate, is considered a basic and important skill, essential to becoming an educated person.

Iris Popular, but Virtual Stranger

The Iris is a plant every gardener recognizes, most gardeners admire, and about which the average gardener knows very little.

The Iris Family, Iridaceae (irid-a-see-ee) comprises 60 or more genera, many of which are bulbous plants that graced the older show gardens of Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula.

The name Iris is Greek for "a rainbow," and gardeners who have grown but a few species will agree the genus is aptly named.

There are over 200 species in cultivation, sufficient for an iris enthusiast to fill an entire garden and have one or more species in bloom every month of the year.

Some grow from bulbs, some have rhizomes which are stems that store food and lie half buried in the soil, others have coarse fleshy roots, and to complete the circle one species grows from corms.

The flowers are composed of six segments, three of which hang downwards and are called falls, and three upright called standards. In some species the falls are horizontal instead of drooping, while the standards may curve backwards to meet in a point, outwards to lie just above the falls, or be short claws hardly noticeable when standing a few feet away.

The inflorescence, technically known as the head, may contain one flower or many; in the multiflowered head each bud opens in succession as the previous flower fades, causing some species to flower over a long period.

To the home gardener, the word Iris usually means those in the Pogon class with flowers having a beardlike growth on the three falls, with flower stems and leaves that arise from rhizomes which are half-buried in the soil.

These have been known to generations of gardeners as the German Iris and they are still listed as Iris Germanica, although strong representations have been made to have this term deleted.

It is possible the plants passed through Germany on their way to the gardens of northern Europe, but they are native to Portugal, Morocco, southern and central Europe into Asia Minor, Manchuria and western China.

Although the Blue Flag was a feature of every cottager's garden in the late 1800's, today we admire only the beautiful selfs and bicolors the hybridists have produced, a careful selection being worth a special bed in any garden.

If they were plants like the peonies that thrive with little attention for 50 years without need of lifting and replanting, more would be seen in local gardens, but the beauty of Iris depends on the bed being cleared and remade once every three to five years.

If this is not done the flowers become small and less spectacular, the rhizomes spread with leaves only on the perimeter of the clump, and the different varieties become entangled and unsightly.

Working to a step-by-step plan, the job is accomplished with the minimum of effort and unnecessary waste of time. It is a job that can be spread over a week or so.

The first step is to tag each plant in the bed with its varietal name or its color. This permits replanting in groups of one color for the best effect.

Step two is the removal of all the old clumps from the bed with a spading fork and stacking them in a place where there is shade all day. If properly tagged the plants can be sorted later.

Step three starts with the removal from the old bed of any perennial weeds by digging out their roots, covering the soil with four to six inches of compost, mixing well with the fork as the bed is dug.

A warning here: Do not use peat moss, nor any kind of animal or bird manure in an iris bed or near the plants. They do not like an acid soil and manures increase the incidence of borers.

Step four: Roughly level the bed and firm by lightly treading, then water. While this new bed is draining and settling, work is done on the stack of old iris clumps.

Step five: Wash off soil remaining on the old clumps. Do this where the water will be of benefit to other plants. Examine each clump carefully noting the rhizomes which have a fan of leaves and a new growth bud for next year's flowers. Remove these and place with their name or color tag, and destroy the rest.

Step six is trimming the leaves. Each fan of leaves is slashed with a finely honed pruning knife to form an inverted 'V.' There is a reason for this. The old leaves will die but inside the fan are the beginning of the new leaves that will feed the plant this summer.

These new leaves must not be damaged, so the slashes are made from a point two inches above the rhizome on each side of the fan to a central point six inches above the fan. With a little practice and a truly sharp knife, each slash will make a clean cut half way though the old fan. Do this part of the job at the compost heap to save gathering the waste and carrying it.

At the same time shorten the roots on the bottom of the rhizomes to six inches in length, which is long enough to anchor the rhizomes in the soil until new roots take over in two to four weeks.

Step seven: When replanting, place three, five or seven rhizomes of the same color in a group spaced eight inches in all directions. This method gives a fine display of color the following year.

If the bed is large and plenty of young rhizomes are on hand, plant in difts merging one color with another as we do when planting heathers.

Lay out the rhizomes on the bed in the planting pattern with the name or color tag clearly marking each group. Be sure the leaf fans face north and the rhizomes south where they can bake in summer sunshine.

Step eight is the actual planting. The rhizomes must be set on a ridge of soil, half in and half out of the ground. To obtain this ridge, which must be firm and not liable to sink, two holes are made with a hand trowel for each rhizome, one sloping to the left the other to the right, leaving a ridge of soil in the middle.

Bonemeal is the only fertilizer used with iris. A half-handful is dropped into each hole and well mixed with a small hand fork.

The old roots on the bottom of the rhizome are quickly separated along the centre line, those on left grasped in the left hand, on the right in the right hand, than placed into the respective holes with the rhizome balanced on the ridge.

Fill the holes with the soil-compost mixture, pressing it close to the roots.

Step nine, the final step: Level the surface of the bed, firmly set the name or color tags in place, then give a gentle deep watering.

The job is finished and the gardener looks forward to the display next year, which will be well worth the week of spare time spent on the job.

WORK FOR WEEK

Choose best fruiting strawberry plants for runner propagation — limit two runners to each chosen plant. Remove all other runners to maintain health buildup.

Cucumbers need moist atmosphere and shade in heat in heat of day, but general warmth of air. Tomatoes need drier air and direct sun on plants as well as general warmth of soil and air.

Leave thinning of tree fruits until after "June drop" is complete. Trees normally discard fruits in excess of what can be nourished and also those which have been poorly pollinated or contain an insect.

Make sowing of Wando peas for maturing in warm weather, also more French or bush beans, and sweet corn if dwarf variety used.

Sow seeds in flats, outdoors, of hardy perennials. Shade lightly from hot sun. Avoid drying of soil. Prick out promptly Sow Brompton stock, lovely biennial to flower early May; and seed of Meconopsis the Blue Poppy, using this year's seed.

RACIST RAP AT CANADA

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuter) — Opposition parliamentarians have condemned as racist Canadian immigration policies regarding black Bermudians visiting Canada.

The comments came during a House of Assembly debate Friday on a motion by opposition MP Walter King to tighten immigration requirements for Canadians entering the island.

The debate followed a recent incident where two black Bermudian women were refused entry into Canada on the grounds they were undesirable. But the house defeated King's motion and instead adopted a milder one urging further talks between the two governments to end alleged discriminatory practices.

Probe Urged of 'Racist' Incident

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MP Lincoln Alexander called Friday for a full investigation into what he said was apparent racial discrimination by immigration officers at the Toronto airport.

He was the second Opposition MP in the Commons this week to complain about such discrimination and to call for action by Immigration Minister Bud Cullen.

The calls come on the heels of criticism by delegates to a Commonwealth Parliamentary Association meeting in Trinidad that Canadian government policy permits discrimination.

Cullen said he knows of no discrimination and told a reporter that an immigration officer practising discrimination would be dismissed.

Alexander cited what he called a disturbing report that 30 persons were singled out and subjected to a six-hour "intense interrogation" after landing Sunday night in Toronto on a plane from Trinidad carrying 86 persons.

Alexander said the group was "shuffled off into a corner" and interrogated from about midnight to 6 a.m. Only two or three were turned away.

Alexander said in and out of the Commons he has heard similar incidents and even if they don't occur often "it happens more than I would like to see happen."

He said he suspects a pattern of discrimination exists and should be headed off by strict personal orders from Cullen immediately because it gives the impression that Canada is a place "where colored people are undesirable."

On Monday Andrew Brewin, New Democratic Party immigration critic, said Cullen should ensure his officials are familiar with government anti-discrimination policies because recent practices result in "deep resentment among members of Commonwealth and Caribbean countries."

Cullen said quite often he hears complaints about incidents where "the intitial outcry is racism" but it turns out immigration officers were justified in their actions.

As an example, Cullen said a group of blacks from the United States complained of racial discrimination at a border crossing as they entered Canada by bus. Cullen said the facts showed it was "a bunch of drunken guys" who refused to get off the bus for routine procedures.

Before The Judge

A 24-year-old escapee who remained free only one day short of two years from William Head prison was sentenced to six months after pleading guilty to escaping lawful custody.

Daniel Jerome Haley, who surrendered to Victoria city police Friday, appeared in Victoria provincial court before Judge William Ostler.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Haley was serving a 4½-year sentence for possession of a narcotic for the purpose of trafficking.

On June 24, 1976, Haley was attending a meeting of the Silver Threads Society in Esquimalt and working in the kitchen area. At about 2 p.m., he was allowed to go to the bathroom and was noticed missing about 10 minutes later, Laughton said.

Haley said he got married and become a parent during his illegal freedom.

He told Ostler he wanted to "be able to live again, get my phone number in the book again."

"This escaping is such a futile business," Ostler commented before passing sentence, which is to be served prior and consecutively to the term he was serving at the time of his escape.

Ostler handed out a two-month sentence to a 36-year-old man who pleaded guilty to rolling a sleeping man.

Robert Alxander Landrin, no fixed address, entered a guilty plea to theft under $200.

Court was told Landrin and a companion removed cigarettes, a checkbook and tobacco from a man who was sleeping in the downtown area June 15.

Laughton told the court Landrin had an extensive criminal history, mostly for petty crimes of similar nature.

A 29-year-old man who was denied bail Tuesday by Ostler was ordered released on $4,000 cash or surety bail Friday.

Peter Larsen, 425 Simcoe, is jointly charged with 21-year-old Deborah Jane Mavis Frank of the same address with unlawful confinement, armed robbery and possession of stolen property. They were arrested in connection with a holdup June 16 at the McKenzie Avenue liquor store in which manager William James Taylor was forced to open a safe and bound.

In changing his decision, Ostler noted that he was in receipt of inaccurate information on the previous occasion but pointed out it was a case of a genuine misunderstanding.

The preliminary hearing, originally set for Sept. 21, was reset for Nov. 8.

Ostler ordered a pre-sentence report for 17-year-old John Barry Crow, 3347 Richmond, and remanded him to July 14 for sentencing.

Crow, described by defence lawyer Robert Monahan as a good student at St. Michael's University School, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and dangerous driving.

Laughton said Crow broke into a home at 2300 Hazelton and took $7 in bills as well as ransacking drawers. He fled the scene on a motorbike, Laughton continued, but was persued by Saanich police in a chase which reached speeds of 80-to-100 kmh before Crow eluded his persuers. Court was told Crow's mother reported the incident to police the following day.

Ostler released Crow on his own recognizance but imposed an 8 p.m. curfew unless accompanied by a parent.

Two teenagers were charged with robbery with violence in connection with an incident Wednesday on Salt Spring Island.

Charged separately were 18-year-old Henry Pickering of Ganges and 17-year-old John Barry Pinchin of Victoria who gave the court an address of 2690 Duke in Vancouver.

They were charged after one of three campers told RCMP he was kicked in the head, suffering a badly cut lip, and relieved of money and his watch.

Each was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $500 and remanded until next Friday for election of trial method.

Cheryl Ann Newton, 21, of 207 Crease, received a suspended sentence, six months' probation and 60 hours of community service work after pleading guilty to false pretences.

Court was told Mrs. Newton tendered a cheque for $123.11 for merchandise at Fairways Market, 272 Gorge Road West on March 28 and the cheque was returned marked not sufficient funds.

Laughton said the account had a balance of $10.51 at the time and also noted that her husband, 20-year-old John Albert Newton, was in the same court the day before and was fined $100 on two counts of the same charge involving $225.80.

Trent Harold White, 20, of 9905 Fifth in Sidney, was sentenced to 14 days in jail after admitting he drove while under suspension April 16.

Court was informed White was involved in a minor motor vehicle accident in the parking lot of McDonald's Restaurant, 3465 Saanich.

Police checked and found out that White had been under a driving ban since Feb. 24, 1977.

Laughton said White was convicted Oct. 7, 1976, of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and was fined $400 and $350, respectively; Feb. 24, 1977, of driving under suspension and over .08 and fined $250 and $1,000, respectively.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Donald Oliver Sinclair, 46, of 1750 Chambers, $600; and Charles William Wilson, 51, of 1641 McKenzie, $450.

JUDGE FINDS MOM GUILTY

A 27-year-old mother of two was convicted in county court Friday of forging a $210 Unemployment Insurance cheque cashed May 12, 1977 at a Saanich bank.

Susan Darlene Smith, alias Bryce, was found guilty by Judge Jack Cowan of uttering a forged document which the Crown said went missing in the mail.

After being cashed by the accused, the cheque went through the clearing process and was returned to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at Tillicum and Burnside in July, 1977 with a slip attached saying it was a forgery.

Don Patterson, an apartment resident at 889 Craigflower, said he was expecting a May unemployment cheque and when it failed to arrive, he reported to the commission and was reimbursed.

Shown a cheque made out to him and bearing his name as an endorsement, Patterson denied having signed it. He said he recognized a second endorsement by Bryce, who was then a tenant in the same building.

The accused said she had been given the cheque by a friend, Donna Essihos, who was then staying with her and her two-year-old child at 889 Craigflower.

It was already endorsed with Patterson's name, Bryce said, so she drove to the bank, put her name on the back and cashed it after producing her own identification.

Bruce said she was unaware the cheque had been forged but the Crown introduced a police statement in which Bryce said "she did", meaning Essihos, when asked who endorsed the cheque.

Cowan said he could not accept the explanation offered by Bryce and remanded her to July 25 for pre-sentence report.

Steering Already Faulty: Expert

A mechanic testified in B.C. Supreme Court Friday that steering in a car was faulty before a 1974 highway crash near Duncan.

The incident has resulted in three separate lawsuits.

Mr. Justice Gordon MacKinnon, attempting to resolve liability in the two-car collision on Maple Bay Road, reserved judgment after hearing argument by counsel for the parties following three days of trial.

The driver of one car, Jo-Anne Meyer (then Pearson), 23, was unconscious for three days after the March 17, 1974 accident in which a car crossed the road into the path of her auto. She said she was unsure whether she could have taken evasive action.

The other driver, Michael Roy Summers, 21, of Duncan, said he was surprised when the steering failed on the 1961 Vauxhall he was driving.

Mechanic John Robert Chadwick, of Duncan, said he examined the car and made a written report March 19, 1974, in which he found there was some wear in the steering linkage and broken bolts that were supposed to hold the steering mechanism to the underframe.

Chadwick, who testified as an expert witness, said a thorough inspection of the car before the accident would have revealed faulty steering because his examination showed one of three bolts was missing and one was broken for a considerable time before the crash.

In its earlier stage, the loose steering box would cause a lack of steering response and the amount of play in the steering wheel would increase until there was "pretty well a total loss of steering," Chadwick said.

He estimated it was at least a couple of weeks before the accident that the second bolt had broken, judging from rust and wear marks between the box and frame. This would put a strain on the remaining bolt and it had started to work loose, the court was told.

Chadwick said 1961 to 1964 model Vauxhalls had an inherent steering problem, involving heat-treated material that resulted in bolts shearing. The system used would be judged inadequate and unacceptable by government standards today, Chadwick said.

Counsel K.C. Murphy asked whether the manufacturer had recalled the cars.

"They did not," Chadwick said.

At low speed there might have been some measure of control over the car after the steering mechanism failed, he said, but he doubted there would be much response at 40 miles an hour when the last bolt broke.

Witness Howard Roy Talbot, of Duncan, a passenger in Summers' car, said his recollection of the accident was not clear, but he knew that Summers knew that the steering was loose and had play in the steering wheel.

He said he noticed no difficulty in steering on the day in question.

Wood Carvings on Show at Art Gallery

Exhibitions currently on view or opening next week at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria include crafts and lithography as well as painting. On loan is an outstanding private collection of European wood carvings spanning the 16th to the 18th centuries.

These rare, highly detailed carvings are unique in that the largest figure group is only six-and-one-half inches high, while an intricately carved Greek triptych presents dozens of figures only one-eighth inch high. Styles represented range from Gothic to Renaissance to Baroque.

The subjects of many items are religious, having been carved for the altars of private chapels, but there are also highly decorated utilitarian objects such as knife handles, scent bottles and snuff boxes. These pieces will be exhibited only in Victoria and will remain on view through Aug. 20.

Canvas and Paper Targets is the group title of a series of 11 paintings by Judith Lodge, who is an instructor of painting and drawing at the University of B.C. and will be teaching at UVic this summer. The works were inspired by the artist's memory of having uncovered a weathered brass plaque in an abandoned quarry one day in 1970. The plaque had been used for target practice.

The art of lithography, which is remarkable for the fidelity, fluidity and textural qualities with which it reproduces an artist's original drawing, is illustrated in an exhibition drawn from the Gallery's permanent collection. Some of the works are being exhibited for the first time. Featured are masters of the medium such as Daumier, Fantin-Latour and Gericault, but there are more modern works by Steinlen, Forain, Cezanne and Leger. Canadians Herbert Raine and Maxwell Bates are also included.

Opening Monday for a five-week showing is an exhibition entitled Made By Hand '78. Organized by the Craftsmen's Association of B.C., the show's intent is to bring the finest examples of B.C. crafts before the public. It includes such diverse objects and media as fibres, leather, jewellery, clothing, toys, musical instruments, wood, fabric, sculpture and printing.

While the objects may have a utilitarian purpose, they also define that area that lies between the crafts and the arts and fit equally well into either category. Among well known artist-craftsmen involved are potters Walter Dexter and Wayne Ngan, fibre sculptor Lynn Mauser-Bain, instrument-maker Michael Dunn and jewellers Eva-Marie Richter and Michael Leyland.

The Gallery, 1040 Moss, is open Monday through Sunday in the summer; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays, and on Thursdays, 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. There are full facilities for visitors in wheelchairs and special reservations can be made for free guided tours.

Grease: The Way it Wasn't

Two movies reviewed by Lorraine Locherty

Grease is a '50's fairy tale reminiscent not of that decade but of the beach blanket movies of the early '60's. John Travolta fans will grimace at seeing their idol playing Frankie Avalon to Olivia Newton-John's Annette Funicello. Travolta's sensuality is almost neutralized by the insipid plot and Olivia is so cute it's almost unbearable.

Director Randal Kleiser has sacrificed the raunchiness of the original Broadway play in the hopes of creating a mild musical spoof around superstar Travolta. It could have worked with a little more satire, a little less sweetness and better song and dance routines. What he ends up with leaves the audience, mainly kids too young to have experienced the real thing, with the feeling of being cheated. The parody goes right over their heads and what's left causes cavities.

There is no story-line, other than a lovable look at the way things weren't in the '50's. The non-action takes place at Rydell High School and follows the antics and sexual habits of a group of red-blooded American teenagers.

. Travolta is Danny, leader of a gang of leather-jacketed goof-offs call the T-Birds, whose moronic code of ethics cause him to lose his girlfriend Sandy, played by Newton-John. Football games, cheerleaders, slumber parties, necking at the drive-in and sock hops are used as a backdrop for songs by the Bee Gees that poke fun at the '50's mentality.

Several of them are good, notably a sequence where Travolta sings a Presley-style ode to the automobile called Grease Lightning that is complete with swivel hips and the appropriate sneer. And the big finale, where Sandy sheds her goody-two-shoes attire for tight black pants and red lipstick is almost exciting.

Producers Allan Carr and Robert Stigwood (who produced Saturday Night Fever, the movie that vaulted 24-year-old Travolta into instant stardom), are using the his magnetism to draw audiences, and Travolta delivers, breathing life into a shallow character.

Travolta understands that a true punk of the '50s was raised not on the sophisticated medium of television, but on movies like Rebel Without A Cause. His characterization of Danny is raw, rebellious and bewildered, without a trace of urbanity.

But the real show-stealer is Stockard Channing. Channing plays Rizzo, the girl with the worst reputation in the school, with irreverent gusto. In one scene she sings a hilarious parody about Sandra Dee that defends girls of questionable character who fail to live up to the shining golden-haired virtue of Dee, or her look-alike Newton-John.

Unfortunately, Newton-John only comes alive in the last scene when she turns into a vamp. The rest of the movie she spendsmoping around after Travolta like a wounded dove.

Just to keep things authentic, Kleiser has added some real fifties stars like Eve Arden of Our Miss Brooks, who plays a teacher just as she did in her television series. Edd Byrnes, of 77 Sunset Strip fame, makes a brief appearance as a Dick Clark-like rock and roll show host. Frankie Avalon shows up in one dream-like sequence as an angel who advises a drop-out member of the rival girls' gang, the pink ladies, to go back to school. At the graduation dance, it's '50's imitators Sha Na Na who masquerade as a real rock group.

Also appearing are Sid Caesar as the football coach, Joan Blondell as a waitress, and Alice Ghostley and Dody Good playing school staff.

Newton-John and Travolta . . . Frankie and Annette all over again

All-star Cast Can't Save 'Detective'

The Cheap Detective is cheap all right: a real miser when it comes to originality. There isn't a unique scene in the entire film, which is a collage of plots from Humphery Bogart movies stitched together with second-hand dialogue. Why Neil Simon chose to resurrect the Bogie legend again is a mystery in itself. The script he has written is the ultimate in plagiarism masquerading as parody.

Simon, director Robert Moore and star Peter Falk collaborated in the comedy spoof Murder by Death and are together again for The Cheap Detective. They have dragged a large all-star cast in with them and the movie is basically a guessing game of who is playing what famous character from an assortment of Bogie movies.

Falk, as private detective Lou Peckinpaugh, combines his dirty trench-coated Columbo TV character with a squint-eye impersonation of Bogart. He stumbles through several movie plots that are pasted together like a celluloid nightmare as spectres of all the screen villains and heroines Bogart has ever dealt with converge on him at once. It may have been the kind of bad dream that woke the real Bogie in a cold sweat in the middle of the night.

The cast includes Eileen Brennan impersonating Lauren Bacall in To Have And Have Not; Sid Caesar, disguised as a doddering old man, and Ann-Margaret as his luscious young wife, enact a scene from The Big Sleep. But the two movies Simon has drawn most of his action from are The Maltese Falcon and Casablanca. Dom Deluise, with hair-piece and black moustache, is the slimy Peter Lorrie; playing the evil genius Sidney Greenstreet is John Houseman, well-padded and named Jasper Blubber; Paul Williams is Blubber's trigger-happy sidekick; Simon's real-life wife Marsha Mason is the widow of Peckinpaugh's murdered partner; Stockard Channing plays Peckinpaugh's loyal and love-sick secretary; Madeline Kahn is the mysterious Mary Astor character who changes her name as often as her lipstick; Louise Fletcher and Fernando Lamas show up as the Ingrid Bergman and Paul Hendried characters; Nicol Williamson is the sadistic Nazi and James Coco the French resistance fighter. Phil Silvers was also billed as one of the stars, but he didn't seem to surface anywhere — if he was in the movie, he must have had a good disguise.

If all that isn't confusing enough, Simon and Moore have all the characters running across each other's paths. Brennan's Lauren Bacall wanders into a scene straight out of Casablanca. Peckinpaugh is trying to solve all the cases at the same time and keep his women from running into one another.

The cast is talented and there are some moments of high camp that are funny, but for the most part the comic possibilities expired early on from overkill. Almost everything in this spoof on the greatest screen detective of them all is worn out from being done too many times before.

Christine Leacock signs another Bastion subscriber

Bastion Looks To Big Season

A heart-warming trend has sent spirits soaring among Bastion Theatre staff and directors. In the midst of the annual pre-season subscription campaign for 1978-79, figures are away up over last year or any year at the same period.

To date 2,850 Victorians have signed on the dotted line for Bastion's October-through-April line-up of plays. Last year's storm-in-a-teacup over The Comedians and the present chilly economic climate only seem to have made people more eager to experience the diversion, the mystique and anticipation of theatre-going.

Bastion's office manager, Christine Leacock, thinks some of the enthusiasm is directly related to the balanced program being offered for next season, a blend of plays from classic to contemporary, from west coast premieres to current metropolitan triple-award-winners. Something has also no doubt rubbed off from the fact that Bastion's last season productions received praise nationally.

The new season will open Oct. 6 with George Bernard Shaw's ever-popular comedy Pygmalion, which was the inspiration for one of the greatest musicals of the 20th century. Otherwise Engaged will follow. Winner of two New York drama awards this play is also on Time Magazine's list of 10 best plays for 1977.

A new Sherlock Holmes adventure will fascinate Christmas holiday audiences and the New Year will see a staging of Shakespeare's comedy of love and romance, Twelfth Night. After that comes Michael Cristofer's The Shadow Box, one of only 10 plays ever to have won both the Pulitzer Prize and the Tony Award in one year.

And finally there is a Canadian play, Artichoke, by the brilliant and discerning playwright, Joanna Glass. Artichoke is set in Saskatchewan wheat fields and is full of prairie homespun humor and warmth.

There is still a good choice of seats available for season subscribers, who can get the whole six-play season for as little as $12, or in the case of senior citizens and students, $6. But considering the briskness of the season sale at the moment, the choice could narrow considerably before the campaign closes.

As a special bonus, all subscribers are being entered in a contest, sponsored by Air Canada and Budget Travel, to win a free theatre trip for two to London and enjoy free dinners at three of Victoria's finest restaurants during the theatre season. Participating in this "extra" are Laurel Point Inn, the Olde England Inn and the Ravens in Harbour Towers.

British actress Maggie Smith has been winning rave reviews for her performance as Rosalind in the current Stratford, Ont. production of Shakespeare's As You Like It.

Lighting up Stratford

By AUDREY JOHNSON

When ex-Victorian Michael Whitfield enrolled several years ago for his first year at the University of Victoria, his main courses were non-arts, but wandering around campus he happened into backstage activity in the theatre hut. He was so intrigued that he decided on theatre as one of his electives.

The inoculation took and by his second year he had determined on switching his major to theatre. It was then that Michael found out how theatre rated with such serious-minded people as student counsellors. He found himself handling such questions as: Did he get on with his parents? Yes. Did his parents know what he proposed doing? They did and looked at it favorably. How did he expect to make a living with such nonsense? He figured he probably would, and anyway, theatre was where he wanted to be more than anywhere.

Michael followed through and completed his theatre program at UVic, graduated and began working and travelling, including a working stint in English theatre pursuing his special interest in lighting.

Today he's back in Canada. People flocking to Stratford, Ont., including critics, are impressed with the superb quality of the Stratford productions. The man at the lighting design board? Michael Whitfield.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, June 25
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on "coming out party." Means you feel free because atmosphere of restriction is removed. You could be leaving place of confinement. Cycle moves up; you will be in mood to celebrate. Potential is bright, the sky is the limit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message. Friends do "something nice." You learn valuable lessons, feel more emotionally secure and receive gift. Aquarius, Pisces persons figure prominently — and so does the number 4. Keep track of promises obligations, statements. Be sure you are correctly quoted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Find reasons for shakeups, realignments, unusual circumstances. You win if analytical. Accent on climbing over obstacles, standing tall for rights and principles Virgo, Pisces figure prominently. Welcome chance to prove capabilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Personal magnetism is manifested in your added popularity, offers on professional and personal levels. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. Surroundings will be more pleasant. Accept compliment graciously. Be mature, discret during meeting with "special person."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Mystery, detective work are featured. What seemed decided upon could once again become an issue. Yes, money is involved including debt, time payment, collection. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Take time to be analytical. Wait for the best time. Don't be rushed!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain valid hint from Leo message. Accent on legal affairs, commitments partnership, public relations, marriage. Accept resposibility. Go slow, lie low, Relationship has passed the "game" stage. It is very serious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It may be necessary to "see around corners." Means anticipate moves, calls, messages, long-range policy. You can do it now since many persons are drawn to you, confide, confess, place their problems, dreams in your lap. Aries figures prominently. Reach beyond what might appear to be a limitation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Zero in on objective; this is your power-creative day. You could write your own ticket. Personal magnetism surges to forefront. You could be successful in money and love. Make new start, stress originality, pioneering effort, independence. Get to heart of matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Build, collect, piece together various arts — the complete picture, the whole, the circle and pattern within reach. Leo, Cancer, Aquarius persons figure in scenario. You learn by teaching — you are "due" for a revelation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What seemed serious could now be reason for laughter. Know it, be flexible, versatile, willing to work with available material. Short trip is on agenda. Party, perhaps in your honor, might be featured. Pressures vanish. Yes, it is all right to laugh!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasize finances, ability to build on secure base. Another Aquarian — and a Scorpio — could figure prominently. What seemed out-of-reach is available — and you find you can afford it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You're able to communicate, to make progress, to be at right place at right time. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. You perceive possibilities, potential. You receive accolade for presentation of original concept.

IF JUNE 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, a perfectionist, tempermental, moody and somewhat of a genius. You find life is happier for you in August. Love and money are featured; sun, sand could also be a part of your personal scenario. You adore food, hate to dine alone but too often find it necessary. This will change — and soon. Pisces, Virgo individuals play key roles in your life.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, June 26.
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What was cloaked in mystery becomes as clear as crystal. Aquarius, Leo, Taurus persons figure in scenario. Routine, pattern, sense of direction is needed. You know it now and you will be in position to do something about it. Dig in — you're here to stay!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on helping friends, building bridges of goodwill, demonstrating writing-creative talents. Member of opposit sex is intrigued and you'll know it. You gain more freedom; you'll express yourself better.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Values, ambitions, who can do what, who wants what and for how much — these areas are crowded. Home environment is "busy," no matter where your presence. Means family, security, gifts, luxury items, time payments, vacation plans, activities are all part of scenario. Key: Be diplomatic!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on philosphy, distance, being away from familiar surroundings. Decide on definite course, define terms, get concepts in writing. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. You gain knowledge by heeding "inner voice." Message will become crystal clear!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Serious considerations, discussions featured in connection with partnership, joint efforts, money and love. Investment, dowry, past commitments tinge of occultism — these all grab a share of spotlight. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals could play key roles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on marriage, completing a cycle, gaining benefit of broad view, finishing important task or assignment. Aries, Libra and number 9 could play key roles. You get answer regarding legal matter. You will be free to examine, expand, experiment, reap benefits of past efforts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Service, performing duties, getting credit, reaching a new understanding with those who depend upon you — these are spotlighed. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in important ways. A pet could display streak of aggressiveness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Aura of excitement, speculation dominates. Children, loved one, discoveries crowd your personal scenario. Aquarius, Cancer, Capricorn individuals are likely to be in picture — so is the number 11. Hunch pays off — views are vindicated and you could be struck by Cupids arrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Desire is put aside for responsibility — soon, however, the two will combine. You will be happier within environment. Right now, accent is on building, restriction, homework, preparation, a survey of basic materials.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagitarius message. Know that you can — and will — rise above petty jealousies, restrictions prohibitions and superstitions. Message or call brings equivalent of "green light." You are on the go — and relative gives blessings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You draw correct conclusions, right ticket — you get door prize, cash or news telling of increased earning potential. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently — so does the number 3. Element of luck or timing is on your side.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You're rewarded, praised. You receive gift, family could wine-and-dine you. Cycle is high — no false modesty. You've earned right to come out of emotional doldrums. Know it and respond accordingly. Take lead, be a self-starter, trust judgment, intuition, timing.

IF JUNE 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a person who sticks with convictions. You have executive abilities, charisma; you understand money and power — and how to get them. Next month, you have chance for new, vital experience and opportunity for independence, creativity and love. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. You have ability to pump life into business, have managerial capabilities — you should be investing in your own dreams.

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Monaco has hired a mini air force to protect the privacy of Princess Caroline's wedding next week, warning would-be aerial phtographers that anyone "stupid enough to try an overflight will be forced into the sea."

Nadia Lacoste, spokeswoman for Caroline's father Prince Rainier III, said Friday Monaco's royal family meant business when it decided Caroline's wedding to French businessman-playboy Philippe Junot would be a "private family affair."

The ban on overflights apparently also ruled out the possibility of a repeat of the surprise the late Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis sprung on Rainier when the prince married former Hollywood star Grace Kelly in a more opulent wedding 22 years ago.

Onassis had a helicopter drop a load of carnations over the royal palace during the ceremonies.

LOS ANGELES — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, 46, was listed in fair condition Friday night after being taken to hospital for a virus infection.

OTTAWA — Twenty-seven Liberals who rode to victory on the coattails of Pierre Trudeau in the 1968 federal election are among 42 MPs who celebrate their 10th anniversary in Parliament Sunday.

Among the Liberals who were rookies when their novice leader Trudeau piloted the party to victory are several cabinet ministers including Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan, Multiculturalism Minister Norman Cafik, Employment Minister Bud Cullen, Defence Minister Barney Danson and Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie.

Other rookies of the "class of 68" include two independents, Stan Schumacher, a former Conservative; Rene Matte, a former Socred; and Conservatives Steve Paproski, party whip and member for Edmonton Centre, and Don Mazankowski, MP for Vegreville and the party's transportation critic.

Canadians Lose

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Eric Kpkish and Peter Nagy, both of Montreal, were outscored Friday by two Brazilians from Rio de Janeiro who came from behind to capture the Open Pairs title at the World Bridge Olympiad.

Marcelo Branco, 32, a government employee, and Gabino Cintra, 36, an IBM finance executive, snatched victory despite failing to place in the top 10 halfway through the four final sessions.

Kokish, 31, and Nagy, 35, had led the field after each of the first three final sessions.

Another pair of Canadians — Ted Horning and John Stevens whose hometowns are not immediately available — was in the 10th place.

Merit

OTTAWA — Three Canadian Forces generals are among 54 officers and men to be invested into the Order of Military Merit by Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger, Government House announced Friday.

A press release said Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Edward Lewis, 49, of Calgary, the deputy chief of defence staff, Lt.-Gen. Jean Jacques Paradis, 49, of Montreal, the commander of Mobile Command; and Lt.-Gen. James Charles Smith, 53, of Ottawa, an associate deputy minister for personnel, were appointed Commanders of the order.

Weddings

Dash — Phillips

The Church by the Lake, Elk Lake, was the scene of a lovely summer wedding on May 27, 1978. Rev. H. R. Pike officiated at the ceremony which united Cheryl Lynn Phillips, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Phillips and Kenneth Edgar Dash, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Dash, both of Victoria.

The pretty blonde bride chose an exquisite gown of candelite ivory silk organza over taffeta. Hand cut Chantilly lace fashioned the shoulder yoke and extended down the sleeves to the cuffs. Vertical rows of lace adorned the very full hoop skirt with a deep border of hand cut lace sweeping entrain. She wore a tiara of peach rosebuds and candelite lace in her hair to complement her fingertip length veil. Cheryl's cascading bouquet of peach rosebuds, stephanotis and ivy, clustered around gardenias and candlelite lace. For something old, she carried her great grandmother's lace handkerchief. She was attended by Miss Cheryl Marshall as maid of honour, bridesmatrons, Mrs. Norma McLeod, sister of the groom; Mrs. Joyce Spidle, and bridesmaid Miss Marlyn Phillips, cousin of the bride. They wore identical gowns of mint green crinkle cotton, fashioned with scoop neckline bordered in lace with horizontal lace insets in the skirt. They wore matching mint picture hats and carried colonial style bouquets of cream crystal mums and peach rosebuds. The groom was attired in a beige tuxedo with brown velvet lapels. Mr. Ed Driebergen was best man and the ushers were Barrie Gardner, and the bride's brothers, Wayne and Walt Phillips. They wore brown tuxedos. The organist for the occasion was the groom's aunt, Mrs. Catherine Dash. Following an old fashioned theme the happy couple were driven to the reception in a 1919 Model T, by Mr. William Kendall. The mother of the bride chose a floor length soft blue gown with sheer sleeves and lace bodice complemented by a sleeveless lace coat. White accessories and yellow rosebuds completed her ensemble. The groom's mother wore a deep turquoise crepe sleeveless gown with matching lace overcoat trimmed with crepe at the wrists and neckline. She wore silver accessories and a corsage of baby pink carnations. Guests enjoyed a buffet style dinner at the Garth Home Achievement Centre, and danced to music by Mr. Rod Moysey. The toast to the bride was given by Mr. Sid Taylor, who also was master of ceremonies for the evening. The Guest Book was looked after by Miss Shannon Fraser, cousin of the bride.

Out of town guests included Carmen and Bud Bagley, Noreen Shannon, and Laura Lee Fraser, Ally and John Boe, Wendy Boe and Jim Morrison, Fern and Hap Henson, Maureen and Mitch Sulkers, Doug Benton and Marlyn Phillips. For her going away outfit, the bride chose a soft muted blue-grey tweed skirt suit with champagne blouse and accessories. Her corsage was a gardenia. After a honeymoon to California, Ken and Cheryl are now residing in Victoria.

Farris — Bennett

On June 3rd, 1978, at 5:30 p.m., Cadboro Bay United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding joyfully uniting in marriage Carol Lynn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bennett of Victoria, B.C., and Michael Nelson Farris, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Farris of Crosbyton, Texas, the double-ring ceremony was officiated by Reverend John Davidson.

The bride wore a beautiful, flowing gown of Celestial jersey and carried a bouquet of delicate pink and white roses. She was escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents. Bridal attendants were Margaret Latta, matron of honor, and the bride's sister Susan Bennett, maid on honor. They wore identical dusty rose coloured gowns and carried bouquets of pink roses and carnations. The groom's best man was Ross Nelson of Lafayette, Indiana, his groomsman Nam Kim of Calgary, and the ushers were Jon and Pat Farris, brothers of the groom. All wore striking black tuxedos. The soloist was Melaney Black of Calgary, and a special prayer was given by Barbara Halliwell of Victoria.

A dinner and dance reception was held at the Uplands Golf Club with music supplied by Pan Musican Ltd. The master of ceremonies was the bride's brother-in-law, Ben Gross of Calgary. The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle Charles Thomson, of Calgary. Dr. Bob McLaren gave the blessing. Following dinner, the bride's cousin, Alan Thomson sang two numbers. Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Farris, Jon and Pat Farris, Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Medlock from Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Bush from Germany, Mr. and Mrs. Jones from California, Mr. Ross Nelson from Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. Gross and family, Miss Melany Black, Mrs. Margaret Latta, Miss Susan Bennett, Mr. Nam Kim and Mrs. Synott and Janice from Calgary and Mr. and Mrs. Miller and family from Surrey. Telegrams were received from Scotland, Tokyo, Fiji, Texas and Los Angeles.

After a honeymoon at Shuswap Lake, the happy couple now reside in Texas.

Umphrey — Jupe

Reverend John Watson officiated at the marriage ceremony in First Baptist Church, Victoria, on June 10th, 1978, at 2:30 p.m. when Jenette Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jupe, exchanged wedding vows with Gerald Allan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Umphrey. The organist was Mr. John Tunstall.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an enchanting gown of silk jersey and Guipure lace. The gown featured the lovely lace on the sculptured neckline, and again on raised waist from which the soft flowing skirt fell with long train at back. Long bishop sleeves completed the look. A Juliet cap of lace and pearls held a fingertip veil edged with tiny pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. The maid of honor, Mrs. Sandra Darwin and the bridesmaids, Miss Karen Slobie and Heather Watts, wore identical gowns of pink silk jersey, and carried bouquets of pink carnations and white daisies. Mr. Jim Umphrey attended as best man and the ushers were Messrs. John Jupe and Jon Watts.

REPORT"
Number 63 — Congratulations to Alderman Larry Ryan on his stand against hiring a consulting firm for $2500, to select an urban development officer. Your City Watchdog met a sweet lady known as Babe, who distributes her own honey. Many thanks go to Gwen, who has served tea and coffee to senior Citizens for many years. Your City's Watchdog feels that if popcorn stands are allowed on the causeway they should not be allowed to advertise Market Square. All Colonist readers should cut out Hubert Beyer's Civic Scene colums of Thursday, June 22, and keep it for further reference. Congratulations to Terry Spence on his editorial of June 14, 1978 pointing out that certain people now in civic office asked to be elected because of their business backgrounds. Yet, it appears they can't even make a decision on a candidate for a civic job . . . or whether they need a personnel department . . . or what kind of a downtown we should have . . . and it's costing us tens of thousands of dollars. If you wish information regarding city matters please continue to phone 383-6259. Your City Watchdog, C. Joe Richards. Postcript: Notice how many serious auto accidents occur during or near full moons.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

THANK YOU ALL — We would like to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to Knox Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Larry K. Lin, the Rev. E. Herron, Mr. Milt Gibson, the organist, Mrs. Sandra Lin, Mrs. Hazel Shepherd, and the combined choirs of Knox and Holy Trinity Churches for the lovely service in memory of Muriel, on Tuesday, June 6, 1978. We also appreciate the work done by all the ladies who gave of their time and refreshments afterwards. A special thanks for the doctors and nurses prior and during her stay in hospital; also to friends and relatives who sent flowers, cards and donations to the Cancer Fund. Thank you all — George Cotterill, Fred and Pat Rud.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and gratitude for the many expressions of sympathy in the loss of our dear husband and father, Henry Klassen. Also for the many flowers and donations to the heart and cancer funds. Special thanks to relatives and neighbors, Oddfellows and Rebekahs in all their moral support as well. — from Verna Klassen and family.

I wish to express my sincere thanks and gratitude for the many cards, letters, and expressions of sympathy extended to me and my family in the recent loss of my sister Mrs. Laura Ruth Larson. To those sending donations to the Heart Fund, and for the floral tributes in Mrs. Larson's memory, my grateful appreciation. Special thanks to Pastor L. M. Carlson, McCalls Funeral Chapel and Ron Gent. — Irene Dunn and family.

Mrs. Sara Mauch and family wish to express their sincere appreciation for the many expressions of kindness to us in our recent loss of husband and father, Mr. William John Mauch. Special thanks to Rev. John M. Davidson for his words of comfort.

309 IN MEMORIAM

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

Take Part, Parents Urged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A University of Toronto professor says parents should be involved in sex education programs at elementary and secondary schools.

Speaking to a group of physical and health education teachers, Dr. Benjamin Schlesinger said that parents should meet with teachers to discuss the content of sex education courses.

This would alleviate their concern about what their children are being taught about sex.

A committee made up of teachers and parents should also be established to monitor the course during the school year, said Schlesinger.

He warned the teachers that a backlash to the sexual revolution may harm such programs. The importance of the courses is increasing because children are maturing earlier and marrying later than their parents, he said.

PACT RATIFIED

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — A contract agreement with about 750 members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees has been ratified by six Okanagan school boards. ning Aug. 27.

The two-year agreement gives the non-teaching employees at Vernon, Kelowna, Penticton, Armstrong, Summerland and Salmon Arm a 5.5 per cent wage increase in the first year and a six-percent hike in the second. The base rate for custodians under the old pact was $6.56 an hour while the base rate for tradesmen was $8.53 an hour.

Postal Manning Argued

OTTAWA (CP) Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne said Friday that if the post office cuts manpower, it will be done through attrition after consultation with the unions.

But John Rodriguez (NDP—Nickel Belt) said in the Commons he was not convinced by Lamontagne's assurance and asked if a post office proposal to make more use of casual employees "is a direct attempt to undermine the Canadian union of Postal Workers (CUPW)."

Rodriguez said a memorandum sent to postmasters in the eastern district directed a cut of 269 man-years in mail sorting and counter staff positions in eastern Ontario by 1982.

Lamontagne repeated an earlier commitment that no permanent postal employees will lose their jobs as a result of changes within the department.

The memo suggesting manpower reductions "is strictly a report given to me for suggestions."

"It will be done — if it is done — after consultation with our unions and I think it is absolutely normal that the management give me ideas and some new ways to save money again."

Lamontagne said the post office finds it essential to use casual, non-union employees in some situations.

"Sometimes we have to pay extra time and we have to hire casuals because of over-volume and some accumulation of mail."

The 23,000-member CUPW, which represents mail sorters and postal clerks, has asked for an end to the use of casual, non-union labor in the post office.

CUPW has been without a contract for almost a year. The union will be in a legal strike position after a three-member conciliation board releases its report in about 1½ months.

Lamontagne said in a recent interview: "If worst comes to worst and there is a strike, the government will take the proper measures to move essential mail."

Legion halls, armories and other central offices would be used for the distribution of essential mail such as pension cheques in the event of a strike by the inside postal workers.

The union says it is not enough for Lamontagne to guarantee that no jobs will be lost.

"It is all very well for him to say that no jobs will be lost, but why don't they agree to give us full job security at the bargaining table? Why don't they agree to put that in writing?" asked CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrott.

AECB Denies Plant Danger

OTTAWA (CP) — In an effort to clear up allegations of deficiencies in the safety systems at nuclear power plants, the Atomic Energy Control Board issued a six-page statement Friday assuring Canadians here is no reason for alarm.

Board chairman Alan Prince said decisions to order power cuts at two Ontario Hydro nuclear stations last year were based on conservative safety standards.

Prince denied the power reductions were deliberately kept secret. He said they were a routine matter decided by AECB staff and not considered important enough to publicize. Many such decision have been implemented in 16-year history of nuclear power, he said.

The board acknowledged this week for the first time it reduced Douglas Point nuclear generating station to 70 per cent of its capacity in March, 1977, and cut Bruce generating station to 88 per cent capacity in April

Body Smugglers Halted

DERBY LINE, Vt. (UPI) — Officials say U.S. and Canadian authorities have broken up a ring that smuggled South American aliens into Vermont through Canada.

Border Patrol spokesmen said Friday they and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police staged a raid in Rock Island, Quebec Sunday that climaxed an investigation into a two-year-old Toronto-based smuggling operation.

No arrests have been made, but officials said they picked up at least nine Guyanese nationals, including three children, who reportedly paid the smugglers $10,000 to get into the country.

Officials said the smuggling ring stretched from Toronto to New York City and had been operating through the Derby Line border rossing on a weekly basis for several months.

The Border Patrol said the evidence will be turned over to a federal grand jury for possible indictments. They said several participants have been identified. No names were released.

Lawyers Ad Pact

TORONTO (CP) — The Law Society of Upper Canada has agreed in principle with the concept of lawyers registering as specialists and advertising their specialties discreetly.

To qualify as registered specialists, lawyers must agree to attend professional development courses and keep up with developments in that field.

George Finlayson, treasurer of the law society, said Friday that the advertising would have to be "informational, not promotional."

The law society wants the public to know if a lawyer has special competence in a particular area, Finlayson said.

A Sweet Mistake

FREDERICTON (CP) — Peter Joseph Laurie thought he was buying tetrahydricannabinol pills but, it turned out, he didn't and that fact has saved him the remainder of a 15 month jail term.

Laurie had been serving a sentence for illegal possession of the drug for the purposes of trafficking but the appeals division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court has overturned the conviction.

The court's decision came after it was learned that the 1,200 pills Laurie has sewn into his jacket were not, in fact, the illegal drug. They were saccharine.

Porn Ring Cracked

CHICAGO (AP) — FBI and U.S. postal officials are investigating a child pornography and prostitution ring that authorities said is based in Chicago and may have involved transporting boys across state lines and to some other countries for purposes of male postitution.

U.S. RECALLS ENVOY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chile is playing down the recall of the U.S. ambassador from Santiago in protest of alleged delays in responding to questions about the 1976 assassination here of former Chilean ambassador Orlando Letelier.

The U.S. state department on Friday, in announcing the recall of Ambassador George Landau, said Chile "has not been forthcoming on important requests" for information.

The case involves the car-bombing assassination of Letelier, an outspoken critic of Chile's military junta and a former top aide to the late President Salvador Allende.

Letelier, who was living here in exile, was killed along with a colleague.

Although the recall of Landau was seen as a strong expression of U.S. displeasure over Chile's attitude, Chilean Foreign Minister Hernan Cubillos said he believes the action may yield positive results.

Cubillos, here attending a meeting of the Organization of American States, said Landau's presence in Washington "will be useful in that it will allow him to explain in detail the information which we have been making available to him lately."

Government sources also have said at least three Chilean government officials might be charged.

Fender Fallout

This New Orleans parking garage attendant had a smashing day Friday — too darn smashing! As if he didn't have enough to do, he was obliged to sweep off some of the debris which dropped on lower-level vehicles when a car smashed through the third-floor wall of the garage. The driver of the car had undoubtedly had better days, too . . .

Bloodbath In Jail Yard

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — A Baja California state prison yard turned into a bloodbath when the warden, his deputy and three guards were shot to death in what officials say was a plot engineered by a drug-trafficking kingpin. Three prisoners were slain by guards in an ensuing shootout.

"All hell broke loose," said Paul Cloyd, 42, a Northridge, Calif., resident who said he was in the yard visiting a U.S. prisoner when the shooting erupted Friday. "Fist fights broke out all over the place."

Fifty soldiers and 150 police rushed to the 2,200-prisoner penitentiary in suburban La Mesa to help quell the disturbance that left two other men, including a guard, known to be wounded. Estimates of those wounded ran as high as 20, however, as the prison was sealed off to outsiders.

Authorities said Warden Salvador Gonzalez Gutiereez and his assistant, Jose de Jesus Dominguez Cobos, were slain after being lured into the prison's main yard by a prisoner who said another convict wanted to surrender a contraband pistol.

Prison sources said that when the chief and two guards entered the yard, they were surrounded by a group of about 12 prisoners.

"I don't understand Spanish, but it appeared the warden approached an inmate and asked him for something," Cloyd said.

"The inmate whipped out a gun and shot the warden," he said. "Before I could duck two other guys with the warden also were shot and the prisoner killed. They all dropped in their tracks. They were dead before they hit the ground."

Cloyd said he ran from the yard to escape the ensuing hail of bullets when tower guards fired into the group of prisoners. He said a prisoner running beside him was struck in the back of the head by a shot. Cloyd was unhurt.

Officials said an extensive search of the prison turned up guns, home-made knives and drugs, despite several recent searches for weapons.

Alejandro Rosas Romandia, attorney-general for Baja California and head of the state judicial police, said the bloodbath was believed planned by Marcio Enrique Alvarez, described as head of a drug-smuggling operation and the most-powerful undergound force in the prison.

Killer Blast Rips Plant

AZUSA, Calif. (UPI) — An hour-long series of explosions Friday night that jolted a wide area of Southern California levelled a chemical plant, killing one man and injuring 10 others.

The charred body of an unidentified man was pulled from the smouldering ruins of the Norac Chemical Co. more than two hours after the first explosion sent a huge burst of flames more than 300 feet into the night sky.

"It was like the sun popped up out of the middle of the night," one fireman said.

About 150 firefighters from Los Angeles County, Azusa, West Covina, Covina and La-Verne battled flames for 2½ hours. Flames were seen up to 20 miles away.

Firemen poured water on tanks of a chemical resin catalyst stored at the plant to prevent further explosions.

Investigators said a small fire broke out inside the plant touching off the series of explosions.

The first blast at 9:05 p.m. shattered windows within a square-mile area around the plant. Merchandise from nearby businesses was scattered for several blocks.

Residents up to 20 miles away reported feeling the rippling effects of the shock. Several smaller blasts followed, with the final concussion felt just before 10 p.m.

Residents in the San Fernando Valley, some 20 miles away, felt the initial explosion and police in Glendale and Burbank said many residents called to report an earthquake.

"I just live a couple of blocks away," said resident John Gleason. "I was sitting down to watch television and my house just shook."

An injured Norac employee, Wayne Williams, 50, of Baldwin Park, suffered second- and third-degree burns and was taken to the burn center at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center in satisfactory condition. Eight others were hospitalized with minor injuries.

JAMIESON GLUM ON CYPRUS

OTTAWA (CP) — Some outside arbitration or intervention will probably be needed to get peace talks going again in Cyprus, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said.

He said to reporters outside the Commons that he was "not encouraged by the developments I observed and by the talks I held" in Turkey and Cyprus during a recent visit.

There would probably be no effort to resolve the long dispute between the Greeks and the Turks over Cyprus until the U.S. lifts its arms embargo against the Turks. The embargo was imposed in 1974 after a Turkish invasion of Cyprus and President Carter recently failed in an attempt to get the U.S. Congress to lift the ban.

Jamieson indicated that lifting the arms embargo would make Turkey more willing to discuss the Cyprus issue.

The island now is divided between the Turkish and Greek communities with United Nations peacekeeping troops trying to prevent outbreaks of violence.

TITO TEARFUL

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — With tears in his eyes, 86-year-old President Josip Broz Tito closed a Communist Party conference Friday by telling cheering delegates he wished he "could live and work another 50 years."

Tito was reaffirmed as his party's president for life.

The congress closed after adopting a series of measures streamlining its top leadership, consolidating trusted Tito aides in positions of power and pledging to continue Tito's personal brand of independent communism and non-aligned foreign policy.

The measures were all clearly aimed at assuring continuity and a smooth transition of power after Tito's death.

13 in Missions Hacked to Death

SALISBURY (AP) — Thirteen whites—missionaries and their families—were hacked to death by black nationalist guerrillas at a mission near Rhodesia's border with Mozambique, a military spokesman said today.

He said the dead included a month-old baby and several young girls.

The spokesman said there were no casualties among the blacks at the mission, but that it appeared that black children attending the mission school were rounded up by the guerrillas and marched across the Mozambique border.

The Rev. John Smith of the Elim Church in Cheltenham, England, said all the victims were British, included three couples and four young children, and that only one white survived, an unmarried woman. No identities were immediately available.

The Anglican dean of Salisbury, John da Costa, identified the mission attacked as belonging to the U.S.-based Elim Fellowship, a Pentecostal church.

(Reuters news agency said the mission belonged to the Pentecostal Mission Church, which has its headquarters in Cheltenham, England. Reuter quoted a church sources as saying the mission was called Elim and until nine months ago was run by the Anglican Church.)

It was the most serious attack yet on missions, which have become a prime target for raids by black nationalists stepping up their war in Rhodesia. It came as Mozambique reported invading Rhodesian troops killed 19 persons in southwest Mozambique.

Meanwhile, leaders of black guerrillas fighting in Rhodesia asked the Organization of African Unity (OAU) on Friday for $3 million to buy arms so they might launch attacks on Rhodesian towns and cities.

"We couldn't give them three million bucks, but we'll give them all that we can," Laban Oyaka, spokesman for the OAU's liberation committee, said. He spoke with reporters after the committee ended a five-day meeting attended by delegations from OAU member states.

Oyaka said a resolution instructed the committee secretariat to "grant all possible emergency and other requests put forward by the Patriotic Front for the intensification of the armed struggle" in Rhodesia.

The liberation committe also condemned Western military intervention in Africa and said the continent should be allowed to solve its own problems.

FAMILY HOMELESS

A family of 10 is homeless today after fire gutted a residence at 8750 West Saanich Road Friday.

The fire broke out around 1 p.m. The owner, Herman Henry was a work, his wife, Dorothy was in Victoria, and most of their eight children were at a school sports day nearby.

The family lost all of their belongings.

PM Backroomed Petro-Can's Bid, Angry PCs Claim

OTTAWA (CP)-The Progressive Conservatives pressed the government Friday for a full explanation of its involvement in Petro-Canada's takeover bid for Husky Oil Ltd. of Canada.

Ray Hnatyshyn (Saskatoon-Biggar) said the questions are raised in light of new information that the man hired as Petro-Canada's agent in the transaction was a Husky director.

He also said officials of Prime Minister Trudeau's office were involved in the transaction. Trudeau denied this.

Hnatyshyn was referring to the fact that Ward C. Pitfield, head of the investment house Pitfield, McKay Ross of Toronto, which handled the Crown oil corporation's acquisition bid, resigned last Tuesday as a director of Husky Oil.

"This looks like a classic case of conflict of interest to me," Hnatyshyn told reporters.

Meanwhile, Premier Alan Blakeney of Saskatchewan Friday came down on Petro-Canada's side in the bidding war with Occidental Petroleum Corp. of Los Angeles to take over Husky.

The province prefers Petro-Canada because it has the money and the inclination to more more quickly to fully develop heavy oil deposits in Saskatchewan, Blakeney said.

Husky, a major shareholder in the heavy oil region of the Lloydminster area, has been cautious in developing the reserves.

In the Commons, Hnatyshyn called on Trudeau and Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie to tell how Pitfield had been selected as Petro-Canada's agent.

He also said Trudeau owed the country an explanation of the involvement of his own officials in the takeover bid.

Trudeau denied any link existed between his office and Petro-Canada and both ministers said Petro-Canada's directors had simply chosen the man best qualified to do the job.

Hnatyshyn told reporters he is certain the prime minister's office has been in close contact with the negotiations.

Ward Pitfield's brother Michael Pitfield, clerk of the Privy Council, is considered to be the most powerful public servant in Canada.

The Toronto, Montreal and New York stock exchanges have begun investigations to determine whether there were irregularities in the takeover bid which might have allowed certain insiders to profit from the transaction. Hnatyshyn said these probes were insufficient in the Husky case because a government agency was involved in the bidding.

BIRDS SAFE FROM SPILL IN STRAIT

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Federal pollution control officials were investigating an oil spill which threatened a provincial bird sanctuary at the north end of Georgia Strait near here Friday.

An Environmental Protection Service spokesman said the slick of heavy-grade oil was reported travelling between Cape Mudge, on the south tip of Quadra Island, and the Mitlenatch Island provincial park and bird sanctuary, about 12 kilometres east of Cape Mudge, on Friday morning.

Heavy tides and wind broke the 7.2 kilometres long slick by evening. The spokesman said the spill was expected to have no effect on fish or wildlife in the area.

Origin of the spill was not known but it was believed to have come from a passing barge or freighter.

RCMP Set Appeal

Crown counsel Richard Law said Friday the RCMP will appeal a case in which the validity of RCMP blood-alcohol tests was questioned.

Law said there will be no change in the sampling procedure meanwhile.

Provincial Court Judge William Ostler ruled Wednesday that sampling techniques used by the RCMP in Vancouver were unreliable and acquitted James Beck, 20, of impaired driving.

St. John's Air Crash Kills 10

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The chairman and three other members of the Canadian Historical Sites and Monuments Board were among the 10 persons killed Friday in an airplane crash about eight kilometres west of the St. John's airport.

Among the dead was board chairman Marc LaTerreur of Laval University, regarded as one of Canada's leading historians.

Other board members killed were the Ontario member, Napier Simpson of Thornhill; the Manitoba member, Robert Painchaud of St. Boniface; and the New Brunswick member, Jules Leger of Moncton and his wife Jacqueline.

Also killed were William Manning of nearby Torbay, superintendent of the Signal Hill National Historic Site here; Brenda Babbits of Ottawa, the board's assistant secretary, and her husband Alex Babbits; pilot Gerald Eichel and co-pilot Michael Fitzpatrick, both of Gander, Nfld.

Happiness is an onion ring or a wet kiss. Mrs. Gordon Mitchell, top, still can't believe what she sees. Her husband placed expensive gold ring in shirt pocket two years ago while changing a tire and only later, noticed he'd lost it. Friday morning, Mrs. Mitchell was pulling onions from their vegetable garden and lo and behold, discovered missing ring with onion growing through it. Another missing object to turn up — this time after a seven-month absence — was Kemo, family pet of Dean McFarlen family, of 2177 Lafayette. Two-year-old animal was spotted riding in back of a pickup truck by the family. The truck's driver explained that he'd adopted Kemo after finding him wandering, in of all places, Duncan. Kemo's now back home and as picture shows, more than happy to see two-year-old buddy, Jes McFarlen, again.

Ottawa Tightens Terms for Parole

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian prisoners will become eligible for early release from penitentiary only through hard work and good behavior, beginning July 1.

Prisoners will no longer be automatically credited with one-quarter of their sentence, but will have to earn all remission, Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais announced Friday.

The new Prisons and Reformatories Act has been proclaimed and will become law July 1, Blais said in a news release. The act was adopted by Parliament last summer.

Under the new earned remission system, prisoners must earn all credits towards early release on parole. An identical system will be instituted in provincial reformatories.

Prisoners will earn 15 days for every month served "during which they apply themselves industriously," the news release said.

They can earn a maximum credit of one-third of their sentence, and will forfeit the credit irrevocably for misconduct.

NEW BREWERY OFFER

The Brewery Employers Labor Relations Association made a new offer to brewery workers in negotiations Thursday and further talks were postponed until today, a spokesman for the association said Friday.

Talks planned for Friday were postponed after union spokesman John Langley asked the association for a cooling-off period, the spokesman said.

He declined to disclose details of the new offer, the second made by the association.

Negotiators for both sides met for 15 hours until 4 a.m. Friday with major problems still unresolved.

The strike-lockout affects 1,200 production employees and about 200 distribution workers. In addition, at least a third of the 6,000 hotel and pub workers in the Vancouver area have been laid off or are working reduced hours because of the beer shortage.

MLAs GETTING CASE OF WIND-UP FEVER

With sunny skies bathing Victoria and the July 1 holiday weekend looming closer, wind-up fever has struck the legislature.

Both sides of the house co-operated last week to speed through 24 bills and pundits are now predicting Wednesday will be the last day of the session.

There are five bills still lacking third reading — forest, heroin, electoral boundaries, family relations and an omnibus bill tying up loose ends.

In addition, the highways ministry estimates still have to be approved by the legislature.

If the session does end Wednesday it will have lasted just under three months.

Last year, the session lasted a marathon seven months and saw nearly 90 bills introduced.

E&N 'Keeping Fare-Cuts Secret'

Users of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway service are victims of blatant price discrimination, an official of the United Transit Union (UTU) has charged.

John Cooper, head of the union's save-the-railway committee said a new rate structure featuring reduced fares and operational revisions should have gone into effect June 15.

The rate changes, engineered by the federal organization Via Rail, have already gone into effect in other parts of the country but are being kept secret here, Cooper said.

Cooper said the UTU, which made up of E&N employees, can back up its claim of the rate and organizational changes which CP has put into effect elsewhere.

Since a CP Rail application to end the E&N run was approved by the Canadian Transport Commission, two successful appeals have kept the line open — the latest being to extend the service to Dec. 13.

Cooper said the union discovered the new rate structure a couple of weeks ago when VIA Rail held a two-day briefing seminiar for E&N operators.

CP Rail officials here have said they are unaware of the reduced rates and administrative changes for the E&N operation.

But Cooper says the complete list of rate changes are contained in a blue booklet issued by VIA Rail at the seminar.

Fare changes Cooper says are listed in the book include a Victoria to Duncan fare reduction from $4.15 to $3, a Victoria to Nanaimo drop from $7.60 to $4 and a decrease in the fare to Parksville from $10.50 to $6.

A complete one-way run from Victoria to Courtenay would be cut in price from from $14.45 to $8, according to the book, he said.

Other specials include reduced fares for groups.

Cooper has called a public meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday in the Cowichan Valley Region board room to set up a Vancouver Island steering committee to work towards having the new reduced rates established on the E&N run.

Success Almost Spoils Domestic Charter Plan

max low

All's well with its domestic charter service, says Air Canada, even though at least one Victoria woman is unhappy.

Henrietta Draaijer, who works in the accounts department at the University of Victoria, wants to go to Toronto to attend her son's wedding and has been trying to get one of the much-advertised low-cost charter seats.

The difference in price is considerable. A one-way ticket to Toronto costs $201. So to go there and back normally costs $402 plus tax. But a there-and-back charter ticket is the one-way fare of $201 plus $31 to return and $8 tax — a total of $240.

But there are a few catches. You must book your seat at least 30 days in advance of your departure, stay wherever you're going a minimum of seven days and a maximum of 30 days, and you must be sure of your dates as there's a $20 cancellation fee.

But, as far as Henrietta Draaijer is concerned, there is another catch: you can't get a charter seat when you want one, anyway!

"I phoned the Air Canada booking office and a clerk told me they were booked solid," she says. "The clerk told me they had been so flooded with people wanting charter flights that they'd been instructed not to take any names or phone numbers as they couldn't handle any more.

"Again I phoned and I got the same response. When I called a third time, the girl took my name and number because I became upset and told her I'd phoned twice already and was thinking of contacting the media.

"That night, a man from Air Canada phoned and told me I had a seat. And so I will be there in time for the wedding, but that doesn't solve the problem for everybody. If they want people to travel in Canada, they should make the flights available."

With a travel deficit like we have, they want people to travel in Canada all right, Henrietta.

And Glen Steeves, district manager for Air Canada, says charter seats are being made available. It's just that for some you may have to wait a little longer.

Part of the problem is that they are not charter flights but simply an allocation of a certain number of charter-cost seats on regular flights between all points in Canada.

"It's supposed to be a surplus seat concept," Steeves explains and he admits Air Canada did have problems and a fair bit of adverse publicity when the domestic charter service was instituted in February, 1977.

"But since then we have increased the number of charter seats allocated on each flight and it's simply not fair to say space isn't available. There are going to be peak periods, of course, like Christmas time and holiday weekends when you'll just have to book further ahead of your departure date.

"The charter-rate tickets are a great buy, though," Steeves adds. "And we have been able to drop the advanced booking time required from 45 to 30 days."

That's only an advantage, however, if you're able to get a seat 30 days before you intend to go somewhere.

Following in Henrietta's footsteps, I decided to try a hop to Toronto.

"We are booked solid, Sir," an Air Canada clerk confirmed, quite politely. "Until Aug. 23."

Silence. Then her voice came back over the wire.

"Oh no, there's nothing then either, I'm afraid."

The first available date they could get me a charter-cost seat to Toronto for even a single booking was Aug. 25. That's exactly 62 days to takeoff!

But take heart. When there are delays they are because of the positive response. And the response has certainly been positive.

Glen Steeves is enthusiastic.

"We've had a very positive response to the charter service," he says. "It has generated a lot of new travel — and we're getting people who wouldn't have travelled otherwise."

DECISION DELAYED ON MOBILE HOMES

A decision on a proposed 240-lot mobile home park for Sidney has been put off until a second public hearing can be held.

Sidney council voted to postpone their decision — it was to have come Monday — on the 33-acre development because some people didn't get a chance to air their views at a public hearing held last week at Sidney firehall.

Municipal clerk Geoff Logan said the date for the second hearing has not yet been decided.

Council will not consider a bylaw authorizing a land use contract between Sidney and Leisure Villa Estates Ltd of Vancouver until after the second public hearing.

The proposed mobile home park would be located on property bounded by Frost Avenue, Canora Road and the municipal boundary, with the Pat-Bay Highway to the east.

A petition opposing the park has already gathered more than 200 signatures.

Schooner Men On Way Home

Members of the crew of the ill-fated schooner Freelance are on their way back to Victoria.

Walter Donald, executive assistant to Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said today the fate of the vessel should be known this weekend.

He said the crew will be able to give an up-to-date picture of attempts tp salvage what's left of the 100-foot schooner, which up until Friday, remained grounded on a coral reef in the San Blas Islands east of the Panama Canal.

The vessel has been described as a virtual shell after local residents stripped it of its fittings, including its masts.

Donald said salvage work involving two U.S. army landing craft was apparently continuing and a last-ditch effort was to have been made Friday to get the Freelance off the reef.

He said it has been learned that underwater demolition experts had been at the scene in a bid to clear a channel off the reef so the Freelance could be re-floated.

But so far there has been no word that the work has been successful, he said.

The Frelance was purchased by the provincial government and was to have been operated by the Victoria-based Quest Star Society, which planned to use the vessel in an outward-bound type of program with young people.

Up until the vessel grounded, a total of about $78,000 had been spent on it.

Earlier, Victoria marine surveyor Dick Meadows said there was less than a 50-50 chance the schooner could be saved.

And even if the Freelance is taken off the reef, Meadows said the cost of restoring her would be enormous.

Tool Plant Fate In Saanich Lap

The decision lies with Saanich council as to whether Greater Victoria gets a tool manufacturing plant that its backers claim would eventually provide more than 500 jobs.

If council makes the wrong decision — Monday night — the plant will be built either in Alberta or Texas, Victoria investor Nick Liberto warned today.

"Time is important and council must act now," said Liberto, who is in partnership with Dennis Dorosz in a joint venture to manufacture an innovative rockbit that could revolutionize the drilling industry.

Liberto said the manufacturing company, Dorosz Tool Co., is ready to go and all it needs is the land to built the plant.

The problem is both the company and Saanich municipality have their eyes on the same property — 85 acres of Crown land next to Camoson College on Interurban Road.

Liberto said the provincial cabinet agreed Thursday to support the company in its quest for the property.

In a letter to the company's lawyer, Economic Development Minister Don Phillips said if Dorosz Tool can put together a package for establishing the industry here, the government would consider entering a lease agreement.

Phillips wrote he asked Greater Victoria economic development commissioner Barry Mayhew some time ago to acquire as quickly as possible the 85 acres for the B.C. Development Corporation.

"My ministry is most interested in having this light industry established in the Greater Victoria area," Phillips said.

He said in his letter the government will cooperate with the company's efforts to get a federal department of regional economic expansion grant, already made available if the company establishes itself in Prince Rupert, transfered to Victoria.

Liberto said, however, Saanich is considering the property for an industrial park site and has an option to purchase the land at $6,000 an acre.

He said Saanich wants to include Dorosz Tool in the plan but is only prepared to offer seven acres at a cost of $700,000.

But the company has rejected the offer, Liberto said because the company needs a minimum of 30 acres to allow for expansion that would eventually see five major plants on the site giving employment to more than 500 persons.

He said the company already has orders for $2.5 million worth of bits and must be in production by Jan. 1.

"We must turn the sod within two weeks or go somewhere else," he said.

Mayor Mel Couvelier declined today to discuss council plans for the industrial site.

Collision Sends Pair To Hospital

Two men ended up in hospital after their pickup trucks collided head-on at Pat Bay Highway and Claremont Friday afternoon.

James Leslie Bystedt, 23, of 412-118 Menzies, was admitted to Royal Jubilee with facial injuries and is in good condition.

Thomas Flynn, 56, of 8540 Moxon, in Sidney, was treated for minor shoulder and leg injuries and later released.

Labor Lawyer Picked

The Saanich police board has selected a Vancouver lawyer to represent the board at an arbitration hearing into a new two-year contract with the police union.

Chairman of the board Mayor Mel Couvelier said today the board has retained Jack Giles, one of B.C.'s top labor lawyers.

Couvelier described the hearing as a landmark case requiring the best counsel available.

The union has yet to respond to the board's choice for arbitrator — retired Supreme Court Justice Angelo Branca.

Union president Cpl. Phil Jamieson said today the reason for the delay is the union hasn't had a chance to speak with the its lawyer, Dermod Owen-Flood, about the choice.

Owen-Flood is currently working on a court case in Port Alberni.

The labor dispute is over the interpretation of a cost-of-living clause included in the contract approved by both sides May 12.

The board is arguing cost-of-living increase should be considered separate from salary base rates, while the union argues the increase should be incorporated into the base rates.

The outcome of the hearing is expected to have far-reaching implications on just how cost-of-living adjustments should be treated in future.

Killer Whales Deadly? Not So, Says Foster

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

The killer whale has been misnamed, says B.C.'s director of ecological reserves.

"A big bull could have dined on me for suppper," said Bristol Foster, who had a recent encounter with a killer whale while diving in the open Pacific.

"They're no killers, no more dangerous than an insect-eating sparrow and they deserve a better name," Foster said.

The incident took place in Checleset Bay, about 20 miles west of Kyuquot on the west coast of Vancouver Island, where Foster and biologist Trudy Carson were studying sea otters.

The sea otters were transplanted from Alaska in 1969 and 1972 in a bid to re-establish the mammal in B.C. waters.

The otters were all but exterminated in local waters during the 19th century by fur traders.

Foster and Carson, using snorkels camouflaged with kelp, managed to approach until they got to within 30 feet of the otters.

"They are loveable creatures and wonderful to watch," Foster said.

"Some clung to each other like lovers and watched us and the pups sat on the bellies of their mothers who lay or swam on their backs. Sometimes a mother with a pup clinging to her would swim under us to give us a look over."

Foster said they had been watching the otters for about an hour when they suddenly disappeared.

He decided to scramble on an islet to see if he could spot them but saw nothing.

"I decided to take one last dive to see if I could see any and Carson decided to swim ashore."

Foster said when he came up for air he saw Carson waving to him frantically.

He looked back and coming straight for him was a big killer whale.

"I knew it was useless to try to swim to shore," he said.

"He was less than 30 feet away and there was no escape. I donned my mask and faced him. He approached and passed me at a distance of about 10 feet but not before sizing me up."

Foster said he and Carson managed to count 69 sea otters in the area in a helicopter survey.

"I'm sure there are more because as many as 89 have been counted by other parties."

Earlier this year, Foster and Ian MacAskie, a biologist with the federal biological station at Nanaimo, suggested that Checleset Bay be established as an ecological reserve for sea otters.

"We have already received a petition from citizens requesting the the government to designate the area an ecological reserve," he said.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have established sea otter colonies.

The otters weigh between 50 and 80 pounds and frequent kelp beds.

Outsiders Reduce Play

Horse racing operators look to the mutuel play rather than a nose count as their measure of success at the track.

For that reason, they like to see the favorites come in.

"Favorites reflect in the mutuel handle," Sandown Raceway general manager Jim Keeling, Jr., explains. "When your betting choices are coming in, it means a greater play at the windows. The money keeps circulating.

"Longshot payoffs have an opposite effect."

Timing of the favorites can also have an effect.

Friday, for example, longer shots dominated the first half of the harness racing card at Sandown Park but the favorites took over in the second half. The probable result of the early success of outsiders was a decrease in betting for only the second time in 12 days.

Friday's handle was $73,204, a drop of less than $2,000 from the corresponding day the previous week.

Favorites scored in only two of the first six races but swept the final four races. Keeling figures if the trend had been reversed, the betting decrease might have been avoided.

Mr. Ming, in the first, and Step Dance, in the fourth, were the only pacers to contribute to "good circulation" early. Woodys Kat, Zigger, Trevor John and Butternut Jet were the popular winners of the final four races.

Dave Jungquist drove Butternut Jet to to record his second victory of the day and maintain his position as the leading driver. The two wins boosted Jungquist's 12-day total to 13, four ahead of Joe Hudon, Joe Mohorich and Willie Urquhart. Greg Tonkin scored with overlooked Linda Quill in the sixth to chalk up his eighth triumph.

Linda Quill's return of $19.70 was the day's biggest return for a win ticket.

The day's biggest payoff, however, was a $166.90 exactor when Zigger and Honor M Ann finished one-two in the eighth. Well-regarded Arrow Panaro finished third.

Movers Protest Defeat

Webb and Trace defeated Taylor House Movers 7-4 on the field but the team will have to wait for a verdict from the protest committe before Friday's Heywood Men's Softball League game becomes official.

Taylor officials protested the game on the grounds winning-pitcher Greg Gagne used an illegal "rocker" motion while on the mound.

Gagne yielded seven hits and struck out seven batters. He had problems only with Bob Palmer, who clouted a pair of two-run homers to account for all of the Movers' runs.

Catcher Al Pearce and first baseman Dave Falconer each drove in two runs for the winners.

Rockies Sign Former Tiger

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Rockies have signed centre Merlin Malinowski, their second-round pick in the recent National Hockey League amateur draft.

Ray Miron, Rockies vice president and general manager, announced the signing Wednesday, less than 24 hours after announcing the signing of the team's first-round pick, left winger Mike Gillis.

Malinowski, 19, played the last two years with Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

SIZZLING RUN BY FOSTER

LONDON (Reuter) — Brendon Foster of Britain set a European record Friday at the British Amateur Athletics Association championships in equalling the second fastest 10,000 metres ever run. Foster's time of 27 minutes 0.5 seconds matched the official world record of Kenya's Samson Kimombwa, but was eight seconds outside the time of Kenyan Henry Rono that is still awaiting official ratification.
